PARIS AND LONDON AGREE TO DAWES PLAN PARLEY

MacDonald and Herriot Propose Allied Conference in July; Will Visit Geneva Together

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LONDON, June 22.—The British Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald, and M. Herriot, the French Premier, have agreed, providing there is no objection from the other Allies, that an Allied conference shall be held in London not later than mid-July for the purpose of definitely settling on the proposals to be adopted for putting the Dawes report into execution.

What is possibly of still greater import is that the two Premiers will visit Geneva together at the time of the Assembly of the League of Nations in September next.

With the same measure of informality and directness as has characterized most of the doings of England's first Labor government, the first conference in England between the British and French Premiers since the fall of Briand administration swept M. Poincare into power with his well-known dislike of such personal encounters, has been held at Chequers Court.

STATEMENT ISSUED

At the conclusion of this conference the following communication was issued from the Foreign Office:

"A meeting between the French and British Prime Ministers was held at Chequers Saturday and today. Friendly and informal discussions took place on several questions which arose out of the Spa report and measures to be taken in order to put it into execution. No definite conclusions were, of course, be arrived at without consultations with the United States and Belgian governments.

"The conversations revealed a great agreement between the French and British points of view as to the part of the two Prime Ministers a common determination to end the difficulties which between their countries, and indeed the whole world, by continuous co-operation. It was agreed that, subject to the convenience of the other Allies, a conference should be held in London not later than the end of July for the purpose of definitely settling the procedure to be adopted.

"The two Prime Ministers agreed to pay a brief visit to Geneva, together, at the opening of the assembly of the League of Nations in September next."

MEETING INFORMAL

The usual formality of official intercourse was noticeably absent from the meeting. The French party arrived at Chequers Saturday evening in the midst of a thunderstorm. They were met at the entrance to the house by the British Prime Minister wearing a golf suit. Dinner was served and without delaying to change clothes the party sat down immediately.

After the meal ended, they adjourned to the library, where the conversations began forthwith and did not end until 1:30 a.m. They were resumed after breakfast today and were continued until lunch time. Afterwards, the two statesmen are said to have thrashed out all of the difficult questions confronting them.

DEATH ENDS LONG FIGHT WITH POSSE

Man Wanted for Murder Found With Seven Bullet Wounds in Body

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MARTINSBURG (W. Va.) June 22.—C. L. Speight, a farmer wanted in connection with the killing of U. C. Crawford, a State policeman, was shot to death by a posse today during a gun battle lasting more than six hours. Speight had barricaded himself in a barn and was found fatally wounded with seven bullet wounds in his body when a part of the posse rushed the barn. He died a few minutes later.

Speight was located today after the posse under command of Sheriff William Dean and composed of twenty State policemen and 100 citizens had circled the mountains of Berkeley county for twenty-four hours hunting for him. The man, armed with a rifle and pistol, took refuge in a barn, and when he refused to surrender, the battle began.

Speight was charged with having killed Trooper Crawford Friday night when the officer went to arrest him on a charge of having threatened to kill a county auctioneer, who had been ordered to sell Speight's property for a debt.

PLANE SETS NEW MARK

All Endurance Records Fall

New Type Navy Sea Craft Flies Twelve Hours Over Patomac River

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MITCHEL FIELD, June 22.—Favorable weather reports from the West and the local area caused Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, Army aviator, to announce that he would leave the ground at 3 o'clock (eastern standard time) tomorrow morning on his third attempt to cross the continent between dawn and dusk of a single day.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The world's endurance record for seaplanes was broken tonight by Lieuts. Price and Wead of the naval air service, in an all-night flight in the CS-2, a giant seaplane, flying a triangular course over the Potomac River, based on Washington.

At 12:30 o'clock this (Monday) morning, Washington time, the CS-2 was still in the air. It had then been engaged in the flight for a period of twelve hours and twenty minutes. The world's record is eleven hours and fifty-seven minutes. In making this announcement the Anacostia Naval Air Station stated it is the intention of the pilots to remain aloft until noon today.

The Navy Department announced that they had already broken the world's speed record for seaplanes over a 500-kilometer course. The first 500 kilometers of the flight were made at an average of 73.41 miles an hour.

The aviators took to the air in the new plane which is designed for long-distance scouting with the battle fleet, at 12:10 p.m., having on board 623 gallons of gasoline. While one is working the control the other will get snatches of sleep through the night and if all goes well the plane will be brought to the water at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, it being calculated that the gasoline supply will be about exhausted at that time.

At 6 o'clock this evening a note dropped by one of the pilots said the engine was turning up well and that the entire machine was running beautifully.

Navy Department officials explained that the flight is being made as a test of the new type of seaplane, thirty-five of which have been ordered for scouting duty with the fleet.

The endurance record for seaplanes as it stood today was eleven hours and fifty-seven minutes, but Navy officers think it will be shattered around midnight and that a new record of approximately twenty hours will be credited to the Navy.

The course selected for the trial is triangular, lying between Maines Point at the juncture of the Potomac with the east branch, Marshall Hall and Fort Humphreys, Va. The plane is powered by a single 585-horsepower engine. It is a biplane with one propellor and is designed to carry one torpedo.

BAD BLAZE HITS TOWN IN OREGON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MARSHFIELD (Or.) June 22. A gasoline lamp explosion in the Klahn Building early today caused a fire which wiped out part of the business district of the town of Empire, near here. The fire spread quickly to adjoining structures. The North Bend fire department arrived on the scene an hour after the fire started and with the aid of the U.S.S. dredge Colonel P. S. Michie, which turned a stream of water on the blazing buildings, prevented the flames from destroying the entire town. A high northwest wind made fire fighting difficult.

CALLES OR FLORES? BIG QUESTION IN MEXICO

Presidential Election Two Weeks Away and Campaign at Peak; the Men and the Issues

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, June 22.—The Mexican national election will be held on Sunday, July 6, and the political campaign is now at its height.

President Obregon is in the position of neutral, because he is the head of the nation and because the two rival candidates are both members of the Co-operatist party, which Gen. Obregon headed. The party lines, however, have been lost in the main issue of the campaign—the agrarian laws which pertain to the division and distribution to small landholders of the vast landed estates of the republic. This was the promise of the revolution as begun by Francisco I. Madero, Jr., in 1910.

GEN. ANGEL FLORES

Gen. Calles

The two candidates are Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, representing the agrarian and liberal element, and Gen. Angel Flores, representing the anti-agrarian and conservative group. A third candidate, Adolfo De la Huerta, has been eliminated because he headed the unsuccessful revolution a few months ago and is now a political outlaw. President Obregon cannot be a candidate for re-election because of the no re-election clause of the new (Queretaro) constitution. Two minor candidates have withdrawn, leaving only Calles and Flores, each representing strong and determined factions created by the agrarian question.

Both Calles and Flores were leaders under Obregon in the Northwest, and both are natives of that part of Mexico. Calles is from Sonora and Flores from Sinaloa, adjoining States in Northwestern Mexico. Although Flores represents the conservatives (called by their enemies reactionaries) he came of a lower-class family and was a laborer. Although Calles represents the liberal (dubbed by its enemies the radical) elements, he is a middle-class Mexican, by profession a school-teacher. Both, however, are military men, but only of training and experience since the revolution.

Calles's campaign is conducted so as to appeal to the popular vote, and Flores is supported by the large landholders who have opposed what they term radical enforcement of the agrarian laws; by members of the "cientifico" and Catholic parties and some ex-Maderistas and Carranzistas. The Flores partisans accuse Calles of representing an extremely radical or Socialist movement. This is denied by the latter, who hold that Gen. Calles merely is a liberal who stands for fulfillment of the promise of agrarian reform, for liberation of the Indians from a system of peonage, but who is not unfriendly to properly acquired land holdings of Mexicans or foreigners.

Following are in brief the chief facts regarding the rival candidates:

GEN. FLORES

Angel Flores was born in 1883 in Culiacan, Sinaloa. He was a sailor for several years, working out of the Gulf of California port of Guaymas on fishing craft and small coastwise steamers. Later he became a boss stevedore and early showed organizing ability by forming a confederation of stevedores on the Pacific Coast.

Flores enlisted in the Madero revolution in 1911 and from the rank of a common soldier rose step by step to the post of a general of brigade. He held out for six months against a siege of Navojoa, Sinaloa, against a superior force of Villa followers. Later with 3000 men he held Hermosillo, capital of Sonora, against 13,000 Villaistas. He had been ordered to retire, but remained at the pleas of the townspeople to save the city from looting. After the Villa campaign he returned to Sinaloa as commander of the Third Northwest Division, and as preconstitutional Governor of his native State. But he was not in accord with the Carranza regime, and resigned and more than two years he farmed and ran a small machine shop which he built.

In 1920 Flores ran for Governor and was elected. For the next few years he continued as civil Governor of the State and President Obregon made him the military commander of the northwestern zone, including the States of Sinaloa, Nayarit and Sonora, and the Territory of Baja California. He recently spent several months on a mission to Europe.

As Governor of Sinaloa, Flores engaged in some practical reforms. He constructed the Canal Rosales, an irrigation project of great importance, and he improved the harbor of Mazatlan. He soon became the champion of the nonagrarianists. He refused to permit the operation of agrarian agents who were sent to Sinaloa for the purpose of distributing the large estates signaled out for dismemberment, and this stand resulted in an impasse with the Federal government departments.

When the De la Huerta revolution began, Gen. Flores announced his loyalty to the central government, and used his influence to keep Northwestern Mexico in peace.

While his championship of the opposition to the agrarian movement made his name known to land holders in all parts of Mexico, Flores has had the disadvantage of being otherwise unknown except in the northwest. He never has held a national political or military post. Recently he has begun campaigning in Central Mexico, and the elements that naturally would be attracted by a conservative candidate have rallied to his support, with a consequential stiffening of the opposition.

GEN. CALLES

Plutarco Elias Calles was born forty-six years ago in Sonora. He taught in the public schools for many years and was a business man in a small way, owning a flour mill at Agua Prieta, opposite Douglas, Ariz.

In the Carranza revolt against Huerta, he was a colonel under Gen. Obregon. He had a notable military success when he commanded the Carranza garrison at Naco, which fought off the Villistas under Jose Maria Maytorena, who attacked the little border town persistently for several weeks, using many Yaquis, the best shock troops of Mexico. Calles became military commander and provisional Governor of Sonora, and later was elected Governor.

His first decree as Governor was to declare the State "dry," but his supporters describe him as a "liberal prohibitionist." They say his reasons for prohibition in Sonora had to do with local conditions in the mining communities, and that nationally he stands only for reform of the "pulquerias," the low-class saloons of South and Central Mexico.

President Carranza made Calles Secretary of Industry and Commerce. Calles disagreed with Carranza over the "enforcement" of Ygnacio Bonillas as Carranza's successor; he resigned and went back to Sonora, and joined the movement against Carranza which resulted in Huerta's coup d'estat. He became Secretary of War under Huerta, and when Obregon became Chief Executive Calles was made Secretary of the Interior. He retained that portfolio throughout the four years of Obregon's administration, only resigning within the legal limit to permit him to run for the Presidency.

As Secretary of the Interior, Calles was in a position to carry out his policies of agrarian reform and has become the champion of the agrarian movement. He actually carried out the subdivision of some large estates and its distribution to small landholders, according to the program that had been carried over through the Madero and Carranza regimes without any extensive application. His opponents charged a too radical application of these laws, and Flores from the west coast became the champion of the opposition.

When De la Huerta's candidacy resulted in a premature revolution, Calles took the field against the rebels and was made military commander of the northwest. When the revolt was put down he returned to his political campaign.

SIX KILLED IN STORMS

Chicago Is Swept by Strong Gale

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, June 22.—Two men and a boy were killed, several slightly injured and much damage done to property here today by the severest summer storm in a score of years. The intensity of the storm became a hurricane in force and swept over the entire city.

The dead are:

Acting Captain T. F. Murphy of Fire Engine Company No. 72, who was drowned while trying to run through a subway filled with water by the cloudburst.

Michael Shagney, 35 years of age, blown to his death from the eleventh floor of the Illinois Merchants' Trust Building while trying to close a window during the storm.

Steve Barlow, 15, a caddy struck by lightning on the Olympic golf course, west of Chicago Heights.

Without warning the skies suddenly became heavily overcast and the city became as dark as during an eclipse of the sun.

The sudden downpour of rain and lightning drove thousands of persons who were enjoying the beaches and parks to shelter, and in many districts where large crowds were assembled, the thunder and lightning caused temporary panics.

Basements were flooded in all parts of the city.

Chicago's fleet of yachts, returning from the thirty-third annual race of the Columbia Yacht Club to Michigan City, was just heading on the final home stretch late this afternoon when the skies clouded and a hurricane approached furiously.

Twelve of the eighteen entries were able to make port ahead of the gale. The others, scattered over fifty miles of the course, were forced to hurriedly haul in canvas and ride out of the howling storm.

Lives of persons in scores of places throughout the city were endangered by live electric wires which had been torn from the telephone and electric light poles.

At the Hawthorne race track a crowd of 10,000 people were marooned for several hours. All the exits of the race track go through subways which were inundated. Street car service in parts of the city was demoralized, the water flooding the tracks so deep that it was impossible to run the cars.

TRACY (Minn.) June 22.—Three persons dead, a score or more injured, and extensive property damage to more than a hundred farms was the toll of a tornado that swept through sections of four Southwestern Minnesota counties late today.

John Edwards died at a hospital as a result of injuries received when the tornado struck his farm. His wife was seriously injured and two sons and a 2-month's-old baby also received hurts, the extent of which have not been determined.

MAID PLANES ARE WRECKED AT OMAHA

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OMAHA (Neb.) June 22.—Six government air mail planes were wrecked here tonight when a severe wind blew the roof off the hangar, resulting in a cave-in of the walls.

One of the six planes wrecked included that of Jack Knight's famous air pilot, specially designed for night flying and equipped with lights and the new Loening wings, which allow the plane to land in a shorter area.

Air mail service out of Omaha is not immediately hampered, government officials said, although additional planes will have to be rushed from Chicago.

All planes and equipment at the Omaha field were to be moved July 1 to Fort Crook where the new air mail field has been established.

According to Joe Jirasck, government watchman at the field, a terrific gust of wind lifted the great roof of the hangar and carried it into a near-by field. Almost immediately, he said, the walls caved in on the planes, wrecking all but two, which were in remote corners.

DARK HORSES LIE LOW AND PRAY FOR A DEADLOCK

McAdoo Camp Puts Up $50,000 to $20,000 on Smith, Pins Hope on Battle Cry of Bryan

BY KYLE D. PALMER
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 22.—A prolonged tug-of-war in which the unfortunate Democratic donkey will be pulled energetically from opposite ends will ensue as the Democratic National Convention gets down to the business of selecting the party's nominee for President. William G. McAdoo and his followers will pull from the front end, the McAdoo strategists having reached a decision today to band every effort to gain McAdoo's nomination on an early ballot. Gov. Smith and his enthusiasts will pull from the rear, so to speak, being persuaded that the only hope for the nomination of Smith lies in delay and a protracted deadlock.

The decision to speed up the McAdoo drive arises from a conviction that the former Secretary of the Treasury cannot hold his lines intact if he fails to make progress after eight or ten ballots. Many McAdoo delegates are evincing a somewhat disquieting tendency to discuss the possibility of a compromise candidate in the event of a deadlock. This sentiment receives much encouragement not only from the Smith faction but from representatives of a score or more of hopeful favorite sons and the word is being discreetly bandied about that delegates need not worry unduly as to the wherewithal for paying for hotel accommodations and meals.

BET IS PLACED

Gov. Smith's backers today demonstrated very marked confidence in their candidate by putting up $20,000 in real money against a $50,000 pool hurriedly scraped together by California supporters of McAdoo on the wager of the New Yorkers that Smith will be nominated. The odds given by the Californians are the same as quoted by local betting commissioners.

Whether carried away by local pride or a desire to impress incoming delegates with their confidence in the result, the Smith followers have surely mystified those who believe that the New York Governor has no chance for the nomination. The greatest role heretofore conceded to him is that of a possible dictator if the convention should turn both from himself and McAdoo to a compromise candidate.

Encouraged and aided by the tremendous psychological effect of a virtually unanimous "hometown" sentiment for their candidate, the Smith leaders have all the advantage that noise and a friendly gallery can give. Undoubtedly if loud cheers, deafening applause and the hearty good will of every taxi driver, City Hall politician and Tammany retainer could swing the nomination, Al Smith could have it and welcome.

DAVIS IS IN IT

And while the two headliners scheme and prepare for the supreme struggle, the discreet work of building up sentiment for a second choice proceeds smoothly, almost apologetically, with soft and ingratiating words, with malice toward none, even with a kind word of regret that this candidate or that would be unable to get over the top.

The most effective endeavor of this character is being accomplished for John W. Davis of New York. Managers of his campaign make no predictions and advance no claims. They content themselves with a reiteration of the fact that Davis has sixteen pledged votes from his home State of West Virginia and that these votes will be for him from first to last. They also are handing around a copy of an article headed: "His fool friends may make John W. Davis President of the United States." There are a great many callers at the Davis headquarters. They are greeted neither enthusiastically nor coldly, but with a delicacy that charms.

Whether this policy will steer the Davis candidacy safely past Scylla of McAdoo or the Charybdis of Smith remains for a worn but unterrified Democracy to determine. Headquarters for Presidential candidates are scattered all over town — and New York is a big town. Possibly in one of the most

BRYAN WILL SEEK PARTY PEACE PLANK

Democratic Leader Wants Campaign Fund Clause Put Into Platform

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 22.—William Jennings Bryan, on his arrival here today, announced he would attempt to have a peace plank, as well as one relating to campaign contributions written into the Democratic platform. He is undecided, he said, whether to make a fight for a clear-cut declaration for prohibition enforcement, such as he waged four years ago at the San Francisco convention.

Attending the convention as a delegate-at-large from Florida, pledged to McAdoo, Mr. Bryan occupies a suite at the Waldorf-Astoria with his brother, Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, himself a Presidential candidate in the eyes of the Nebraska delegation, which is expected to vote for him at the outset of balloting. The "peace" plank drafted by Mr. Bryan would pledge the Democratic party to utilize "all its energies to the outlawing of war." It declares for participation by the United States "in a court of international justice," but makes no direct reference to the League of Nations.

Mr. Bryan is expected to be Florida's representative on the resolutions committee and in that capacity will offer his planks for incorporation in the platform.

The declaration regarding campaign contributions, Mr. Bryan said, will not be whipped into shape for a day or so. It was indicated he was waiting to see what expression with regard to law enforcement would be favored by the platform builders before determining whether the declaration covered the prohibition question in a way satisfactory to the "dry" element in the party.

Shortly after his arrival, Mr. Bryan called on William G. McAdoo, but declined later to discuss his visit other than to say it was a courtesy call.

Two Men Are Killed by Giant Powder Blast

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

REDDING, June 22.—One man was blown to bits and another thrown 150 yards into the Pit River and killed by the premature explosion of a charge of giant powder just before noon today at the Pit River bridge sixteen miles north of here on the Pacific Highway.

The dead are Fmilio Eanni, 45 years of age, Italian, and Bod Kotlash, 35, Serbian. Both were powder men employed by the Nevada Contracting Company. They were loading explosive to break down the cliff at the end of the bridge, had nine boxes of powder in the hole and were tamping the charge when the explosion occurred. Fragments of Kotlash's body were hurled more than 200 yards.

AVENGE AMERICAN'S DEATH

British Gunboat Orders Shooting of Chinese Junkmen and State Funeral for Victim

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PEKING, June 22.—Under threat that he would bombard the city of Wanhsien, on the Yangtze River in Szechwan Province, the commander of the British gunboat Cockchafer compelled the highest military leaders there to walk to the cemetery in full uniform behind the casket containing the body of Edwin C. Hawley, the American killed there by Chinese junkmen, and to attend the burial services for him.

After the Chinese leaders had made their compulsory demonstration of respect to the murdered American, they carried out the orders of the commander of the Cockchafer to arrest the two leading members of the Junkmen's Guild in Wanhsien, convey them to the spot on the beach where Hawley was beaten and execute them by shooting.

United States Consul Clarence J. Spiker reached Wanhsien from Chungking last Friday and reported to the United States Legation here in a message which reached it today, confirming the death of Hawley, an American, 42 years of age, who has been a resident of China fifteen years. His report, however, gave no further details of the dispute over shipment of wood and oil by steamers instead of junks, which had been reported as occasion for the attack which resulted in the death of Hawley, who was a representative of Arnold Brothers & Co., a British concern.

Consul Spiker said the military authorities at Wanhsien appeared to be thoroughly awed and had given the commander of the Cockchafer and other foreigners assurances that there would be no repititions of the offense.

Rear-Admiral Charles B. McVay, commander of the American patrol on the Yangtse River, is proceeding to Wanhsien in the U.S.S. Isabel, flagship of his river fleet.

M'ADOO FIGHTS BACK AT FOES

Democrat Chieftain Assails New York Papers

Four Hundred Present at Last Summons to Arms

BY ROBERT M. LEE
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 22.—William G. McAdoo replied to his enemies tonight. And while he did this, reasserting his ten points of political progress, he urged his delegates to stand fast. This on the eve of the convention.

His reply to his enemies was such a flaying and grilling as headlines love to report. Newspaper terminology fits well here because it was upon the New York newspapers that Mr. McAdoo chiefly cracked his whips. He said he didn't care personally what the papers said of him but he had regard for the feelings of his delegates. But while he was declaring that the New York papers were not hurting his feelings, he nevertheless cried out upon them with a right good vehemence.

Perhaps political wiseacres might extract out of this convention-eve speech some sort of scurrying around for courage. For Mr. McAdoo bade his delegates to hold firm. He did not say the fight was slipping. He said collective effort was imperative.

CALL TO ARMS

The last-minute call to arms was made in the Della Robbia room of the Vanderbilt Hotel. Some 400 persons attended. William L. O'Connell, Illinois manager for McAdoo, and Maj. John S. Cohan of Atlanta, said they thought the majority of those present were delegates. Judged by the applause, all were for McAdoo. At least it was held as the result of a call for McAdoo delegates and perhaps some of them brought their wives.

Mr. McAdoo was not without phrases of pith and meter to color his speech. "They have told us," he said, "that our fight is impossible. I love," and here he threw a long arm aloft, "I love to tackle the impossible."

Deafening applause under the low ceiling of the Della Robbia now. And, "Nothing is going to happen to me because I am a tough citizen."

Such things as these raised the spirit of the delegates. And they got many laughs as he pricked away at the New York newspapers, first to receive his thrusts.

ATTACKS PAPERS

"I lived in the city for thirty years," he said, somewhat in the way of preface. "Lived here for thirty years and know something about the character of big cities. In recent years I have lived in California. It was supposed that in this great city we would receive hospitality. And we have. The people have been hospitable; the city is thrown open to us. But I cannot say as much for the press. It would have been at least considerate for the newspapers to give each candidate an even chance. I should think that before the convention that would have been the fair thing. And yet the tone of the newspapers has been violently antagonistic."

He was speaking impromptu. He spoke rapidly, turning swiftly from side to side as if a touch of nervousness were uncontrollable. "And it isn't that I care," he went. "I can bear their attacks. But I think that to you delegates who have been determined to follow a certain line of duty there is due decent treatment and the same measure of hospitability that is being accorded to other delegations who are pledged to other candidates. It is our cause that is singled out for the censure of the New York press."

SEEKS COHESION

And then he explained that this rought treatment from the New York press has come to him "even after a leading member of the New York press came to me and asked me if I had any objection to this city as the place of holding the convention."

"I told them," he continued, "that I had no preference to express even though I might have felt kindlier toward our own great land of the West, California. But I was sure of the hospitability of New York. I was somewhat mistaken about the real intentions of her newspapers."

He turned from "bawling out" the press to an appeal for cohesion among his delegates. He said he realized that those present were only a few of the great phalanx that would carry the battle to the convention floor, but nevertheless he urged them to think now of the need for clinging closely together. That this early cohesion may win the battle he illustrated by bringing up the record of the Baltimore convention of 1912 when Woodrow Wilson was first nominated.

"Woodrow Wilson was a poor third in that convention," he said, (Wilson wasn't third; he was second to Champ Clark) "He had on the first ballot only 324 votes. But his friends clung together in spite of the fact that the leading man was 100 votes ahead. They clung for more than forty ballots and in the end won a glorious victory."

Then he paused for breath and fired with: "If you are as devoted to your ideals of a progressive Democracy as were those delegates of 1912 you will again elevate to that high place of power to which Wilson raised them, the tenets of good government and universal understanding."

The room was hot and the crowd industriously shouting. Mr. McAdoo caught the spirit of the rising wave. "If you ladies and gentlemen stick by me," he shouted, "they can't beat us from now till doomsday."

Then Mr. McAdoo rounded out to his prepared speech which set forth his program as follows: (1) rid the government of graft; (2) abolish secret government; (3) repeal the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill; (4) repeal the bad features of the Esch-Cummins bill; (5) help farmers by low freight rates; (6) end our isolation policy; (7) protect our water power; (8) abolish child labor; (9) practice economy; (10) vigorously enforce all laws.

CHINA BOMB ASSASSIN IS FOUND DEAD

Body Discovered in River Linked by Pistol to Fatal Explosion in Hotel

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

CANTON, June 23.—The body of a man believed to be the assassin who hurled a bomb into the Victoria Hotel dining-room Thursday evening, killing seven persons and mortally wounding four others, was found in the Chukiang River Saturday, authorities announced to the Associated Press today.

A revolver of French make was found with the corpse. It contained one unspent bullet.

The fact that the assassin, after bombing the hotel fired wildly at pursuers as he fled, and escaped by leaping into the river, linked the discovery of the corpse with the bomb slayings.

A reception in honor of Gov.-Gen. Merlin of French Indo-China, was being given at the Victoria Hotel when the dining-room was wrecked by the explosion.

City Bids for Sunday School World Session

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

GLASGOW (Scotland) June 22. A committee of the World Sunday School Convention is in direct correspondence with the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce relative to holding the 1928 convention in that city. The sentiment of the committee apparently favors an American city, if satisfactory arrangements can be made. Adelaide, Australia, has extended an invitation for the convention in that year, as well as several other cities.

The Japanese delegates gave a dinner last night in honor of the American members of the executive committee in appreciation of the attitude toward the Japanese. Yesterday, the Americans held a reception for the Japanese delegates as an indication of their regret "at the influences in America tending toward misunderstanding" with Japan.

DAWES REPORT PARLEY IS SET

impressive ceremony commemorating the seventh anniversary of the French victory at Verdun, M. Poincare once more stoutly defended the Ruhr occupation policy as the only means of defense against Germany, which he asserted has refused to carry out the agreement signed before twenty-seven nations in the Versailles Treaty.

"If tomorrow Germany bows to the Dawes experts' plan we will owe the result to the occupation of the Ruhr," declared the former Premier.

"We specified that we would not withdraw from the Ruhr except in accordance with the measure that Germany paid. Any faster evacuation would be the gravest imprudence. Germany would regard it only as an act of weakness and we would find her soon more refractory than ever with the treaty," said M. Poincare.

Regarding Gen. Nivelle's famous order before the battle at Verdun, "You will not let them pass, comrades," M. Poincare said that many foreigners and even some of the blind Frenchmen thought France was indiscreet for recalling the memory of the war horrors committed by the pitiless enemy and instead wished to push forgetful France into the arms of the enemies.

The steely little ex-Premier reviewed eloquently the outstanding events of the Verdun battle and then outlined Germany's various attempts to avoid the payment of reparations.

"The treaty must be executed and peace finally realized," said M. Poincare, adding, "we will not betray the faith of our dead."

Marshal Foch attended the ceremonies. Early this morning he visited the American cemetery at Romagne Mountfaucon.

KANSAS CITY, June 22.—A. Blakely of Arizona planned a surprise yesterday upon his uncle, S. J. Bailey. While being shaved he was told that his uncle was being buried at that moment, having been killed by a kick from a mule.

A COSTLY KNIFE

One of the most costly examples of cutlery ever manufactured, the Norfolk Sportsman's Knife, contains seventy-five blades, many of them ornamented with designs which are considered to be the most perfect ever worked on steel. They include hunting scenes, notable buildings and persons. Thus we have the White House at Washington, Chatsworth House, Arundel Castle, Haddon Hall, Windsor Castle and portraits of Queen Victoria, the Duke of Wellington and others. The handles, which are of Manila pearl, are exquisitely carved, depicting a boar hunt and other scenes. The knife was made by William Bamforth of the firm of Joseph Rodgers & Sons of Sheffield, Eng., two years being spent on its manufacture.

Another wonderful knife, seen in the showrooms of this firm, is the Year Knife, so-called because the number of blades corresponds to the year of our Lord.—[New York World.

GOVERNMENT TO SHOW SURPLUS

Excess for Fiscal Year to be $498,000,000

Deficit Fear for 1925 Now is Held Unfounded

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, June 22. — The government will close its fiscal year on the 30th inst. with an excess of receipts over expenditures for the year of $498,000,000, or about $170,000,000 more than was estimated last fall. In spite of the enactment of soldiers' bonus legislation involving large expenditure the fiscal year 1925 will show an excess of receipts over expenditures of $60,000,000 instead of the huge deficit at one time predicted by the Treasury.

These estimates of surpluses for the fiscal years 1924 and 1925 are made officially for the first time in a statement issued today by Representative Madden, Republican, Illinois, chairman of the House Commitee on Appropriations in reviewing the appropriation record for the recent session of Congress. Representative Madden claims credit for the Republican party in reducing appropriations, taxes and the public debt.

DATA ARE GIVEN

Senator Warren, Republican, Wyoming, chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations in a statement also made public today says that appropriations for the fiscal year, 1925, are approximately $169,000,000 less than for 1924, that the public debt has been reduced between August 31, 1915, and May 31, 1924, by $4,130,626,232.70 and that the excess of receipts over expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, will be "not less than $500,000,000."

Representative Madden and Senator Warren as the two spokesmen on matters of appropriations for the Republicans in House and Senate, paint the picture of the country's financial condition in rosy colors.

The statements by Representative Madden and Senator Warren say that the total appropriations of the recent session for the fiscal year 1925, and for 1924 deficiencies amounted to $3,784,123,324.35. To this sum must be added $186,-$33,288.49 which was carried in the second deficiency bill and $24,-357,767.84 provided under the field service reclassification bill both of which measures failed of final enactment on the last day of the recent session, but are certain of passage as soon as Congress reconvenes.

With these items added the total for the session, both including deficiences of the fiscal year 1924 and regular appropriations for the fiscal year 1925, is $3,997,314,-380.68. The corresponding amount appropriated in the previous year was $4,097,499,197.04. The appropriations of the session, therefore, represent a reduction of $100,-084,816.36 and if the soldiers' bonus bill had not been passed involving expenditure of $132,-000,000 in the fiscal year 1925, the total reduction in appropriations would have been in excess of $232,000,000. Eliminating deficiency appropriations from those made during the recent session and adding them to the regular appropriations for the fiscal year 1924, it is shown that the actual appropriations for the fiscal year 1924, have amounted to $4,013,-109,537.61. Using this sum as the basis the appropriations for the fiscal year 1925, which, when separated from deficiency items amount to $3,824,483,727.03, show a decrease in favor of the fiscal year 1925 of $189,626,110.78.

Appropriations for the coming year represent a decrease of about $10,000,000 below budget estimates.

Representative Madden made his estimate of surpluses for the fiscal year 1924 and 1925 after consultation with Treasury officials and Director of the Budget Lord. The totals are much greater than any thus far announced either by the Treasury or by the Budget Bureau, both of which are reserving their official figures for announcement as the fiscal year comes to a close.

OUTLOOK HOPEFUL

"The financial outlook for the fiscal years 1924 and 1925, which close on the 30th inst., and on June 30, 1925, respectively, is very hopeful," said Mr. Madden. "At the time of the assembling of Congress in December, 1923, it was estimated that receipts of the fiscal year 1924 would exceed expenditures by $328,839,000, and that the receipts for the fiscal year by $695,681,000. Since these estimates were prepared, Congress has passed the tax reduction bill, and also has enacted the soldiers' bonus bill. In the face of the shrinkage in revenue and the added expenditures for next year it appears that 1925 will close with a surplus."

In arriving at an estimate of $498,000 as the excess of receipts over expenditures, for the fiscal year 1924, Mr. Madden figures receipts at $3,995,000,000 and expenditures at $3,497,000,000.

In his estimate for the fiscal year 1925, Mr. Madden figures receipts at $3,614,000,000 and expenditures at $3,554,000,000, or an excess of receipts of $60,000,000.

JAPANESE IN TOKIO ANGRY AT SLAYINGS

Keenest Resentment Flares Up, Subsides Upon News Alien Ban Not Involved

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

TOKIO, June 22.—Evidences of the keenest resentment against America broke out here following the receipt of the news of the slaying of two Japanese near Los Angeles Harbor last week.

With the arrival of more detailed dispatches, however, indicating, in the opinion of government officials, that the murders had no connection with the Japanese-American situation, excitement subsided somewhat.

The news of the slaying was displayed with the greatest prominence in all the newspapers.

Leading "jingo" publications appeared with inflammatory statements against America, prompted by the murders.

Police took special measures for the safety of American residents, owing to the serious proportions the situation assumed, until more complete advices were received.

Officials declared that, in the absence of authoritative reports from official sources, it is unwarranted to connect the murders with the situation arising from passage of the Japanese exclusion measure of the immigration bill by the United States Congress. A majority of government heads and of the press joined in urging self-restraint and patience.

Three Women and Man Hurt in Auto Crash

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN DIEGO, June 22.—Three women and a man were seriously injured in an automobile collision that occurred here this afternoon when two touring cars crashed together. The injured are Mrs. Evangeline Lenhart, San Diego; Miss Louise Patterson, 1266 First street, Los Angeles; Miss Ruth Blackman, Coronado, and Roy G. Farr, Brawley.

According to witnesses the three women and man who were injured were riding in a large car driven by Mrs. Lenhart. In attempting to pass another machine, Mrs. Lenhart swerved out and crashed into a car driven by L. L. Pittman, San Diego. Her own machine overturned three times, crushing and bruising the occupants. Pittman escaped without injury. The four victims of the crash were taken to a hospital where it was said tonight that the three women had a chance for recovery. Farr, who incurred a fractured skull, was still unconscious at 9 o'clock.

Both machines were badly wrecked.

SANE IN DAY, CRAZY IN NIGHT

Philadelphian Must Look at Sun to Know If He Is Competent, by Strange Court Order

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—A gray-haired man, past [illegible] age, each day mounts the wooden stairs of the four-story [illegible] where he has his office, unlocks a door, picks up the mail, sits down in an armchair at a flat-top desk and remarks with a feeling of relief, "sane again."

SANE AND INSANE

Decision of Commission is Awaited in Consolidation of Northern Lines

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ST. PAUL, June 22.—The merger of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington railroads, planned years ago by the late J. J. Hill, now awaits only the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern, said last night.

All testimony in the Interstate Commerce Commission hearings on the consolidation has been completed, final arguments made and all briefs submitted, Mr. Budd said.

Officials of the railroads involved were unable to say what change in the personel of the three railroads would be made, but during the Interstate Commerce Commission hearings it was indicated one set of officers would be favored.

Mr. Budd said that at the public hearings held before the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington and in the Twin Cities that there was practically no testimony against the view that it would be in the public interest to preserve the existing relations between these properties or against the proposal that the consolidation plan to be adopted by the commission should provide for putting these properties in the same system.

The plan to merge the three big railroads, which the late J. J. Hill found impossible to carry out because of adverse legislation, was discussed four years ago in connection with the plans to refinance a large amount of bonds of the Burlington Railroad which fell due in 1921.

This financing was accomplished by issuance for sale of $250,000,-000 of joint fifteen-year 6½ per cent gold bonds, secured by 97 per cent of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific's Burlington stock plus $66,000,000 of mortgage bonds of the two companies.

WILL FIGHT LEAGUE AND WET PLANKS

Taggart Says Democrats Should Voice Opposition to Ku Klux Klan

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 22.—Thomas Taggart, Democratic national committeeman from Indiana, came out with a declaration tonight "that the League of Nations should not be written this year into the Democratic party platform.

"Four years ago," said Mr. Taggart, "I thought the League of Nations was the greatest thing on earth, but I do not feel at this time that the party should write the league into its platform."

Mr. Taggart indicated that a wet plank would not be incorporated in the platform.

"I think we are wet enough now, as it is," said Mr. Haggart, who admitted that "he was personally wet and politically dry."

Mr. Taggart is strongly of the opinion that the platform should have a strong plank in opposition to the Ku Klux Klan, but without specifically naming that organization.

GEN. E. E. WOOD DIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WESTCHESTER (N. Y.) June 22.—Gen. E. E. Wood, retired, many years an instructor at the West Point Military Academy, was found dead last night in the bathroom of his home here. Death was due to a heart attack. Gen. Wood saw service in the Spanish-American Wars.

POWER

You live in an age of power! There is horse power, hydraulic power, electric power and man power. What is man power? It is vital power—and more. It is freedom of vital power to act. If you would have full mental power or physical power or both, the vital power within your body must be free to act—to express itself.

We find that practically the only point of interference with the transmission of vital power is at the spine. If you have stomach trouble, there will be found a segment of the spine out of normal position, pressing on the nerve and preventing a normal flow of vital power to the stomach. So it is with other parts of the body.

CAN THIS VITAL POWER BE RELEASED? YES! THAT IS EXACTLY THE AIM OF CHIROPRACTIC. CHIROPRACTIC IS THE SCIENCE THAT RELEASES THAT VITAL POWER BY RELEASING THE PRESSURE ON THE NERVES AT THE SPINE.

How About Your Spine?

The picture at the right shows how bad a spine may become if not taken care of in time. Here is the case of a man who had a slight displacement (weak spot) in his spine. He had a bad fall and the "weak spot" gave way to such an extent that he became paralyzed from the waist down. Note how badly out of the straight line position the vertebrae are. Fortunately, chiropractic adjustments restored the use of his limbs.

BRYAN AND MAC

Williams Jennings Bryan, who heads the McAdoo-pledged delegation from Florida, conferred with McAdoo today. That conference, concerning which nothing important is given out, may prove of great significance as the convention progresses. For it more and more appears that the McAdoo camp is relying upon Bryan for heroic support.

The hostility of Bryan to McAdoo's candidacy in 1920 is said to have disappeared. The commoner, who has little to say upon the subject himself, is quoted by some of the McAdoo people as asserting that McAdoo is the greatest hope of the Democratic party. McAdoo has been able, it is said, to persuade Mr. Bryan that he is both dry enough and progressive enough to receive the Bryan stamp of approval.

When the fact is pointed out to the McAdoo worker that Smith and a few other favorite son candidates appear to have more than sufficient strength to block McAdoo's nomination under the two-thirds rule, this sort of rejoinder generally follows:

"Suppose, after ten or twelve ballots, McAdoo gets considerably more than a majority, say 600 or thereabouts. Suppose he holds that strength for a few ballots. Suppose the deadlock appears interminable. Suppose, then, just suppose, that William Jennings Bryan arises and makes an inspired appeal for McAdoo and success in November. In such suppositions many well-wishers of Mr. McAdoo appear to indulge with almost ecstatic enjoyment.

DELEGATES DUE

The main body of the California delegation will arrive here tomorrow morning by special train. Arrangements have been made for a parade down Fifth avenue to the Vanderbuilt Hotel where McAdoo will deliver a brief address of welcome to his California "neighbors and friends." An immediate caucus will be held and if no fight within the delegation develops on a proposal to elect Isadore B. Dockweiler of Los Angeles as Democratic National Committeeman from California, this important piece of work will be accomplished at once and the delegation will be hurried into the fray.

However, if the fight on Dockweiler, begun by a few of his party antagonists in Southern California, threatens delegation harmony, election of a committeeman will be deferred until the Presidential nominee has been chosen.

VAMPING PROCESS FOR SMITH IS SUBTLE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 22.—Supporters of Gov. Al Smith of New York, firm in the belief that "McAdoo is stopped," now are applying a policy of genial penetration into the ranks of the incoming Democracy.

Without guile, of course, but with devastating art, they are trying to permeate the delegations as they arrive with a sense of the great popularity of the Governor in his home town and the respect he commands from all circles, highbrows and lowbrows alike. Not that anybody is asking anybody to break any pledges; nothing like that.

But it looks like one of the greatest vamping operations, perhaps, in all political history. And the whole city seems to have joyously declared itself in on the performance. Everywhere one turns—to snag a bite of lunch, to buy a cigar, to get a soda or a shoe shine everywhere he is given a neat earful about what a wonderful man is Gov. Smith and what a great figure he would cut at the head of the ticket. Everybody is putting in a plug for the Governor.

CAUSES DISQUIET

In some of the other camps, the large scale vamping process seems to be causing disquiet not to say consternation. It is swelled, too, by the crowded condition of the Smith headquarters. While some of the quarters are more or less deserted save for delegates resting their feet, the Smith suit is packing them in with squads of greeters, men and women, out in the corridors offering the glad hand.

As western delegations began to arrive this afternoon there was a notable pilgrimage toward the Prudence Building, where Gov. Smith holds forth and to the Biltmore Hotel near by where he is stopping during the convention time. Upon his return from a swim in the ocean the Governor was met by crowds of visitors, mostly with badges of western States, anxious to look him over.

He held an impromptu reception right on the street, shook hands until his fingers must have ached, smiled and talked with all comers, a word for each and it was a snappy remark about the weather or "glad to meetcha," stuff.

The reaction on the delegates was typified in a remark from an Iowa delegate. He's a wonderful guy, isn't he?"

MUCH CURIOSITY

There is probably more curiosity among the delegates concerning Gov. Smith, his personality and his career than about any other figure at this convention. Of course, it may not mean the delegates will nominate him, but as they arrive, most of them seem to be keen on seeing Smith. They've heard about the Fulton Fish Market where the Governor worked as a boy and about the neighborhood almost under the Brooklyn Bridge where he was born and several parties, out on a sight-seeing trip, made it a point of covering these points on their routes.

In his real headquarters in the Prudence Building, Forty-third street and Madison avenue, the Governor in late afternoon met some forty newspaper writers and a dozen flashlight photographers.

OKLAHOMA DID IT

"Oklahoma delegates up to see me," said Smith. "When they shake hands they mean it."

At the Waldorf-Astoria, gossip was that the Smith Supporters, with a view to showing that McAdoo is perhaps strengthened more by the unit rule, will arrange when the voting starts, to have polls in the State delegations where McAdoo has a narrow margin, such as Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee. For instance when Iowa's twenty-six votes are cast for McAdoo, a poll of the delegates might show McAdoo with, say, fourteen and Smith with twelve. The poll would not change the vote, but it would suffice to show how individual delegates stand, and it might help eventually in the vamping.

What It Deserved

The artist was proud of his latest canvas; it was a futuristic painting, supposed to represent a Dutch landscape.

He made arrangements to exhibit it in the art museum and beneath it hung a printed notice bearing the words, "Do not touch with cane or umbrella."

When he went to get back his painting he found that some one had added to the sign the following postscript: "Take an ax."—[Unidentified.

Disguised

"Who is that coming up the path?" asked Farmer Fumblegate.

"Why, that's our hired man, Lum Pucker," replied Mrs. Fumblegate. "What is the matter with your eyes; are they failing?"

"No, but I don't recollect ever having seen him before when he didn't have his hands concealed in his britches pockets."—[Kansas City Star.

SPEED IS M'ADOO SLOGAN

Candidate Must Strike Early for Nomination or Boom Will Fail, Wise Ones Say

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 22.—McAdoo will make a strike for the nomination as early as possible in the Democratic National Convention. His managers are making a drive to expedite balloting on the theory that speed is the salvation of the McAdoo boom and that delay advocated by Smith and other candidates will jeopardize chances of the candidate who hails from California.

Confidential statements by the McAdoo managers indicate that he must go over on the early ballots or fail. Smith is regarded as out of the race, though the New York World in the morning issue tomorrow will champion his nomination.

A poll made tonight by the Detroit News showed that seventeen delegates of the thirty-six of Michigan were adverse to McAdoo, two were undecided and the other thirteen would support McAdoo. Reports were circulated that the unit rule would hold the solid vote of California to McAdoo until his case was proved hopeless, but that four or five of the delegates would be glad of the opportunity to get away from the bonds which hold them to McAdoo. The McAdoo managers also intimated that a tentative agreement with Tom Taggart of Indiana had been reached whereby when Ralston, his candidate of first choice, is eliminated, he would line up with the McAdoo forces. No confirmation of this could be obtained from Mr. Taggart or his representatives

TO MAKE STATEMENT

A statement is expected to be made tomorrow by Col. Callahan, who handled the overseas financing of the Knights of Columbus and who is an ardent Catholic, whose home is in Louisville, to the effect that McAdoo is not connected in any way with the Ku Klux Klan and in this statement the McAdoo forces look for reason for comfort. They are looking for speed all the time while all the other factors here are taking the opposite stand and are seeking delay of every kind.

Veteran leaders of national conventions of both parties who have been making a survey of the situation in New York for the last few days are of the opinion that the McAdoo cyclone must be sudden and on the first ten ballots if it succeeds at all, but that Smith and McAdoo are out of it. Some of the brainiest and most astute political leaders of the party are holding quiet conferences in the interest of John W. Davis and are doing all they can to stem his increasing popularity. He seems to be the second choice of most of the State delegations, and is one man who has not engendered bad feeling in the minds of the delegates friendly to other candidates Davis occupies here much the same place that Senator Harding did in the 1920 convention at Chicago when he was the one man who attracted the friends of all other candidates as second choice.

SHOW REAL STRENGTH

In spite of the activities of other dark horses and rival candidates of which there are more than a score, Davis shows more real strength than at any time since the Democrats began assembling here. The problem of his friends and advisers is to keep him in the background as an impartial and friendly center upon which all the friends of the other candidates can agree without sacrifice of prestige, and where no malice or contest has to be removed to permit a new alignment.

BAKER MAY FIGHT AIDE OF McADOO

Former Secretary of War Seen as Best Candidate to Oppose Cummings

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 22.—Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, may be drafted tomorrow morning on his arrival in New York to lead the fight of the anti-McAdoo forces against the election of Homer Cummings of Connecticut as chairman of the committee on resolutions.

The combine of the field against McAdoo having come to the belief that they have the Californian stopped, now will seek to take the convention plums away from him and keep his men out of strategic positions. Mr. Baker has been chosen as the ideal candidate for this race, but has given no indication that he will accept.

The importance of the platform committee is being emphasized as never before. Its deliberations will show which way the wind is blowing and may eliminate one of the major candidates.

Mr. Baker is coming to New York as an out and out advocate of the Wilson League of Nations. As he has this battle on his hands and has been listed in the books as a possible compromise candidate himself, he may refuse to take on this fight against McAdoo.

The anti-Klan element today believe that they have a clear majority in favor of adopting a plank making a specific onslaught against the Knights of the Flaming Cross.

This fight is expected to be carried to the convention floor and to furnish one of the most spectacular incidents of the convention.

OBREGON TELLS OF RAIL WORK

BY JACK STARR-BUNT
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, June 22.—Progress being made by the Southern Pacific Railway of Mexico in its construction of the connecting rail link between Tepic and La Quemada was the first matter on which President Obregon publicly expressed himself yesterday on his return from an extensive tour of the West Coast of Mexico. Armed with figures, facts and details, gathered on a horseback trip over a portion of the new line, the President discussed the construction work in a manner which indicates that he possesses a thorough understanding of both the work and the possibilities which will be opened with its completion.

The importance of the line which will give the West Coast a rail outlet for the first time since the line was destroyed during the revolution several years ago, was enlarged upon in the interview.

The President said he found the West Coast States of Sinaloa and Sonora in prosperous condition with agricultural developments progressing on a large scale, and predicted greater prosperity and progress for the entire region.

Questioned on loan prospects from New York bankers, President Obregon stated that he has not yet received an official report from Finance Minister Pani but that "it is understood that the finance ministry has called off negotiations as conditions imposed were indecorous for Mexico to accept." He declared that Mexico at present has sufficient income soon to balance the budget and that a general readjustment of finances and the reduction of the Army gradually are normalizing the financial situation.

In reference to the El Aguila Oil Company's strike, the President said that even the owners admit the demands of the workers so far have been kept within the law and expressed the belief that if a breaking of the existing deadlock is not arranged, it is because the Oil Association opposes settlement.

Parents Offer Son Mere Ford; He Kills Self

GREENE (Iowa) June 22.—Angered because his parents offered to give him a Ford instead of a high-priced car he had chosen, Carl Barth swallowed poison and died about an hour later.

His relatives believed he was attempting to frighten them with a bluff at suicide, as there never had been any poison in the house, hence there was delay in remedial measures.

MONKEY LIVES WITH PIGS, RIDES 'EM

REPUBLIC (Kan.)—In the pigsty of W. H. McClure, farmer, near here, lives a monkey, "Jock," a diminutive member of the tribe of tree-jumpers, who wandered aimlessly into this town three years ago and attached himself to a pen of chickens owned by a local fancier. Here his presence caused too much of a stir.

Chanticleers of the flock resented his usurpation of their leadership, and noisy, befeathered battles followed, until the owner was forced to drive the monkey away. By a queer quirk of fate, as "Jock" jumped before the shooing of the poultryman, McClure drove past the house with a wagonload of hogs.

"Jock" swung aboard the wagon and settled comfortably on the back of a fat hog. Dislodged, he leaped to the driver's seat, and from there to the backs of the team. A runaway followed.

When the hogs had been herded together and placed in their pen following the upheaval, "Jock" was seeking assimilation. Since that day three years ago the monkey has been a regular inhabitant of the pigsty. In that time numerous families of pigs have grown to hoghood under "Jock's" guiding care and have become expert "saddle hogs," with the monkey as chief jockey.

At night "Jock" sleeps between two of the hogs. At mealtime he selects portions of the feed that appeal to him and eats them from a vantage point astride the back of one of his adopted brothers.

DEMOCRATS LAY MEETING PLANS

Convention Officials Arrange Three-Day Program

Events to Determine Course When Schedule Ends

Prolonged Sessions Expected in Party Gathering

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 22.—Recognizing the probability of prolonged sessions, the Democratic National Convention managers have arranged only a tentative program for the first three days. These arrangements will carry the machinery of the convention past the adoption of the platform and to the beginning of the nominations for President. After that the program will be dictated by events.

The plan is to hear the nominating speeches for President while the platform committee is working; then to adopt the platform and then proceed to balloting for nominations.

Invocation by Cardinal Hayes.

Official photograph.

Brief address by Chairman Hull.

Recommendations for temporary officers and their election.

A committee will escort Senator Harrison, temporary chairman, to the platform.

TO VOTE ON SPEECH

At this point Chairman Hull expects to ask the convention whether it desires Senator Harrison to deliver his address or take a recess until night.

Should the address be postponed Chairman Hull expects the convention to proceed with organization by the adoption of rules and the reference of resolutions to the committee on platform and resolutions. Should the convention insist upon the speech being delivered immediately the organization will follow the speech.

Adoption of a resolution providing for the organization of committees on resolutions, credentials, permanent organization, rules and order of business, to notify nominee for President, to notify nominee for Vice-President and statement of time and place of meetings.

Transaction of sundry miscellaneous business.

Adjournment.

Second day: Convention called to order by Senator Harrison.

Prayer.

Report of committee on credentials.

WALSH ADDRESS

Address by the permanent chairman, Senator Walsh of Montana.

Report of committee on rules and order of business.

Adoption of rule limiting nominating speeches for President to twenty minutes and seconding speeches to five minutes, and limiting latter to three in number, also limiting speeches for Vice-President to ten minutes for each nominee and seconding speeches to five minutes and not to exceed two in number.

Adoption of rule recognizing and enforcing unit rule in the delegations of those States which have adopted such a rule of their State conventions.

Resolution of thanks to New York City.

Resolution authorizing Democratic National Committee to fix the time and place for holding the next national convention.

Resolution providing for the organization of the national committee.

Adjournment.

Third day—Convention called to order by Senator Walsh.

Prayer.

CALL OF STATES

Call of States for candidates for Presidential nominee.

After nominating speeches have been made the convention will proceed to the adoption of a platform.

From this point the program is indefinite. It seems probable that all the nominating speeches in prospect may not be delivered in one day; or a night session may be decided upon. After nominating speeches have been disposed of the adoption of the platform becomes the order of business, and if there be a contest from the floor on any of the planks, as now seem probable, consideration of the platform may consume the sessions of an entire day and night.

The platform out of the way, the convention will proceed to balloting for the Presidential nominee. Estimates of the number of ballots which will be taken, if an agreement is reached, run all the way from ten to fifty.

FOREIGN TRADE DROPS IN CHINA

But Business Is Not Bad for Native Merchants

Orientals Are Getting Close Grip on Exports

Rug Industry Growing Under Domestic Control

BY D. C. BESS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SHANGHAI, June 22.—There has been much discussion in the foreign language papers of China recently about the deplorable state of business in China, particularly of British business. This state of affairs is laid to several probable causes—bandits, militarists in China, a weak central government, growth of an asserted antiforeign movement, the silver standard and unsettled world conditions.

But I had a talk the other day with a prominent Chinese business man who had a different point of view.

"I suppose business is bad for you as well as for most other people?" I suggested.

"No, business is not bad for me," he replied.

"How have you escaped the general depression?" I asked.

"Business is not bad in China—for the Chinese," was the answer.

CHINESE STEP IN

Well-informed American observers admit there is much truth in the explanation. They say that during the last two or three years the Chinese industrial leaders quietly have been taking over as much of China's business with foreign countries as has been possible. They have been cutting in heavily on the business of foreign import and export firms by dealing directly with principals in America and Europe. And they have been developing with surprising rapidity factories to supply the demand for goods previously made in Japan and other countries.

An example of the new Chinese enterprise along modern industrial lines is the city of Wusih with its population of about 300,000 persons. A few years ago Wusih was industrially of small consequence. It was located on the Shanghai-Nanking Railroad and was connected by waterways with Shanghai and its surrounding territory. But it was almost entirely undeveloped as a trade center. Today Wusih has surpassed all other cities in the Province as an industrial center. And the interesting fact to note is that this development has been made almost entirely with Chinese capital and under Chinese supervision—with foreign expert advice.

As a Chinese-developed city, Wusih is one of the most interesting places in China today. Among the enterprises already in operation are fourteen modern steam silk filatures, eleven modern rice mills, five large flour mills, three cotton mills, and two large cotton seed and bean oil mills. Many other factories are under construction or are being planned.

RUG INDUSTRY GROWS

One of the few large industries in China not affected by the recent depression is the rug industry—and that line of business has been developed almost entirely by the Chinese. It is true the rug industry has been built on the large foreign demand during the war. But that demand has been cultivated assiduously since the war. The Tien-tsin Chinese Chamber of Commerce reports there are more than 400 rug factories in that port. In Peking there are about 2000. It is estimated about 100 factories are operating in Shanghai. Approximately 100,000 rugs were exported from Tien-tsin last year, an increase from 11,940 in 1913. The Shanghai rug industry is virtually post-war development.

For centuries the Chinese have made rugs in the home for domestic use. Few were made for sale until 1900, when a German exporter sent some rugs to Germany, where they were enthusiastically received. Chinese rugs were displayed at the St. Louis exposition in 1903, and an American demand was created at once. The great impetus came to the industry during the war, when the rug supply from the Near East was cut off.

Chinese rugs are made from Chinese wool and with Chinese dyes. The best wool comes from Mongolia, and the dyes are prepared by native craftsmen—Chinese vegetable indigo, gambooge, sapan wood, red lead, verdigris, lamp black and vermilion. Thus this industry—now an outstanding phase of China's foreign trade—is entirely indigenous.

It is a well-attested fact that politics and trade in China are not so intimately associated as in America and Europe. The foreigner, speaking of "business," of course means "foreign trade." But to the Chinese domestic trade is naturally more important. In this sense, business in China certainly is not bad. And the Chinese merchant, successful in domestic trade, is certainly turning his attention with growing success to trade with foreign nations.

Oklahoma Delegates to Conference to Support North-South Union

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 22.—Union of the north and south branches of Methodism is favored by 99 per cent of the pastors in the two annual conferences of the south branch in Oklahoma, and it is said that all clerical and lay delegates to the extraordinary session of the general conference of the church, to be conducted July 2, next, at Chattanooga, Tenn., are pledged to support a unification program. A majority of them, if not all, is ready to support the plan adopted recently by the General Conference of the Methodist Church at Springfield.

The subject of jurisdictions has been satisfactorily worked out by the North Church, according to the Rev. J. C. Peterson, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, at Mangum. The two great subdivisions do not lose their identity.

Hundreds of church buildings in Oklahoma will be abandoned if the plan is adopted. In a majority of places the North Church buildings will be abandoned because of the preponderance of Southern Church membership.

HEAT WAVE BLAMED FOR TWO SUICIDES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DES MOINES (Iowa) June 22. The hot weather is believed to have driven two persons in the vicinity of Cedar Rapids to end their lives. Vaclav Heran, 55 years of age, a farmer living near Solon, hanged himself in his barn. He had been complaining of intense heat, relatives said. Mrs. Lewis Walters, 40 years of age, hanged herself at her home at Chelsea. Neighbors think she was driven insane by the heat. The temperature was 100 there yesterday.

THREE FOUND KILLED IN FAMILY TRAGEDY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BISMARCK (Mo.) June 22.—George Pressly, 35 years of age, his wife and their 3-year-old son were found dead and a 4-year-old daughter seriously wounded in the Pressley farm home in the thinly settled hill section west of here in Iron county last night by officers who went there to arrest Pressley after he was asserted to have shot his mother-in-law in a family quarrel.

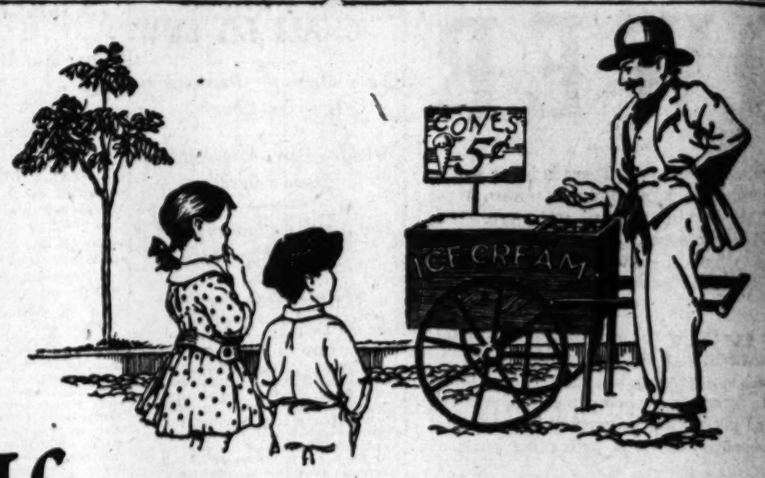
PAYS $18 TO SING TO FIANCEE BY PHONE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KANSAS CITY, June 22.—The old-fashioned troubador who strummed a light guitar beneath his sweetheart's window of moonlight nights was put in the shade by a Junction City, Kan. youth, who recently paid $18 for the privilege of singing a lullaby over the telephone to his sweetheart who is visiting in a western city.

CASH GIFT FOR MASONS

DES MOINES (Iowa) June 22. Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M. of Iowa has announced a gift of $100,000 by Mrs. Frank L. Blair of Ormond, Fla., to the Masonic Charitable Educational Corporation of Iowa. This gift honors the memory of Mrs. Blair's father, the late Charles Linderman of Clarinda, and is to be known as the "Charles Linderman Memorial Fund." It is created as a public charitable trust for the education of needy children of master Masons.



"If it didn't cost so much..."

THE idea that Trust Company fees are large is wrong. They are decidedly moderate. In comparison with the value of its work and the protection it affords as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, the cost is almost negligible.

Administration fees are fixed by law. The law deems the settlement of an estate of certain size worth just so much money. This is the same whether a Trust Company, skilled in such work, or an individual, who may be dangerously inexperienced, performs the service. The Trust Company receives that much—and no more. Every cost may be clearly outlined before the service is retained.

Trustee fees are fixed by mutual agreement. They rarely exceed three-quarters of one percent of the principal annually. Thus the annual fee on a $100,000.00 trust is not more than $750.00, while the income is equal to that of stable investments at current rates. You could not hire a bookkeeper for that. Yet it will secure the services of an entire organization of trust experts.

The Trust Company effects many economies. It is allowed no personal expense account. It always furnishes ample security but never at the expense of the estate, as is the case with an individual's bond. Its experience prevents costly errors. It understands how to secure every proper deduction and exemption and how to eliminate delays. It often refinances matured obligations and advances funds to prevent sacrifice of assets for temporary demands.

Such savings often more than offset its total charges.

Officers of these Trust Companies will gladly give you, without obligation, an estimate of the cost of any Trust service in which you may be interested.

EL PASO BEES BOOTLEGGERS

Forced to Smuggle Nectar Across Border

Formerly Made Haven of Alfalfa Fields

Now Destroyed, They Fly to Mexico Mesquite Groves

BY NORMAN WALKER
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL PASO (Tex.) June 22.—Even the bees are bootleggers on the Mexican border. Millions of honey bees cross the international border here daily to return to the American side with a supply of contraband nectar which they cache in the El Paso Valley.

These bee bootleggers fell into bad habits of smuggling because of the big cotton crop which is grown in the El Paso Valley each year. In the past this valley has produced alfalfa as its staple crop. Alfalfa is the ham-and-eggs of the honey bee's daily diet. They flew to all parts of the valley, sipping the alfalfa nectar which they carried back to their hives against the mild winters in the Southwest. Alfalfa honey is premium honey on the market and the farmers of the valley made nice s... eggs from their honey crop as a result.

Then came the cotton farmers from East Texas and Louisiana. They promised the landowners and tenant farmers big returns if they would plow under their alfalfa and plant the fertile, irrigated land to cotton. And they made good in the valley last year by producing a bumper cotton crop which sold at a premium on the cotton market. Result: everyone is planting cotton this year and a crop of 70,000 bales is expected.

Which leaves Mr. Honey Bee out of a place to feed. With the passing of the alfalfa fields his favorite diet is missing this year and he must fish or cut bait for something to eat and to save up against a rainy day in a land where it rarely rains. So an exploration committee was appointed, by the bee chamber of commerce in the El Paso Valley and a general survey made of the surrounding country with a view to getting feeding grounds for the busy little bees.

Violating all neutrality laws and international covenants against crossing the Mexican border except at a designated port, the bees went exploring in the Juarez Valley, opposite the El Paso Valley, and discovered some mesquite bushes which bear fragrant and sweet flowers. The bees returned and reported their discovery with the result that most of the bees in the El Paso Valley now fly to Mexico each morning to return in the evening loaded down with bootleg honey to store in their hives.

Old bee growers declare that the mesquite honey is stronger and not so finely flavored as the alfalfa honey which the bees produced in this valley when alfalfa was grown in quantities. Necessity is the mother of more than invention for the bees have spread the information about the Mexican mesquite bushes, i... the bosques on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, and these groves are now rich feeding grounds for the little insects. The only complaint of the Mexican invasion which the bee owners in this valley have is the fact that the bees have to cover so much distance to get their supplies of honey.

There are 11,000 stands of bees in the El Paso Valley and each stand is estimated to produce fifty pounds, or a total of 550,000 pounds of honey. The bee must make thousands of trips for a pound of honey and the distance of the mesquite groves keeps him pretty busy.

DOUG, MARY GREETED IN STOCKHOLM

Great Throng Turns Out to Welcome Film Stars to Swedish Capital

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

STOCKHOLM, June 22.—The central station in Stockholm was surrounded with immense crowds which taxed to the utmost the police reserves called out to maintain order when Douglas Fairbanks and his wife, Mary Pickford, and party arrived here after an overnight trip from Copenhagen.

The crowds gave the picture stars a greeting hitherto reserved for royalty and nearly wrecked their car as they drove off to their hotel. Both stars were charmed with Stockholm in summertime with the numerous streets of blossoming trees. They breakfasted in the open-air veranda of their hotel in sight of thousands.

Later they lunched with American Minister Bliss at his villa. Tomorrow they will make a tour of the near-by islands, enjoying the famous bathing and boating of the Swedish capital.

On Monday before departing for Christiania they will visit Raisunda, Sweden's Hollywood, which is owned by Krueger, head of the Swedish Match Company.

Douglas declared this morning that he would buy Swedish green marble for his California home while Mary is enthusiastic over the huge Swedish lilacs and will try to transplant them in California.

Racing Ostrich 'Black Diamond' Dies in Battle

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

HOT SPRINGS (Ark.) June 22. "Black Diamond," famous ostrich, is dead. The passing of the noted bird recalls the memorable event at Greenville, O., seventeen years ago, when "Black Diamond" sprinted a half mile in 1:06, setting an American record which still stands.

"Black Diamond" was killed in a fight with six other birds at the farm of Tom J. Cockburn, near here. So fierce was the struggle that the heavy fence about the enclosure in which the ostriches were confined was splintered in several places.

Attendants had difficulty in quelling the riot and peace was restored only after "Black Diamond" lay mortally wounded.

"Black Diamond" was 50 years of age. He raced on many tracks from California to New England during a period of fifteen years, and he never was defeated.

Planes Carrying Weight Set Two World's Records

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) June 22.—Two world's record for weight carrying during airplane flights were declared to have been made here yesterday afternoon by Lieuts. John A. Macready and Harold R. Harris, participants in an air carnival staged as a part of a Kentucky "home-coming" celebration.

Lieut. Macready, flying an eight-passenger Army transport plane carrying 551 pounds, remained in the air seven hours and twenty minutes. This feat, observers said, set a new record for that type of machine. The pilot was forced down by a leaking radiator.

Flying a Martin bomber with a cargo of 1102 pounds, including a passenger, Lieut. Harris remained in the air seven hours, twenty-nine minutes. The former record, also made by Lieut. Harris, at Dayton the 5th inst., was two hours twelve minutes.

JAPAN HITS CHINA RADIO PLAN AGAIN

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PEKING, June 22.—Further representations against the signing of the Chinese government of the bonds of the Federal Telegraph Company have been made to the Foreign Office by the Japanese Legation here, according to a statement by the Foreign Office.

The Japanese protest, said the statement, was based on grounds similar to those set forth in previous representations, which argued that the contract with the Federal Telegraph Company constitutes an infringement of the agreement with the Mitsui Company of Japan, which, the protest said, carried a monopoly for wireless construction in China for thirty years.

Announcement was made last August by Richard P. Schwerin, president of the Federal Telegraph Company, that his company, in conjunction with the Radio Corporation of America, had signed an agreement with the Chinese government permitting immediate construction of five powerful wireless stations in China which would establish direct communication between the United States and China.

KING SEEKS AN OPENING IN BUSINESS

Ousted Greek Monarch Off to Paris to Add to Depleted Fortune

RAYMOND FENDRICK
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BUCHAREST, June 22. — King George and Queen Elizabeth of Greece are leaving Bucharest on Saturday for Paris.

The King is almost broke, and he would like to find a business career compatible with his dignity in either Paris or London, but Queen Elizabeth is going to Evian to take the cure.

He has a fortune of less than $100,000, and he, Queen Elizabeth, their aides and ladies in waiting, cannot live upon the interest of this money. He also helps to support some of the exiled Greek royalists.

When the Greek government offered to pay him for all his estate in return for his abdication, the King was willing to accept but his mother-in-law, Queen Marie of Roumania, would not let him on account of the family prestige. The estates have now been confiscated. His mother, Queen Sophie of Hohenzollern, inherited a large fortune from King Constantine, but she is very close with it.

FAMOUS SEA VAGABOND IS LOST AGAIN

Argosy of Treasure-seekers Overdue at San Francisco Seventy-four Days

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Famous argosy of a band of adventurers in a voyage to the islands of the South Pacific, the former whaling bark Narwhal again is reported lost at sea.

The ship has not been seen or heard from since leaving Noumea, New Caledonia, February 5, last, for San Francisco—normally a voyage of sixty-five days, making her seventy-four days overdue.

Local shipping men expressed fear today that the three-masted nomad of the Seven Seas, has at last fallen a victim of storms or reefs, after an adventurous career in which the vessel gained wide publicity when she was reported lost with a crew of "landlubbers" seeking adventure. With Capt. Arey and one mate as the only trained seamen aboard the Narwhal sailed for the South Seas, carrying business and professional men on a "treasure hunt."

Storms battered the old whaler. Trouble ensued among the voyagers and after a long period at sea during which hope for the vessel's safety was abandoned, the ship put into Sydney, Australia. The expedition disbanded.

The Narwhal took on a cargo and set sail for the United States. Capt. Arey apparently is still in command, but it is not known whether any of the band of adventurers remains on the craft.

Don't Starve to Reduce Fat

Why spend the rest of your life counting calories and denying yourself proper nourishment, when you can reduce in a safe, natural manner without dieting, exercise or inconvenience?

If you are overweight the chances are that the little gland which Nature implanted in your body to regulate the fat-building process is dormant and inactive. Like an automobile with a defective carburetor, your system is getting too rich a mixture. This fault is generally due, not to diet, but to the organic weakness which allows an abnormal proportion of the food to turn into fat.

Vitane Obesity Tablets produce a healthful stimulation of the gland that controls fat, thereby aiding it to function properly. As its activity increases your weight should gradually reduce until all useless fat has vanished. Procure a $1 bottle of Vitane Obesity Tablets from the Owl and Sun Drug Stores and any reliable druggist. Follow the simple directions and you will be amazed at the quick results. A. O. GRAIN MERGER SURVEY BEGUN

Plan for Elevator Control in Committee's Hands

Scheme Termed Feasible by Armour Company Head

Approval of Government is Believed Assured

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, June 22.—A plan for grain farmers to own and control a huge system of elevators and grain facilities now controlled by five large Board of Trade firms, which would be merged in a co-operative association, today was in the hands of a committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation headed by O. E. Bradfute, president of the federation, as chairman of the committee.

The merger plan would involve about $25,000,000, it was said, representing the appraised value of the properties of the five companies.

The plan was indorsed by George Marcy, president of the Armour Grain Company, who said he believed it would go through.

Although the firm of James A. Patten, known as the "wheat king" until he retired from operation on the Board of Trade, was mentioned in an announcement from the Farm Bureau Federation late yesterday, Mr. Patten today said he had had no connection with the merger arrangement. He explained that his company leased its elevators from the Bartlett and Frazier estates, which he said might be willing to sell their properties at a good price but that nothing definite had been done toward their disposal.

John Callan O'Loughlin, spokesman for Emanuel F. Rosenbaum of the Rosenbaum Grain Corporation, said that approval by the government of such a plan as was proposed was already indicated by the Capper-Volstead Act and similar Federal legislation. He added that the Department of Agriculture was on record as encouraging co-operatives. Mr. O'Loughlin said he would confer with Farm Bureau representatives in Washington.

MEET WITHIN WEEK

The special committee of the Farm Bureau Federation, of which President Bradfute is chairman, appointed to study the co-operative merger plan, probably will meet within a week, it was announced. "Although the Farm Bureau is making a study of the possibilities of utilizing the services of these firms co-operatively, other farm organizations also are considering the advantages which may be derived from the move," said President Bradfute in a statement. "We are seeking, as we have for years, a shorter channel between the producer of grain and the ultimate consumer. We feel that the resources of these large companies may be so utilized, if controlled by the farmers themselves, as to result in many economies in overhead, operation and in various ways cut the cost of merchandising grain.

"We now market two-thirds of the entire tobacco crop through co-operative channels; 90 per cent of the California raisins; 85 per cent of the prunes, and 80 per cent of the peaches and apricots. Approximately 50 per cent of the entire American production of dried fruits is marketed in the same manner. Fully 75 per cent of the citrus fruit is marketed co-operatively; 25 per cent of the live stock sold at terminal points goes by that route, and more than 5000 farmers' elevators handle more than $625,000,000 worth of grain each year."

SURVEY IS BEGUN

Members of the Farm Bureau committee to examine the proposal said before their departure tonight that the committee had begun an intensive study of the plan. Frank Evans, the last to leave Chicago, had made all preparations, including the purchase of a ticket, to start for his home at Salt Lake City last night, but deferred his departure on account of the proposal. It is expected that members of the committee will return next week to Chicago.

O. E. Bradfute, Xenia, O., president of the federation, and G. F. Reed, St. Paul, Minn., vice-president, left at noon for New York, where they will co-operate with Gray Silver, Washington representative, in placing recommendations of the federation before the Democratic National Convention. The other members of the committee of five on the proposal went home. They were said to have taken with them documents relating to the proposed merger.

"We have no comment to make at this time," said one of them, "but we are gathering information from all sources, and from all parts of the country. We mean to give the plan a very thorough-going analysis in the light of this information, which will be examined in an orderly, business-like manner."

PARIS DAY BY DAY

The Sabbath

BY RAYMOND G. CARROLL

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

PARIS, June 22.—In the grand old days—from the Empire down to 1910—Sunday in France was the busiest business day in the week. The shops were open, in order that the people liberated from industry and office work could wander around and make purchases.

Then came the pro-English movement, when Caillaux was the dominant factor of the French government, and Sunday took on an aspect of a day of rest for everybody. This in-drift from Great Britain also included the eight-hour workday theory, the Saturday half-holiday and the income tax.

All this is known in French parlance as "la Semaine Anglaise."

Subsequently the department stores made a trade with their employees, giving them Monday morning off for their toil on Saturday afternoon, with the result that Saturday afternoon is the "sweating period" of the week in the big stores.

Under the law these stores cannot clean up on Sunday, and most employees cannot be called before Monday noon. Hence the dusting and wiping, which has of necessity to be done by the salesmen and saleswomen, is performed Monday afternoon. That is why Monday afternoon is the poorest sales half-day in the week.

The "closed Sunday" crashed most heavily on the barber trade. All France formerly primped up on Sunday. Some barbers did other work on other days. It had been the custom for years to congregate Sundays at the barber shops of the villages and towns, as well as the great cities.

Today there is not a public barber shop open, except in the largest hotels, which enjoy special licenses on the plea of serving their guests, who are transients.

The result is that the French have to have their barber shops open on Saturday afternoons, for the haircuts, shampoos and shaves, without which they would appear shabby at mass on Sunday morning.

Consequently the barber shops, in order to keep within the forty-four-hours-a-week law, close during the middle of every day in the week from noon until 2 o'clock and sometimes longer. This time out gives the proprietors the spare time with which to work late on Saturday afternoon.

In the Rue Edward VII is a palatial American barber shop which was established by Senor De la Barra, elder brother of a former President of the Mexican republic and Ambassador to France. This Franco-Mexican so staffed his shop with barbers that he was able to run from early morning until late at night without ever closing. No barber worked more than the legal forty-four hours a week.

However, when the "la journee de huit heures" law went into effect this proprietor was promptly fined 1000 francs, the penalty for its violation. Senor De la Barra employed the best lawyers money could procure, and appealed all the way to the "Cour de Cassation," which is the Supreme Court of France.

A decision has just been handed down in his favor, which, in effect, says that the law applies not to the shop, but to the workman, and De la Barra not only gets his 1000 francs back, but keeps open and has created a precedent which is available for restaurants, cafes and other establishments which have to maintain long hours.

Paris streets are deserted of residents on Sundays after the morning mass. It has taken a little study to find out where the people go. The transportation system of Paris is similar to that of all round cities. It radiates from the center like the spokes from the hub of a wheel. The bus lines, the subways and the trolley car routes, as well as the steam railroad interurban lines, swing out after this fashion, the interior connections being mostly by the subways.

Paris is a city almost entirely surrounded by woods, which are not, in most cases, more than five miles from the fortifications or city limits. Two large woods are right at the gates of the city—the Bois de Boulogne and the Bois de Vincennes. The former is for rich people and the latter is for the poorer classes, each reflecting its housing environment.

In both these woods there are certain police regulations about picnicking on the grass. There is also considerable dust in each wood because of motor vehicles going to the races, and the result is that family parties who have lunch baskets choose woods that are farther away. These other Sunday haunts include St. Cloud, Meudon, Bellevue, Robinson, Montmorency, Enghein, where there is a lake, and Malmaison.

It is into these woods and toward their grass that all Paris is emptied on Sunday. By riding second-class this playground under the trees can be reached in about thirty minutes at a cost of one franc, which is 6 cents. About the only thing that can be bought in the woods from the rolling shops is bottled water, as those who like wine take it with them.

Today is the occasion of the Grand Steeplechase at Auteuil, which ranks next in importance to the Grand Prix that takes place next Sunday. In fact, this Auteuil classic is the most important jumping race in the world, except the Liverpool Grand National. The nice thing about the race is that there is no age limit for the horses. Many of the jumpers have been running in this race for years and the public is so accustomed to their names they talk of them like old friends.

Auteuil, which is in the Bois de Boulogne, is about as big as a nine-hole golf course, which necessitates many revolutions to cover the distance of several miles. It is like soldiers on a stage. It is a real money's worth, which doubtless accounted for the immense crowds headed there early this afternoon.

Another odd thing is that more people see the race without paying admissions than those who pay. They fill the slopes of the Bois for miles around. The only reason for going inside—at prices ranging from 3 to 30 francs—is to place bets. Many persons toss their bets over the low white wire fence to friends inside.

The race is traditionally started by the waving of a flag in the hands of an elderly gentleman with white burnside whiskers and wearing a gray top hat. He comes out before the race on a charger and rides the length of the straightaway, being greeted with tremendous cheers.

As for the race itself, the comedy element is supplied by the fall of virtually all the horses and jockeys, into the brook, which is in front of the stand of the President of the republic. After this first fall, a few horses and jockeys, covered with mud, moss and grass, keep on, while the remaining horses gallop along riderless, leaving their jockeys in the bath. Occasionally, a jockey gets out of the plunge, chases his horse and remounts.

Out of the open window one never hears Sunday music from adjoining buildings in Paris. Pianos are closed. The individual making harmony on his or her day-off in Paris does not exist. There are no bulky Sunday newspapers, and also nobody dresses up. It is a day to get dirty in nature.

Ethan Allen, center fielder for the University of Cincinnati, has set a batting record in the Ohio Conference. His batting average is .750, and his home run average .438. He has been at bat sixteen times and made a total of twelve hits. His greatest feat was hitting four home runs in four consecutive trips to the plate.

PLATICAS DE LOS LUNES

por el Profesor R. Guerrero
DEL DEPARTAMENTO ESPANOL DE "THE TIMES"

Número 256

En virtud de la regla sentada en el último párrafo de la Plática 255, juzgo mucho más propio decir, como dicen la mayor parte de los americanos, "Fuí hace tres días a la iglesia", que "He ido hace tres días a la iglesia", como suelen decir los españoles. Hasta en el ejemplo citado por Bello: "El estuvo ayer en la ciudad, pero se ha vuelto hoy al campo", me parece enteramente correcto usar el pretérito y decir, "se volvió hoy al campo", pues si bien es cierto que el día de hoy no ha transcurrido del todo, el acto de tomar rumbo al campo es enteramente pasado.

No así en la frase, "Hoy he sentido calor", pues tal vez lo esté sintiendo todavía, o haya apenas dejado de sentirlo. Debe decirse análogamente, "Este año ha sido aciago", y no "fue aciago", porque el año aun no transcurre todo y puede seguir siendo aciago. Digo, "He tomado un baño", cuando acabo de hacerlo en el momento de hablar; pero aún así, si fijo tiempo, uso de preferencia el pretérito: "Tomé un baño hace un momento". El inglés presenta igual distinción; "I have taken a bath"; "I took a bath a short while ago".

Con todo, hay que acatar un uso que se ha hecho general en España y aceptar como correcta la forma compuesta, aun cúando se hable de un suceso enteramente fenecido, y se determine época, siempre que ésta sea muy reciente; v.g., "Hoy ha muerto tu amigo"; "Ayer se ha casado tu primo".

Para que mis lectores disciernan fácilmente si en una oración dada deben emplear el pretérito o el ante-presente, me permito ilustrar el punto con algunos ejemplos más. Decimos, "Pedro ha vivido en Boston y por eso habla el inglés", y no, "Pedro vivió . . .", porque el hecho de vivir Pedro en Boston quizá dure todavía, y si ya pasó del todo, queda la circunstancia de haber sido un suceso importante de la vida de Pedro, que influye en su cultura, sus relaciones y sus negocios actuales. Si Pedro ya hubiese muerto, o se tratase de su estancia en Boston como un simple dato cronológico, habría que decir, "Pedro vivió en Boston y por eso hablaba el inglés"; "Pedro vivió un año en Boston"; "Pedro vivió en Boston hace tres años".

Digo que "pasé por Nueva York en 1923", y no que "he pasado", porque hablo de un hecho que se verificó en período enteramente fenecido; pero debo decir, "he viajado por todos los Estados Unidos", por varias de las razones ya expuestas: quizá acabo de realizar el viaje; si éste tiene ya tiempo de realizado, me refiero a un hecho susceptible de repetición y verificado en el período de mi vida, que no ha llgado a su fin. Por otra parte, hablo seguramente de una circunstancia notable para mí.

Nótense estos dos ejemplos que cita Salvá: "En el segundo año de esta centuria fue general la sequía"; "Este siglo ha dado copiosa materia a los historiadores". En el primero se habla de un tiempo enteramente transcurrido; en el segundo se habla del siglo que va corriendo. En la oración, "Juan estuvo malo dos días hace", se usa el pretérito "estuvo" porque, en primer lugar, se determina fecha, y en segundo lugar, se habla de algo que ya pasó enteramente. En la oración, "Juan ha estado malo dos días, pero ya se halla del todo recobrado", hablamos de un suceso que acaba de ocurrir y del que aún hay huellas recientes a la vista.

Numero 257

En la frase, "He diferido hasta ahora responder a su carta", que tomo de la gramática de Salvá, sería incorrecto decir "Difert", pues el hecho de diferir ha durado hasta el momento presente en que me pongo a contestar a la carta. Expresa el propio Salvá que se dice, "Esta mañana he cantado", porque hablamos de una parte del día que aún no ha pasado, y agrega que, aunque algunos digan, "He visto ayer a Fulano", parece que sería más exacto, ya que no lo repugna el uso, "Vi ayer a Fulano". Esta misma opinión me ha permitido expresar en la Plática 256, haciendo observar, sin embargo, que por las razones allí expuestas, no deben tildarse de incorrectas frases como éstas: "He ido ayer a misma"; "Ayer se ha casado tu primo".

Para dejar terminado este asunto, transcribo a continuación las siguientes importantes observaciones de Salvá: Decimos, "Cervantes ha escrito muchas obras ingeniosas", porque existen; pero habiéndose perdido el "Buscapié", diremos, "Los mejores críticos opinan que Cervantes no escribió el 'Buscapié'", y de ningún modo, "no ha escrito el Buscapié". "Cicerón ha escrito muchas oraciones", porque se conservan; y decimos que "escribió varias composiciones poéticas", porque solamente lo sabemos por el testimonio de los autores o por algunos fragmentos que se han salvado. De una persona que murió o ha interrumpido su correspondencia con otra, dirá ésta, "Mientras me escribió, nunca olvidó cuánto nos debía"; y si su trato epistolar continúa, deberá decir, "Siempre que me ha escrito, ha confesado las obligaciones que nos debe", o "nos debía".

"Varias veces me recomendó don Pascual el mérito del pretendiente", si vive aquél todavía, y de consiguiente no existe una imposibilidad de que repita sus recomendaciones; pero si hubiese fallecido, sólo podría decirse, "Varias veces me recomendó don Pascual el mérito del pretendiente".

"España ha tenido muchos y buenos poetas", porque continúa teniéndolos, o suponemos que así puede suceder; y, "España tuvo muchos y buenos poetas en el siglo XVII", porque se ha cerrado ya el plazo para que pueda tener ni uno más el la centuria que se fija.

Nótase por esta doctrina el desacierto con que algunos, señaladamente los naturales de Galicia y Asturias, usan del pretérito absoluto (simple) en lugar del próximo (ante-presente), cuando dicen, "Nunca bebí el marrasquino"; "Siento el frío de España, aunque estuve en países mucho más destemplados. Ambas locuciones piden que se ponga, "he bebido", "he estado".

En poesía se usa sin embargo con frecuencia el pretérito absoluto (simple), por ser más breve y dar de consiguiente más rapidez a la expresión, en lugar del próximo (ante-presente), que la hace floja y desmayada. En el "Viaje al Parnaso" dice Cervantes: "Nunca 'voló' la humilde pluma mía"; y Meléndez en una de sus "Anacreónticas", "Ya de mis verdes años—'Volaron' diez y nueve". En el primer caso debiera decirse por la regla general, "ha volado", y en el segundo, "han volado".

Dog Barks, Boy Wakes, Rescues Five in Flames

DETROIT, June 22.—The barking of a dog, and the quick action of a 19-year-old boy saved the lives of three small children and their parents when the home of Vincent Vendette caught fire.

The boy, Jack Prag, was awakened when he heard his dog howling in the back yard. His father, Charles Prag, also was awakened and saw the roof of the Vendette home in flames. Jack, on his way to the burning house, picked up a ladder, and ran up to the rooms in which the Vendette family live.

As Prag jumped into the smoke-filled room Mrs. Vendette, panic-stricken, was about to drop her 17-months-old daughter, Marie, from the window, but Jack took the girl, and successively the other two children, Leo, 5 years of age, and Fabro, 4, and carried them down the ladder. Vincent Vendette and his wife then followed him to safety.

FIRST BIFOCAL LENS

Benjamin Franklin invented the bifocal eyeglasses—one of the greatest of blessings—to fit his own needs. At Paris he frequently dined out where there were beautiful women in the company. Like all sensible men, he was fond of good food and fond of looking at lovely women. He declared it to be important to see your food before you put it into your mouth; but he also wished to see the faces of the guests that decorated the table. It was inconvenient to put on one pair of spectacles to eat and another pair every time anybody spoke to him. He therefore hit upon the device of having the upper part of his glasses consist of one lens and the lower of another, which proved in practice, like nearly everything he thought of, eminently satisfactory.—[W. L. Phelps in "Some Makers of American Literature."

According to experiments conducted with special apparatus at Yale, the energy produced by an oarsman during a race is equal to four horse-power. Only one-quarter of the energy produced by an athlete goes toward driving the boat, a higher efficiency than most steam or gasoline engines attain. The fuel consumption of a four-mile race amounts to between a quarter and a half-pound of sugar per man.

SOLOMON TALKS ON RADIO THROUGH LIPS OF PASTOR

"For as He Thinketh in His Heart, So Is He," Bible King's Words, Stressed by Mr. Webb

Solomon, the wisest man the world has ever known, spoke yesterday to the KHJ audience, from The Times broadcasting station, through the lips of Rev. A. L. Webb, pastor of the University Christian Church. Taking for his text the great Biblical King's statement, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he," Mr. Webb spoke in part as follows:

"Recently a group of people were discussing the latest divorce scandal in which one man ran away with another man's wife. During the conversation one of the party said, 'What in the world could he have been thinking about to have done a thing like that?' 'The other man's wife,' replied another member of the party. 'That's why he took her.'

"Man's distinction is in his ability to think, and as some one has said, 'Man is a thinking animal.' Man's ability, however, goes farther than that. He not only has the power to think, but he has the power to choose what he thinks. When a man neglects to exercise either of these powers he does so to his own retriment. The development of these faculties results in making him whatever he desires to be.

CAN PENETRATE HEAVENS

"Man can project his thoughts beyond his immediate environment and can bring to himself knowledge that aids him in life. He can penetrate the heavens and comprehend the movements of the planets and, in turn, he can predict the seasons, enabling him to adjust his habits of life thereto. He can send his mind on a journey through the past and on the tablets of history discover the forces that have brought about the rise and fall of men and of nations. He can turn the power of his intellect upon the lives of men and discover what makes them succeed and the cause of their failure. Then he can profit by their experience by retaining the strong and eliminating the weak in his own character.

"Man, also, can project his thoughts into the future and devise routes that he will travel and projects that he will build. He can call into existance things that do not exist. He can avoid disasters and he can overcome difficulties. Before a house is built an architect must think out its design. Before the rails of steel form the avenues of travel, the construction engineer must turn the power of his intellect into the valleys and mountains and devise the course for the railway to follow. Before commerce can function, man must think. Before art can express itself man must think. Before science can make discovery, man must think. Before crops can be gathered to provide food for man, he must think. It is the power of thinking that enables man to become the master of his surroundings, rather than the victim of his environment.

PERIL IN NOT THINKING

"The peril of not thinking is everywhere evident. 'He did not think it was loaded' is an example of the result of not thinking. 'He did not think it was wood alcohol' is another. Wilhelm 'did not think' that America would come to the assistance of the Allies. So-called 'errors of judgment' often are examples of mental laziness. In the same measure that the driver of a car must be mentally alert while driving through traffic, so must the one who desires to pilot his character through the complexities of life keep his mind continually active.

"What a man thinks is of more importance than how much, or how well he thinks. Every man thinks to some extent, but it is the content of that thought that determines his character. What we think is of more importance than what we eat. We may eat things that are not wholesome and suffer only temporary distress, but the poison of contaminated thoughts is accumulative in its effect. We should discriminate what we put into our minds. Some of us treat our minds like a rubbish box and fill them with all kinds of refuse and then wonder why we do not have an appreciation of the finer things of life.

VAGRANTS IN MINDS

"We do not invite vagrants and criminals into our homes to associate with our children, neither should we permit vagrant thoughts and criminal tendencies to inhabit our minds. If we think of the noble and the good we will have that corresponding development in our characters. If we set our minds on God, we will become Godly. If we set our mind on Christ we will become more like Him."

MARY OF MAGDALA CALLED SOUL SYMBOL

"Go and Sin No More" was the subject of an address given yesterday by Manly P. Hall at the Church of the People. In part Mr. Hall said: "Mary of Magdala was known as one of the scarlet robe. In that day crimson was the Master's robe of diety, the one worn under the white robe, and the robe the disciples cast lots for. This crimson robe represents the blood, the stream from the sun. In the life of Mary of Magdalla we find the only romance in the life of Jesus. We find this Mary again as the wife of Buddha, also as Kundry in the drama of Parsifal. Mary also represents the soul, and the romance of the soul and spirit is that of Jesus and Mary. In the character of Mary there lived seven demons, and just so in the soul of each of us there are these seven demons. We find ourselves hated and looked down upon just as was Mary. Mary recognized this and left the world of lower things and followed the Master, deserted all for Him. Just so when the human loves enough to give up and surrender to the divine, then the spirit will be free and liberated."

CALLS JESUS GREAT FORCE IN HISTORY

That the glory, power and influence of Jesus of Nazareth has not waned since His advent to earth nearly 2000 years ago is the opinion voiced yesterday by Dr. H. C. Culbertson in a sermon at the Plymouth Congregational Church. Dr. Culbertson said in part: "When I study the Christ of history, the Christ of present-day influence, and think of our relations with the Christ of the eternal future, I often feel that I cannot harmonize all the facts about Jesus and all my beliefs about Him into a unified theological statement. My mind toward Him is like a camera whose lens has not an angle wide enough to take in the whole view. We can, however, feel the power of His personality without being able to make such a statement, just as many a man enjoys sunshine and starlight without being able to comprehend the Einstein theory. How many theories have been suggested to account for this amazing personality! Contradictory though these theories be, they all help us to understand Jesus. Whatever we may think of these various theories, we find Jesus the mightiest force in our world today. Even as you cannot explain American history without the personalities of Washington, Lincoln and Edison, you cannot explain our world without the fact of Jesus. He gave to us our loftiest conception of God, our loftiest estimate of man, our highest moral ideal, opened to our world wonderful spiritual resources and, trusting Himself to spiritual forces alone, has come down through the centuries as a conqueror."

TELLS HOW TO FIND SUPREME HAPPINESS

Rev. E. F. Daugherty, pastor of the First Christian Church, preached yesterday on "The Supernatural." He said, in part:

"The writers of the Bible used most human terms in their explanations of life, they lived in the sense of God's closeness to their lives, and wrote to clarify the misunderstanding of folk of God's ways; just as the scientist today tries to bring men understanding of nature's ways. Folk of today are more reticent in claiming divine guidance for their utterances and ways than were folk of ancient time. Yet no one need have the least trouble finding God in the world, or in being conscious of the supernatural; for, when one is big enough to be unselfish, strong enough, noble enough to make some expression of love, of help, of life and light to another in need, they have yielded to God and are used as the instrument of His will. The supreme happiness is in giving rather than receiving, in serving rather than being served; and all the trouble in the world comes from those who are determined to get and to be served and to have for themselves above others."

FIRST COMMANDMENT THEME FOR SERMON

"The First and Great Commandment" is the subject of a sermon preached yesterday at the First Emerson Church by Dr. Annette Foster. The sermon, in part, follows:

"The spiritual hunger of the world is great. It is trying to satisfy its hunger in a thousand ways that do not satisfy because it does not know why it is hungry. It has revolted from the husks of a faith that had become empty and, in the revolt, has forgotten its discrimination. In seeking a better way it has sought to find an easier way, but the better is always the more difficult, and so, often, a long journey. This was the need of the world into which Jesus Christ came to point out the first great commandment—the eternal verity upon which all others rested the commandment 'Love one another.'"

BROOKLYN PROUD OF NEW CHAMP

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 22.—All of Brooklyn is rejoicing over her mighty little fighting man, Kid Sullivan, or Steve Tricano, as he was christened. He is the brand new junior lightweight champion, by reason of the sound trouncing he handed the veteran Johnny Dundee at the Nostrand A. C., last week.

For years Sullivan was passed up by the big promoters. He had to do most of his fighting in the smaller clubs of Brooklyn. But his battles with the famous Pepper Martin were classiest. And not long ago Sullivan stopped Babe Herman in a sensational fight in Madison Square Garden, although Herman broke several of the Kid's ribs with a right-hand smash before the Brooklynite triumphed. That bout put him in line for Dundee. Paddy Roche has been Sullivan's mentor for many years.

The Kid is 27 years old.

GOLF TOURNEY AT CALIFORNIA

New Grass Tees Are Opened for Annual Event

Entrants May Get Starting Times by Telephone

BY CHARLES WEST

The first tournament of the summer golf season opens tomorrow when the first batch of the 200 golfers entered in the California Country Club's annual invitation event play their medal round of eighteen holes. Qualifying will be permitted either tomorrow or Wednesday, starting times being arranged by telephone for all members of the Southern California Golf Association who dislike waiting their turn at the first tee.

The tournament committee, headed by E. H. Frederickson, has decided that the affair will be an easy-going tournament, no matches being over eighteen holes, and never more than one match a day. Consequently, the tournament will be stretched out over six days, match play opening Thursday and finishing with the finals on Sunday.

No competition has been provided for Southern California players for the past month, and an unusually large number of golfers have taken this opportunity to get back into the whirl again.

The Californian course has been carefully cleaned and pressed for the big event, the new grass tees

Olive will have to step some in the 100-meter free-style event inasmuch as Dodie Blewett, Vinnie Bubeck and Fannie Burk are entered. A pair of 8-year-old child wonders, Dorothy Poynton and Bobby Mourn, will display their talents in swimming and diving exhibitions. The program will also include events for men and boys. In the third round of the men's singles Bowie Detrick, a former Davis Cup player for Hawaii, fell before the strokes of Gaylord Warwick, 4-6, 8-6, 6-2.

Dr. Philip B. Hawk of Philadelphia, who holds the national veterans' title, won in the men's singles and in the veterans' event. Howard Kinsey, the title holder in the men's singles, played through the third round without serious opposition.

Phil Neer and Catlin Wolford, former Portland, Or. players, won their first match in the men's doubles, defeating two California Lawn Tennis Club players, Neil Brown and William Parker, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1. Dr. C. E. Jensen of San Francisco eliminated Neer in the men's singles third round, 9-7, 6-3. Neer a year ago was a star player of Stanford University.

Miss Ida H. Shelley of Sacramento, paired with Mrs. Violet Kerwin, was defeated in the women's doubles by Winifred Suhr and Charlotte Hosmer, 6-2, 6-0. CAN'T KEEP M'GRAW DOWN

Veteran New York Manager Directs Team's Play Although in Bed With Injured Leg

BY JOHN J. McGRAW
Manager New York Giants

At the finish of one of the hot games this week—my reference to heat applies to both the weather and the excitement—I was gathering together what notes I had put down for this article, when a friend dropped in to inquire what progress I was making with my inured leg.

I was sitting next to a broad space of windows which overlook the playing field of the Polo Grounds and are located directly behind the centerfielder. Through these closed windows the sun pours in all afternoon and there are no curtains. My injured leg, in a steel cast, was across one chair while I sat in another. I was streaming with perspiration. But I had to take it so as to watch the game and occasionally telephone to the bench. I can't put but one window up, and that not more than six inches, because it interferes with the batters, they say.

"I'm getting better," I said to my friend, who had to smile at my predicament, "but after thirty or more years in baseball I never thought I'd wind up by having to play the sunfield. I never played such a hot sunfield in my life. I get more of a workout than the players."

INTERESTING ANGLE

At that, it is interesting to watch a ball game from this angle. Below me I can hear the fans yelling from the bleachers, and the players, in the distance, move about like so many silent figures. I can't see what happens in the dugout but make all suggestions by what I see at the plate and on the bases.

I have a telephone connected with the bench and occasionally I use it. I do not do as much directing as the papers have intimated. I limit my moves to selecting the pitchers and once in a while to changing the batters. For instance I sent Bill Terry to bat in place of Frank Snyder against Carl Mays the other day. Otherwise Hughey Jennings runs the ball game and I do not interfere. I see a lot of interesting things, though, that are not noticeable from the bench. It's very different watching a ball game from the other end.

Many stories have appeared in the newspapers to the effect that I use a pair of field glasses and a private telephone to run my team from my sunfield windows. That is not exactly true. I do not use field glasses at all. In the first place I have as good a pair of eyes as anybody. In the second place I purposely avoid the use of field glasses to prevent the possibility of anybody saying that I tip off the batting signals. With field glasses I could see the catcher's signs to the pitchers if I wanted to but I don't put much stock in that. Complicated tricks never amount to much. To tell the truth, I once knew a team to have the opposing battling signs and, even

GEORGE PAYNE DEFEATS G PENNER IN MOUND DUEL

Vernon Ace Allows Only Four Hits but Loses; Six-Run Rally Gives Seraphs' Second Victory

BY ROBERT E. RAY

Marty Krug's hired help, after starting the series by losing four straight to Vernon, finished up in an impressive manner yesterday by taking a double-header from the Tigers, 3 to 1 and 10 to 6, in two good games to watch. Ten thousand fans were on hand to witness the Angels's twin win. Vernon took the odd game of the series.

In the first game, which lasted but an hour and twelve minutes and was the shortest of the season for the local park, George Payne hooked up in a thrilling mound duel with Ken Penner, Bengal heaving ace, and emerged with a close victory. Penner allowed but four hits, three less than the Bengals got off Payne, but the Angels made three of those four safeties count in the scoring by mixing them with walks, hit batsmen and Vernon errors. It was a tough one for Penner to lose, but it would have been just as tough for Payne to lose it, so there you are.

The Tigers touched Payne Payne for seven safeties, but a combination of poor base running by the Bengals and snappy fielding by the Angels prevented Bill Essick's cohorts from scoring more than one run.

OPPORTUNITY LOST

Vernon lost its best chance to get some much needed runs in the sixth when two doubles failed to produce anything but another cypher in the run column. After opening the sixth with a double to right center, Menosky attempted to take third after Hood caught Blakesley's fly, but Wally uncorked a perfect throw and doubled Menosky at third. Menosky was given a beautiful bawling out by Essick for this reckless baserunning. Deal followed up with a double to left, but the chance of a run was wasted. Denny Murphy ended the inning with a lofty to Twombly.

The Angels scored first in the opening inning. Twombly walked and went to second on McAuley's infield out. Durst was hit by a pitched ball. Hood then singled over second, scoring Twombly.

In the third the Angels scored two more which proved to be the winning markers. One of the runs was earned, but the other resulted on errors by Warner and Blakesley. Payne opened the inning by striking out, but Twombly came through with a double just inside first base. McAuley drove Twombly home with a single to center. Durst fouled to Deal. Then Hood hit a roller at Warner and Jackie let the ball roll through his legs. McAuley kept right on going and continued right on home when Blakesley also kicked the ball. That ended the Angel scoring.

Vernon got its lone run in the fourth when Menosky singled, took third on D. Murphy's single to left, and scored on Warner's single to the same territory.

SECOND GAME THRILLER

The second game was a thriller in which Charley Root, although knocked groggy in the early innings managed to stave off a knockout and finally managed to take the decision from three Vernon hurlers to wit, Cadore, Sellers and Shellenback. Sellers was on the mound only long enough to walk one man, uncork a wild pitch with the bases full, partially walk another batter before being jerked, and get charged with the defeat.

In this same second game Marty Krug had the last laugh on numerous fans who were prone to dish out a ration of razzberries for him at the start of the tilt, when he drove in three runs with a double and a single in the sixth and seventh innings. After driving in those three markers, Marty certainly had the right to double-thumb his nose at the bolsterous boosers, but the Angel pilot passed up his chance to humiliate his host of tormentors. Needless to say, Marty's two hits changed the noisy knockers to a flock of tongue-tied lambs.

DEAL INJURED

The Tigers probably lost Charley Deal for at least a week in the twilight contest. Deal injured his ankle fielding Root's infield hit in the seventh inning and had to retire from the tilt, Kimmick finishing at third. It is not known whether Deal sprained his ankle or not. If so, Vernon will be without Charley's services for about a month.

Krug shifted the Angel line-up slightly in the closing fray, benching Beck, who has not been hit-

"GOOD TIME HAD BY ALL"

A sensational opening marked the game between the Los Angeles and Sons of St. George cricket teams at Tournament Park yesterday afternoon. A. Percival, opening the bowling for Los Angeles, took Marriott's wicket without the batsman making an attempt to defend it. Three balls later the same batter hit Hayward Shripps and the first over ended with only two wickets down and one run on the board. Another wicket fell in the next over and things looked bad for the Sons. By dint of good hitting sixty overs were reached before the last wicket fell. Snappy fielding, with the exception of three dropped chances, kept the score down, but had the batsmen guessing.

A good defense by Marohinnef and stylish and hard-hitting by Percival and Allen soon gave the Los Angeles team a lead over their rivals, and the innings ended with a total of 117 runs.

For Los Angeles, Percival bowled well, taking five for 32 runs, and Smith took four for 23. Slumen bowled well for the Sons of St. George, sending down 12 overs for only 28 runs. Withy, the slow bowler, took most wickets, having five total circuits.

Strong National League Team Loses on Home Lot; Pistons Land on Pitcher Sweet in First

Led by the able hurling of Dierkes, who allowed but six hits, Manager Paul Zuelch's Kant-Skore Pistons were able to take a 5-to-2 victory over Glendora in a fast game played yesterday on the losers' lot. The Pistons took kindly to the offerings of Sweet, Glendora's moundsman, in the first inning, when they bunched four hits for three runs, enough to clinch the contest.

Yesterday's game did not affect the American League standings and Glendora will meet the Pasadena Eagles next Sunday for the championship.

The hitting of Vic and E. Orsatti, along with that of Luke Rotea and Weber featured for the winners. Rotea had a perfect day at the bat, getting four hits in four times at bat. Thompson also did some nice fielding for the Pistons in center.

Kant-Skore Pistons started off by scoring three in the first and were never headed. Glendora got one in its half of the first. The Pistons scored their other runs in the third and eighth, while Glendora finished its scoring in the seventh. The score:

LEON DURAY IS AGAIN WINNER

down from the top of the bank the engine went through the bottom of the car and was left high and dry on the top side of the track. Without his inner works Meyer considered the task of overtaking his rivals somewhat hopeless and did not carry on in the race.

E. Bermuda, in no way connected with either the islands or onions of the same name, nearly spoiled the day for some of the drivers when he turned around on one of the turns in the ten-lap Pershing handicap and came almost to a dead stop. In some manner he managed to swing his charger back up the track and then coasted down out of the way. Charley Davidson, in No. 11, had a narrow escape in one of the trial heats, running into the fence when he broke a steering knuckle.

Jack Petticord won the finals of the Chateau-Thierry handicap, a ten-lap affair, trimming Burmuda is a close race. Ralph Chapman was third. The time was 7m. 11s. Petticord also ran away with the Pershing handicap, beating Steve Elmore and Cliff Bergere, who finished in second and third places. His time was 8m. 5s. Duray was not in these races.

Johnny Krieger took two of the motorcycle events, which for sheer competition had the automobile events backed off the map. He won the one-lap dash in 35s., and then walked away with the flying circus side-car race, trimming H. A. Pelton to win. Joe Petrali and Krieger battled it out in the Argonne Sweepstakes, a five-lap journey, the former winning by a few scant feet in a thrilling finish. Time 3m. 54s.

MEYER HAS TROUBLE

Eddie Meyer had a terrible time with the famous "999" the first racing Ford built by Henry of Detroit. After Dan Tobey, in his very best tones, had announced that the ancient chariot would make a voyage around the track, Meyer climbed on board and gave the word to hoist anchor. Tan stalwart men leaned against the car, which looked for all the world like a mid-west snow plow, and shoved it a distance of some fifty feet. With a wheeze and a cough the chariot started, but after proceeding half that distance died in an awful struggle. After much tinkering and not a little coaxing the Henry resumed spouting and got around the track twice.

Duray again won the Italian Colony Victory Crown dash, but his time was slow, the one lap taking 34 1-5 seconds. Jack Petticord gave Duray a great race of it and lost only by half a length or so. The Frenchman also drove the fastest qualifying heat, doing the lap in 32 2-5 seconds. This time is also slow. Charlie Keppen, official referee, laid the slow marks to a fresh coating of oil on the track.

FRESNO TIGERS TIP OVER HANFORD GANG

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HANFORD (Cal.) June 22.—The Fresno Tigers with three hits, three errors in their favor, a walk and one man hit by a pitched ball, scored five runs in the ninth inning in their game here with the Hanford Kings today and came from behind to a 10-to-9 victory.

Cliff McCarl used his only two pitchers and after pinch-hitting in the ninth went in himself to hurl the last inning, getting by with three hits and one run, with good support. Score:

Fresno	10	15 1
Hanford	9	13 5

SERAPHS TAKE DOUBLE-HEADER

ting, and sending McAuley to short. Krug filled in at second.

The Seraphs took the lead in the first when Twombly singled infield, took third on McAuley's base knock to center and scored on Durst's sacrifice fly to Menosky.

Vernon forged ahead in the second by nicking Root for three tallies. Deal opened with a single. Hannah sacrificed and both runners were safe when Root threw to second too late to get Deal. Warner sacrificed with a bunt to Jacobs, who tangled with Root while fielding the ball. When Jacobs did throw to first, his throw was wild and went to right field, Deal and Hannah scoring and Warner continuing to third. Griffin was hit by a pitched ball. Warner counted when McDowell hit into a double play.

SCORE TWO MORE

The Tigers scored two more in the third on two hits and a pair of Angel misplays. After Menosky had popped to McAuley, Blakesley drew a life on McAuley's bobble. Deal sent Blakesley to third with a single. Blakesley scored on Hannah's hit and Deal went to third. Warner forced Hannah at second and Deal crossed the plate on the out. The final Bengal run arrived in the fifth when Blakesley doubled against the left-field fence and galloped in on Hannah's hit.

After two were out in the home half of the sixth, Cadore, who had been breezing along in easy fashion, grew wild, walking Jacobs and Whaley, and Marty Krug promptly turned both passes into a pair of runs by doubling over Chadbourne's head to the centerfield fence.

But the sixth was only a zephyr compared with the hurricane seventh when the Seraphs scored six runs, chased Cadore and Sellers and treated Frank Shellenback in a way Frank is not used to. Root was up twice in the inning, getting two hits. The Angel hurler started the rally with an infield single, Deal being hurt fielding the ball. Kimmick replaced Deal and the slaughter really began to commence. Twombly doubled Root to third. That was all for Cadore, "Lefty" Sellers taking the mound. Sellers walked McAuley, filling the sacks, and then moved the runners up a base, Root scoring, with a wild pitch. Sellers had a good start toward walking Durst when Essick lifted him, Shellenback going in. Shellenback completed the passing of Durst again filling the bases. Hood scored Twombly with a sacrifice fly to Blakesley. Jacobs then delivered a double against the fence, scoring both McAuley and Whaley and putting the Angels in front. Jacobs took third on Whaley's infield out and scored on Krug's single to right. Byler walked and Root scored Manager Marty with a single to center. Twombly obligingly ended the inning with an aerial contribution to Chadbourne.

The Vernon half of the eighth was exciting because Walter Kimmick and Butch Byler almost put on a battle in this frame. With the count 2 and 2 on Kimmick, Root put over a strike, Kimmick stepping back just before the ball came over the plate and claiming that Byler touched his mat. Ump. Casey called Kimmick out at first, but when Kimmick and Byler almost came to blows and everybody on both sides surrounded him, Casey decided that there must be something to Kimmick's claim and allowed him to take first. A snappy double play then killed the embryo rally.

Los Angeles scored its final run in the final half of the eighth on McAuley's single and Hood's double. Root retired the Bengals in one-two-three order in the ninth, disposing of Denny Murphy, who batted for Shellenback, to end proceedings.

Marty Krug and "Boots" Weber took their flock of Angels out of town for a three weeks' road trip, leaving for Salt Lake City last night. The Angels hit Seattle and Portland before returning home. Scores:

Brewers Spring Surprise in Intercity League

Foley Twirls Good Game for Tacoma Battlers

The Tacoma Brew ball nine sprung a little surprise yesterday by defeating the Willowbrook Reds, Intercity League leaders, 16 to 4, in a somewhat lop-sided game played on the Reds' home grounds. The Tacoma sluggers just simply were hitting the ball and neither Morrow nor Tribler could stop them.

The result was settled in the second inning when the Brewers put on a rally that netted them eight runs. Just to sew up the ball game even more, the Tacoma outfit scored two more in the fifth, five in the seventh and a final pair in the eighth. After letting the Willowbrook crew get runs in the first and second, Foley, on the mound for the winners, blanked the Reds until the ninth when they got their final two runs. Score:

DIVIDE HONORS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Oakland and San Francisco divided a double-header today. Oakland won the morning game, 4 to 0, and San Francisco took the afternoon game, 3 to 1. Oakland took the series by one game.

Mails pitched shutout ball for Oakland in the morning and held the Seals to four scattered hits. Henlon, pitching his first start for the San Francisco team, was wild. He was lifted in the second inning when he made two costly errors and replaced by Williams, who pitched a good game.

In the afternoon Mitchell won his twelfth game for the Seals. With the score tied in the eighth and San Francisco runners on second and third, Brubaker, Oakland shortstop, made a wild heave to first on Kilduff's grounder, allowing Valla and Waner to score the winning runs.

WILLIAMS CUBS BEAT BLUE BIRD LAUNDRY

The Williams Cubs team defeated the Blue Bird Laundry squad, 15 to 9, at the Hazard Playground yesterday afternoon. Both teams hit the pitchers hard and often and the number of base hits, supplemented by twelve errors by both teams help bring the score up. Al Denterlein, catching for the Cubs, was the big fielding star of the day. "Irish" Goldberg did a lot of good hitting. The score:

FEDERAL BANKERS BEATEN

Merchants' National Nine Romps Off With 13-to-3 Game on Occidental College Diamond

The Merchants' National Bank team outhit the Federal Reserve Bankers, 13 to 3, at Occidental College Saturday, and thereby won the first of a three-game series that will decide the championship of the Bankers' League.

The game was interesting in all phases. There were seven errors of commission, and as many of omission, made. Four pitchers struck out twenty-one batters. There were nine walks issued and nine bases were stolen. In the way of hitting there were three home runs and one triple, to say nothing of a pair of doubles, and one double play.

Riggins of the Merchants' National was the big hitter of the day with one home run and two triples.

Mairs of the Merchants' team was supreme until the fifth inning when he allowed one run. He let down a little in the last innings and nearly dished his team. The score:

IDAHO SAILORS WIN OUT

Bellflower Outfit Bows to Pacific Fleet Baseball Crew in 7-to-3 Contest

The U.S.S. Idaho threw a broadside into Bellflower yesterday and beat them 7 to 3 in a tight game. The game was scoreless through the first five innings, both teams opening up in the last frames.

Ski, on the mound for the navalmen, won the game for his team singled-handed. Ski whiffed eighteen men, and got two hits out of his two trips to the plate. Also, but not likewise, he allowed not a single Bellflower to perambulate to the initial sack via the four-ball route.

Eight stolen bases made the game interesting to any criminologists present, if there were any. R. Ballew of the Bellflower team, was the only member of his squad to get more than one hit off the redoubtable Ski. The score:

Fans who follow the Hollywood Twilight League were privileged to watch all kinds of baseball Saturday afternoon, a nifty doubleheader bringing out plenty of diamond action. In the first contest the Taft Realty Company nine and the W. F. Peck outfit battled to a 2-to-2 tie, the seven innings being crowded with tight playing. The closing contest witnessed the downfall of the Welker-Cochran Studio club, F. A. Hartwell's Escrow Indians coming out of their slump to batter their rivals for a 15-to-3 goal.

The first tilt of the day was a corker. Paul Walker, former Pomona College twirler, turned in his best game of the year, holding the Pecks to one hit up until the seventh canto. In the first half of this inning the Taft gang went out and made their two runs on three hits. Ward opened with a single, Green followed with another and then Welsh scored 'em both with a neat double.

This lead looked good enough to win, especially as Walker had been mowing down the opposition with ease. However, the Pecks rose up in all their manly strength in their half of the canto and tied the count. Mac'. Smith opened the session with a double and Fyer, batting for Haynes, brought him home with another two-base swat. Huested was retired, but Weaver came through with a single which scored Fyer, knotting the count. Walker tightened up like a Puget Sound clam and whiffed Case and Peck to end the struggle.

Led by the able hurling of Dierkes, who allowed but six hits, Manager Paul Zuelch's Kant-Skore Pistons were able to take a 5-to-2 victory over Glendora in a fast game played yesterday on the losers' lot. The Pistons took kindly to the offerings of Sweet, Glendora's moundsman, in the first inning, when they bunched four hits for three runs, enough to clinch the contest.

Yesterday's game did not affect the American League standings and Glendora will meet the Pasadena Eagles next Sunday for the championship.

The hitting of Vic and E. Orsatti, along with that of Luke Rotea and Weber featured for the winners. Rotea had a perfect day at the bat, getting four hits in four times at bat. Thompson also did some nice fielding for the Pistons in center.

Kant-Skore Pistons started off by scoring three in the first and were never headed. Glendora got one in its half of the first. The Pistons scored their other runs in the third and eighth, while Glendora finished its scoring in the seventh. The score:

down from the top of the bank the engine went through the bottom of the car and was left high and dry on the top side of the track. Without his inner works Meyer considered the task of overtaking his rivals somewhat hopeless and did not carry on in the race.

E. Bermuda, in no way connected with either the islands or onions of the same name, nearly spoiled the day for some of the drivers when he turned around on one of the turns in the ten-lap Pershing handicap and came almost to a dead stop. In some manner he managed to swing his charger back up the track and then coasted down out of the way. Charley Davidson, in No. 11, had a narrow escape in one of the trial heats, running into the fence when he broke a steering knuckle.

Jack Petticord won the finals of the Chateau-Thierry handicap, a ten-lap affair, trimming Bermuda a close race. Ralph Chapman was third. The time was 7m. 11s. Petticord also ran away with the Pershing handicap, beating Steve Elmore and Cliff Bergere, who finished in second and third places. His time was 8m. 5s. Duray was not in these races.

Johnny Krieger took two of the motorcycle events, which for sheer competition had the automobile events backed off the map. He won the one-lap dash in 35s., and then walked away with the flying circus side-car race, trimming H. A. Pelton to win. Joe Petrali and Krieger battled it out in the Argonne Sweepstakes, a five-lap journey, the former winning by a few scant feet in a thrilling finish. Time 3m. 54s.

MEYER HAS TROUBLE

Eddie Meyer had a terrible time with the famous "999" the first racing Ford built by Henry of Detroit. After Dan Tobey, in his very best tones, had announced that the ancient chariot would make a voyage around the track, Meyer climbed on board and gave the word to hoist anchor. Ten stalwart men leaned against the car, which looked for all the world like a mid-west snow plow, and shoved it a distance of some fifty feet. With a wheeze and a cough the chariot started, but after proceeding half that distance died in an awful struggle. After much tinkering and not a little coaxing the Henry resumed spouting and got around the track twice.

Duray again won the Italian Colony Victory Crown dash, but his time was slow, the one lap taking 34 1-5 seconds. Jack Petticord gave Duray a great race of it and lost only by half a length or so. The Frenchman also drove the fastest qualifying heat, doing the lap in 32 2-5 seconds. This time is also slow. Charlie Keppen, official referee, laid the slow marks to a fresh coating of oil on the track.

FRESNO TIGERS TIP OVER HANFORD GANG

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HANFORD (Cal.) June 22.—The Fresno Tigers with three hits, three errors in their favor, a walk and one man hit by a pitched ball, scored five runs in the ninth inning in their game here with the Hanford Kings today and came from behind to a 10-to-9 victory.

Cliff McCarl used his only two pitchers and after pinch-hitting in the ninth went in himself to hurl the last inning, getting by with three hits and one run, with good support. Score:

Fresno	10	15 1

ting, and sending McAuley to short. Krug filled in at second.

The Seraphs took the lead in the first when Twombly singled infield, took third on McAuley's base knock to center and scored on Durst's sacrifice fly to Menosky.

Vernon forged ahead in the second by nicking Root for three tallies. Deal opened with a single. Hannah sacrificed and both runners were safe when Root threw to second too late to get Deal. Warner sacrificed with a bunt to Jacobs, who tangled with Root while fielding the ball. When Jacobs did throw to first, his throw was wild and went to right field, Deal and Hannah scoring and Warner continuing to third. Griffin was hit by a pitched ball. Warner counted when McDowell hit into a double play.

SCORE TWO MORE

The Tigers scored two more in the third on two hits and a pair of Angel misplays. After Menosky had popped to McAuley, Blakesley drew a life on McAuley's bobble. Deal sent Blakesley to third with a single. Blakesley scored on Hannah's hit and Deal went to third. Warner forced Hannah at second and Deal crossed the plate on the out. The final Bengal run arrived in the fifth when Blakesley doubled against the left-field fence and galloped in on Hannah's hit.

After two were out in the home half of the sixth, Cadore, who had been breezing along in easy fashion, grew wild, walking Jacobs and Whaley, and Marty Krug promptly turned both passes into a pair of runs by doubling over Chadbourne's head to the centerfield fence.

But the sixth was only a zephyr compared with the hurricane seventh when the Seraphs scored six runs, chased Cadore and Sellers and treated Frank Shellenback in a way Frank is not used to. Root was up twice in the inning, getting two hits. The Angel hurler started the rally with an infield single, Deal being hurt fielding the ball. Kimmick replaced Deal and the slaughter really began to commence. Twombly doubled Root to third. That was all for Cadore, "Lefty" Sellers taking the mound. Sellers walked McAuley, filling the sacks, and then moved the runners up a base, Root scoring, with a wild pitch. Sellers had a good start toward walking Durst when Essick lifted him, Shellenback going in. Shellenback completed the passing of Durst again filling the bases. Hood scored Twombly with a sacrifice fly to Blakesley. Jacobs then delivered a double against the fence, scoring both McAuley and Whaley and putting the Angels in front. Jacobs took third on Whaley's infield out and scored on Krug's single to right. Byler walked and Root scored Manager Marty with a single to center. Twombly obligingly ended the inning with an aerial contribution to Chadbourne.

The Vernon half of the eighth was exciting because Walter Kimmick and Butch Byler almost put on a battle in this frame. With the count 2 and 2 on Kimmick, Root put over a strike, Kimmick stepping back just before the ball came over the plate and claiming that Byler touched his mat. Ump. Casey called Kimmick out at first, but when Kimmick and Byler almost came to blows and everybody on both sides surrounded him, Casey decided that there must be something to Kimmick's claim and allowed him to take first. A snappy double play then killed the embryo rally.

Los Angeles scored its final run in the final half of the eighth on McAuley's single and Hood's double. Root retired the Bengals in one-two-three order in the ninth, disposing of Denny Murphy, who batted for Shellenback, to end proceedings.

Marty Krug and "Boots" Weber took their flock of Angels out of town for a three weeks' road trip, leaving for Salt Lake City last night. The Angels hit Seattle and Portland before returning home. Scores:

DIVIDE HONORS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Oakland and San Francisco divided a double-header today. Oakland won the morning game, 4 to 0, and San Francisco took the afternoon game, 3 to 1. Oakland took the series by one game.

Mails pitched shutout ball for Oakland in the morning and held the Seals to four scattered hits. Henlon, pitching his first game for the San Francisco team, was wild. He was lifted in the second inning when he made two costly errors and replaced by Williams, who pitched a good game.

In the afternoon Mitchell won his twelfth game for the Seals. With the score tied in the eighth and San Francisco runners on second and third, Brubaker, Oakland shortstop, made a wild heave to first on Kilduff's grounder, allowing Valla and Waner to score the winning runs.

WILLIAMS CUBS BEAT BLUE BIRD LAUNDRY

The Williams Cubs team defeated the Blue Bird Laundry squad, 15 to 9, at the Hazard Playground yesterday afternoon. Both teams hit the pitchers hard and often and the number of base hits, supplemented by twelve errors by both teams help bring the score up. Al Denterlein, catching for the Cubs, was the big fielding star of the day. "Irish" Goldberg did a lot of good hitting. The score:

Brewers Spring Surprise in Intercity League

Foley Twirls Good Game for Tacoma Battlers

The Tacoma Brew ball nine sprung a little surprise yesterday by defeating the Willowbrook Reds, Intercity League leaders, 16 to 4, in a somewhat lop-sided game played on the Reds' home grounds. The Tacoma sluggers just simply were hitting the ball and neither Morrow nor Tribler could stop them.

The result was settled in the second inning when the Brewers put on a rally that netted them eight runs. Just to sew up the ball game even more, the Tacoma outfit scored two more in the fifth, five in the seventh and a final pair in the eighth. After letting the Willowbrook crew get runs in the first and second, Foley, on the mound for the winners, blanked the Reds until the ninth when they got their final two runs. Score:

Fans who follow the Hollywood Twilight League were privileged to watch all kinds of baseball Saturday afternoon, a nifty doubleheader bringing out plenty of diamond action. In the first contest the Taft Realty Company nine and the W. F. Peck outfit battled to a 2-to-2 tie, the seven innings being crowded with tight playing. The closing contest witnessed the downfall of the Welker-Cochran Studio club, F. A. Hartwell's Escrow Indians coming out of their slump to batter their rivals for a 15-to-2 goal.

The first tilt of the day was a corker. Paul Walker, former Pomona College twirler, turned in his best game of the year, holding the Pecks to one hit up until the seventh canto. In the first half of this inning the Taft gang went out and made their two runs on three hits. Ward opened with a single, Green followed with another and then Welsh scored 'em both with a neat double.

This lead looked good enough to win, especially as Walker had been mowing down the opposition with ease. However, the Pecks rose up in all their manly strength in their half of the canto and tied the count. Mac. Smith opened the session with a double and Fyer, batting for Haynes, brought him home with another two-base swat. Huested was retired, but Weaver came through with a single which scored Fyer, knotting the count. Walker tightened up like a Puget Sound clam and whiffed Case and Peck to end the struggle.

IDAHO SAILORS WIN OUT

Bellflower Outfit Bows to Pacific Fleet Baseball Crew in 7-to-3 Contest

The U.S.S. Idaho threw a broadside into Bellflower yesterday and beat them 7 to 3 in a tight game. The game was scoreless through the first five innings, both teams opening up in the last frames.

Ski, on the mound for the naval men, won the game for his team singled-handed. Ski whiffed eighteen men, and got two hits out of his two trips to the plate. Also, but not likewise, he allowed not a single Bellflower to perambulate to the initial sack via the four-ball route.

Eight stolen bases made the game interesting to any criminologists present, if there were any. R. Ballew of the Bellflower team, was the only member of his squad to get more than one hit off the redoubtable Ski. The score:

HOLLYWOOD CASEYS LOSE

Merchants Come Out on Top in 7-to-1 Game; Carleton's Nine Takes Series Lead by Victory

The Hollywood Merchants came out on top in yesterday's game with the Hollywood K. of C. team with a 7-to-1 victory. Yesterday's was the Merchants' fifteenth consecutive win. This also gives Floyd Carleton's team the major part of the three-game series with the Caseys. The winners had the game on ice from the start. They held their opponents scoreless until the last inning, when a pair of hits counted one run.

Evans, on the mound for the winners, allowed one hit in each of the first four innings, then he settled down and held the Knights without a hit for four innings.

Meadows, Merchant outfielder, had a pleasant day with the bludgeon, getting three hits out of four times at bat. Two of the blows were doubles. No Casey got more than one hit. Rall of the Merchants was slightly disappointing, getting but one hit in four chances. The Merchants play George's Orioles next week. Score:

OLYMPIC TALENT LOW IN SWEDEN

Elimination tryouts for the Swedish Olympic Games team, held in the Stockholm stadium, provided disappointing performances except among the hammer, discus and javelin throwers, while the long-distance runners were promising. The jumpers were considered weak.

The success of the Swedish soccer team in reaching the semi-finals at Paris has aroused general enthusiasm all over the country and is taken as a good omen for Sweden's Olympic results this summer.

CHINESE SQUAD IS HUMBLED

Vernon Park Art Shoppe Team Noses Out Rivals in 7-to-6 Game

The Vernon Park Art Shoppe nine nosed out the L. A. Chinese in a fast Pacific League game played yesterday at Ross-Snyder Field. The score was 7 to 6. At the end of the seventh the game was called because of a time limit.

The Art Shoppers collected twenty-two hits, but were unable to make them count for more than seven runs, poor base-running cutting off a number of markers. Rusty Stogsdill, on the mound for the winners, allowed but seven hits, but errors by his mates aided the Chinese to make their hits count. Swanson and Roman of the victors each got four hits, while Kai of the Chinese led his team in hitting.

The Chinese scored one in the first, but the Art Shoppers took the lead by counting one in each the second and third innings. In the fourth the Art Shoppers ran over five more and cinched the game, although the Chinese scored four in the fifth and another in the final inning and came close to tying the count. Score:

BELVEDERE NINE STOPS SAWTELLE

Duffy Pitches Gardens Club to 7-to-3 Win Over League Leaders

The steady pitching of Duffy and the timely hitting of his mates proved the downfall of the strong Sawtelle nine yesterday afternoon, the Belvedere Gardens club hammering out a 7-to-3 victory and thus throwing the Independent League into a three-cornered tie.

Two passes, a pair of doubles and a single gave the winners four runs in the first inning. Sawtelle got two markers in their half of the session, but the Belvedere outfit scored two more in the fifth and were never headed.

Aquatic Stars in Swimfest on Wednesday

Coach Frank Holborow of the Holborow Athletic Club, and swimming instructor of the Wilkinson plunge has a swim program arranged for Wednesday night that will be far from sleeply. Holborow figures to give the fans their big thrill when the relay teams from the Los Angeles, Hollywood and Venice Athletic Clubs meet in the 125-yard relay race. A collection of speedy stars on the Venice team makes it a slight favorite, but the L.A.A.C. and Hollywood will enter strong squads also.

Dodie Blewett, Vinnie Bubeck, Olive Hatch and Fannie Burk, are going to make the women's 100-meter free-style event a thriller.

Dorothy Poynton and Bobby Mourn, 8-year-old veterans, will give several exhibitions of swimming and diving, and fancy stunts. Seven other events are on the program. The meet is open to the public, if they have 50 cents. The complete program is as follows:

MEN'S EVENTS

1. 50 yards, free style.
2. 220 yards, free style.
3. 125 yards, relay.

WOMEN'S EVENTS

1. 50 yards, free style.
2. 100 meters, free style.
3. 30 yards, back stroke.
4. 90 yards, medley race.

BOYS' RACE

50 yards, free style, for boys 15 years of under.

BIG HOWITZERS ARE SILENCED

Chamber Players Triumph by 15-to-6 Score

McBean Stars for Winners in Timber Work

The mighty Howitzers donated fifteen more runs to the fast-growing total of the Watts Chamber of Commerce yesterday, and thereby sent the total to sixty-nine runs in the last four games. Some noble young sport writer has suggested that Secretary Harry Nelson schedule some competition for Watts in the near future. The score of yesterday's game was 15 to 6.

McBean of Watts, beaned the ball for a four-base hit in the first inning, with the bases loaded to the top. Four runs came in, as was to be expected. The Watts infielders must be given the credit for their team's victory, as they fielded almost perfectly during the course of the afternoon. The score:

Huntingtons Trample on Crown City

Huntington Park took advantage of being on their home grounds and smacked the Crown City baseball team for a 14-to-9 victory. After the first two innings the Crown City team didn't have as much chance to win as a fish has to perspire, and having delivered ourselves of that little sally, we will proceed to the particulars of the contest.

Leg by the heavy hitting of Lee and Brown, Crown City put up a good tight game. Rector, on the mound for the losers, was slightly wild and passed seven men, Chambers, Huntington Park pitcher, was largely responsible for his team's victory, with ten whiffs and two hits all by himself. The score:

PORT NOTES

Twenty-three steamers, including three passenger carriers, one tanker, thirteen freighters and six lumber steamers, are due at the port today, promising the biggest day of the year. Ten million feet of lumber alone will arrive from the Pacific Northwest ports.

Two liners in the Gulf-Orient service of the Tampa-Inter-Ocean Steamship Company will arrive; one, the Jaddin, being homeward bound with a record sugar cargo from the Philippines. The other steamer is the Hanover, coming in for bunkers on her way to Japan from New Orleans and Port Arthur.

In the service of the Pacific Mail Line, three carriers will come in. There will be the Santa Barbara and Santa Malta, both from Baltimore, with nearly 7000 tons of East Coast freight for Los Angeles, while Cacique will arrive from San Francisco to load for the Atlantic.

The S. P. Brooks, boarding launch of the United States Public Health Service at the ports, will return to duty this morning after three weeks' overhaul in a local shipyard, occasioned when she struck a submerged log in the outer harbor and broke her propeller and tail shaft. Further steps should be taken immediately to remove driftwood and rubbish from the harbor, according to Maj. Robert H. Heterick, surgeon in charge of the quarantine section of the Public Health Service at the harbor.

There will be a new skipper at the wheel of the S. P. Brooks. He is Capt. Adolph Lotzlieberger, relieving Capt. William J. Emery, who sailed for Tokuyama yesterday as third officer of the General Petroleum tanker Liebre.

Fourteen passengers and 3000 tons of cargo arrived from Norwegian ports yesterday aboard the Norway-Pacific line steamer George Washington. Her master, Capt. Jens Holmsen, is strongly of the opinion that his ship is his castle and refused to permit newspaper men aboard the craft yesterday.

The Shipping Board liner West Faralon, in the Oriental service of Struthers & Barry, is due from the Far East this morning after a three months' voyage to China, Japan, the Straits settlements and the Philippines.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—The freighter Charles H. Cramp arrived today with a record of nineteen days from New York and via the Philippines. The other steamer is the Hanover, coming in for bunkers on her way to Japan from New Orleans and Port Arthur.

The S. D. Brooks, boarding launch of the United States Public Health Service at the ports, will return to duty this morning after three weeks' overhaul in a local shipyard, occasioned when she struck a submerged log in the outer harbor and broke her propeller and tail shaft. Further steps should be taken immediately to remove driftwood and rubbish from the harbor, according to Maj. Robert H. Heterick, surgeon in charge of the quarantine section of the Public Health Service at the harbor.

There will be a new skipper at the wheel of the S. D. Brooks. He is Capt. Adolph Lotzlieberger, relieving Capt. William J. Emery, who sailed for Tokuyama yesterday as third officer of the General Petroleum tanker Liebre.

Fourteen passengers and 3000 tons of cargo arrived from Norwegian ports yesterday aboard the Norway-Pacific line steamer George Washington. Her master, Capt. Jens Holmsen, is strongly of the opinion that his ship is his castle and refused to permit newspaper men aboard the craft yesterday.

The Shipping Board liner West Faralon, in the Oriental service of Struthers & Barry, is due from the Far East this morning after a three months' voyage to China, Japan, the Straits settlements and the Philippines.

GRAYS HARBOR (Wash.) June 22.—The maximum draft allowed vessels loading at Grays Harbor will be raised soon by the San Francisco Board of Underwriters, as soon as definite reports are given out as to progress made by the government dredge Culebra, which has been working at Grays Harbor since last May, according to Capt. Charley Clarkson, local representative of the board. The twenty-three feet six inches limit is no longer being strictly enforced and will be raised considerably when the Culebra completes its work, which is expected to give a thirty-foot-depth channel at low tide.

ASTORIA (Or.) June 22.—The steam schooner Wahkeena, with lumber from Warrenton and St. Helens, sailed this morning for San Francisco.

Girl of 19 Manages Plant Sending Out 20,000 Chicks Each Year

Mansfield, Mass., is noted as having the second largest baby-chick producing company in the United States. Running this immense business and handling almost $300,000 a year is a 19-year-old girl, who holds the office of general manager and signs her name "Frieda Bliss, general manager of the Mansfield Hatchery Company, Mansfield, Mass."

Miss Bliss is the oldest of three children. She attended Mansfield High School, graduating in 1921. She stayed at home until February of the following year, when she entered the employ of William H. Allen, president of the Mansfield Hatchery, as secretary, says the Boston Globe.

In September, 1922, she entered Framingham Normal School, where she took a course in vocational household arts until the end of the college year in June, 1923, but every week end she was found at work at the hatchery. She completed her course at Framingham and continued to work at the hatchery as Mr. Allen's secretary.

Mr. Allen decided that he would like to enlarge his business and he went to Kentucky and left Miss Bliss in charge of the Mansfield establishment. When Mr. Allen returned to his business he found that Miss Bliss had conducted affairs so well that he, having decided to operate another hatchery in Louisville, appointed Miss Bliss general manager of the Mansfield plant.

The hatching season starts the first of January and ends the last of June. Miss Bliss has since the beginning of the season daily supervised the shipment of up to 20,000 chicks to all points of the States east of the Rocky Mountains.

She also supervises the incoming eggs each day, of which the average number is 36,000, a total weight of 4000 pounds. The eggs are purchased from different sections of the country and Miss Bliss has one of her trucks on the road locally, collecting eggs from the farmers for miles around the establishment.—[New York Sun.

The Alsace-Lorraine Railway, owned by the French government, now has a total length of 1386 miles and operates 1791 locomotives and 3543 passenger coaches.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

RANCHER HITS SAVING ORDER

Edison Company Criticised in Power Shortage

Asserted Deficiency Should Have Been Anticipated

Agrees, However, to Reduce Current Consumption

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, June 22.—Severe criticism of the Southern California Edison Company, whom he characterized as having been exceedingly negligent in not having prepared for a power shortage, the coming of which they must have been aware for months, was voiced last evening by F. A. Lucas, director of Lucas Ranching Company, at a special meeting of some fifty ranchers of this district, who use electricity for pumping purposes, at the offices of the Ontario Power Company.

The meeting was called by A. C. Reynolds, secretary of the Ontario company, to ask co-operation of local ranchers in conserving electricity, since the local concern buys a portion of its power from Edison.

Although the meeting adopted a resolution agreeing to reduce consumption of current for agricultural purposes by 20 per cent, Mr. Lucas expressed the opinion that the ranching interests of the community should have time to look carefully into the situation and to be sure that the Edison people had the right to ask the cut, before committing themselves to something which might prove highly detrimental to their interests.

WATER ORDER HITS VALLEY FARMERS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

VAN NUYS, June 22.—Alfalfa and open-land ranchers are all in the air again upon receipt of word from the water department that owing to the scarcity of water there will be no further allocation of Aqueduct water at this time for alfalfa, in order to obviate the shortage of water for domestic use. The order received by agents of the department in the valley is that permission is withdrawn to use water in the irrigation of alfalfa and that none can be used for the fall crops. Ranchers are expressing the hope that there may yet be allowed a ratio for open-land irrigation that will permit of the carrying on of the planted crops and that will admit placing the lands in condition for fall planting.

BARLEY CROPS NEAR INGLEWOOD INSURED

INGLEWOOD, June 22.—More than 130,000 pounds of estimated yield in growing crops of barley adjacent to Inglewood has been insured against loss by brush fires, owing to the dry season. Ranchers of this vicinity are taking no chances, it was stated by Miss Inez Harcourt, assistant secretary of the W. G. Brown Corporation.

One rancher has insured his standing grain on a basis of an estimated yield of 2000 pounds to the acre, an exceptionally high figure, but justified by past performance in heavy stands of barley on his fertile acres. Bankers are now requiring ranchers making loans on crops to protect the collateral by this form of insurance.

FULLERTON PLANS TO RAISE MORE MONEY

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

FULLERTON, June 22.—Faced with many more demands on the city exchequer than can be met out of anticipated general revenue, the City Council has taken under advisement the question of creating its own assessment department and raising property valuations so as to provide more funds. At present the city tax levy of $1 per $100 is made on the basis of the county assessment. As other cities in the county make their own valuations and collect their own taxes it is urged that Fullerton follow suit.

Austin, a member of the English staff. Miss Austin plans a trip to Europe. She will leave during the week for New York, having secured reservation on the S.S. Carmania. CONFESSIONS TO BE HEARD

Love Murder Case at Santa Barbara Expected to Last Most of Present Week

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, June 22.—The confessions of Charles Nolan and John Carlton, accused of the murder of Charles Love, a hotel man, here several weeks ago, will be introduced in the trial of the defendants when the fifth day's session of the trial opens tomorrow morning, it was stated today by the District Attorney.

At the end of the fourth day of the hearing, which has furnished sensations for crowded courtrooms, the prosecution has laid a substantial foundation for the actual killing of Love and has brought out the facts of the quarrel which led to the shooting, in the face of the brilliant opposition of counsel for the defense, led by Joseph Ford of Los Angeles, who has combatted witnesses and opposing attorneys at every step with a maze of technicalities.

Features of the trial so far have been the bringing of four sailors from the battleship Idaho from San Pedro to tell of the wild party to which Nolan's wife is said to have been taken by her husband; the coming of a group of Nolan's relatives, prominent New England people, to the trial; the exhausting of a venire of 100 jurymen in an effort to obtain twelve who were not opposed to the death penalty, and the widespread interest which the case has aroused in the city.

Though several of the sessions have lasted far into the night it is expected that after the prosecution completes its case next Tuesday or Wednesday the trial will continue for at least four more days.

INGLEWOOD AT MINIMUM IN LIGHTING

Stands Hunded Per Cent in Conservation Program on Electric Energy

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

INGLEWOOD, June 22.—Inglewood is 100 per cent in its co-operation with P. S. Minner, district manager of the Southern California Edison Company, in the program for the conservation of electric energy in both power and lighting. The Rotary and Lions clubs have both passed resolutions indorsing the plan for cutting down 25 per cent, the city is using the moon for illuminating the streets, and in the dark of the moon using only corner lights, while W. G. Brown, president of the First National Bank whose new building has the only complete system in Southern California of indirect lighting completely bathing the whole exterior in light, has written to Mr. Minner offering to eliminate this during the power shortage, notwithstanding its great advertising value, because by so doing an example can be set to the whole community in the way of conservation.

ENFORCED DROUGHT

Mexican Authorities Object to Yankee Celebration

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MEXICALI, June 22. — Among Imperial Valley's residents are many whose idea of celebrating the Fourth of July each year is to visit Mexicali and stay close to dispensaries of cool beer. This year these persons are likely to be disappointed, for now the announcement comes from the government building that a proclamation is forthcoming, closing all liquor-selling places for two or three days prior to the national election, July 6. This would mean that the bar-rooms would probably be closed tightly from July 3 to July 7.

Last year many Americans engaged in a Fourth of July celebration put on here by residents who were interested, in addition to their patriotic tendencies, in drawing a big crowd to Mexicali. It was being planned to repeat the celebration this year, with additional features, including possibly a Mexican bull fight and a prize fight. Because of the probability of the town being closed as far as alcoholic beverages are concerned, the plans of the celebration are dragging somewhat, with prospects of their being given up altogether.

TWO EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGES ARE FILED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, June 23.—Frank Feeley, 32, a salesman for the Southern California Edison Company, was arrested here yesterday for the second time in two weeks charged with embezzlement from his company. The stock salesman was taken into custody upon the complaint of a purchaser of stock who testified that Feeley had sold him the shares, received the money and then failed to make delivery. On June 6 Feeley was arrested charged with embezzling $10,000 from the company through stock sales. He was released on $10,000 bond and was at liberty on this bond when taken yesterday on the second charge. Officials of the company state that Feeley's total peculations will now aggregate more than $20,000, which, it is stated by officers, was sunk for the most part in gambling games and stock market speculation. He is married and has a home here.

SHERIFF ASKS FOR ALIENS' FIREARMS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

EL CENTRO, June 22.—Alien residents of Imperial county who own firearms of any sort have been requested by Dist.-Atty. Utley to turn them in to the nearest peace officer. The District Attorney has issued an order, citing the recent case decided by the State Supreme Court upholding the statute adopted by the last Legislature forbidding the possession of guns by persons who are not citizens of the United States.

It was indicated by the official that the aliens will be given a reasonable time in which to comply with his request, after which prosecutions will follow if guns are found in the possession of those coming within the meaning of the law. It is believed that the District Attorney's order will result in uncovering hundreds of revolvers and guns supposed to be owned by Japanese, Mexican and Hindu residents of Imperial Valley.

LANKERSHIM WANTS BAND

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

LANKERSHIM, June 22.—Resident musicians and townsite promoters, Kiwanians and Chamber of Commerce are joining forces in an endeavor to organize and equip a band. Albert Perfect, an experienced tutor, is making a canvass of the musical talent in an attempt to line up the instrumentation, and his friends are seeking to provide financial support for the enterprise.

LOW WATER MEANS END OF FISHING

Death of Thousands of Trout in Small Streams Prophesied by Warden

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, June 20.—Thousands of trout will perish before the fall rains, and fishing next year, particularly in the smaller streams, will be ruined, Game Warden W. C. Malane declared today after a tour of the San Bernardino Mountain streams, many nearly dry. The flow is rapidly diminishing in all the streams, due to the light snow and rainfall of the winter, the game warden said.

Streams that in normal years flow throughout the summer will dry up, bringing death to the fish, Mr. Malone predicted. Low water in the streams that do not disappear will menace the stocking of the streams with baby trout for next year's sport. The fish planting will be delayed as long as possible, providing the water supply for the hatchery in Big Bear Valley continues to flow.

Ordinarily, millions of trout scarcely more than an inch long, are planted in the streams in August. If feasible, the planting will not begin until October this year. All streams in the San Bernardino Mountains are stocked with trout yearly.

"Although the drying up of the streams," said Mr. Malone, "will bring death to the fish, sportsmen have virtually stripped some streams of the trout. With the water low, the fish were hungry and catching them became simple. Frankly, fishing in the smaller streams next year will be poor."

MANY SEE CHILDREN IN PARADE

More Than 600 Appear in Annual Floral Fete at Ocean Park

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

OCEAN PARK, June 22.—With a vociferous audience of more than 60,000 merrymakers and proud mothers and fathers jamming the ocean front, Ocean Park today welcomed its fifth annual kiddies' floral parade in which more than 600 children from all sections of the Southland participated.

It was the most successful parade ever conducted in this community, it was stated, and in the matters of entrants in the competition for prizes and the extent of the audience by far the largest event Ocean Park has known in years.

The children, some of whom had not yet reached the toddling age and all of whom are under 14 years of age, assembled at Rose avenue and from there marched in review before the cheering audience to the plaza in front of the Santa Monica Municipal Auditorium, where the judges of the parade and the individual floats had their stand.

The parade was led by little Jane Keith, 4 years of age, in the capacity of drum major. She was followed by the Santa Monica Municipal Band. The parade was divided into two main divisions—one of floats and the other of children on foot—and thirty minor divisions.

TO CLOSE POOLS

TULARE, June 22.—As a result of the partial water shortage now and an expected greater shortage later in the season, Tulare's municipal swimming pool will be closed within a few days, according to Marion McCart, manager. McCart declares it would be necessary to have another well soon to supply needs of the pool, unless it closed down. Patrons are availing themselves of this opportunity to take a last swim before the season is over.

LABORERS ASK HUGE DAMAGES

Five Ontario Mexicans Sue for $115,000

Company and Employee Are Defendants

Plaintiff Assert Injuries Due to Carelessness

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, June 22.—Damages totaling $115,000, the largest amount sought in the courts of this county in recent years, are asked by five Mexican track laborers in suits on file today against the Drew Carriage Company of Ontario and Leonard B. Dixon, an employee of the local concern, as the result of an accident at the Bon View-avenue crossing of the Union Pacific here May 13.

The Mexicans allege that they were victims of the carelessness of Dixon, while he was driving an automobile for the company. The five plaintiffs were injured when an automobile piloted by Dixon collided with a rail handcar, on which they were riding.

Manuel Briones, who lost both legs at the hips as a result of the accident, is asking $50,000; Margariot Chaves and I. Diaz are each asking $25,000; Juan Vasques is seeking $10,000, and Simon Cordova, $5000.

Attorney Bertrand J. Wellman of Los Angeles represents the Mexicans, while Attorney Archie D. Mitchell is counsel for the defendants. The Carriage company is fully covered with liability insurance.

PREMIUM MELONS

Imperial Valley Product In Demand In East

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BRAWLEY, June 22.—Precooled cantaloupes shipped from Brawley to the Chicago market have been sold for $1 premium on the crate, according to reports received here by the S. A. Gerrard company. The melons were precooled by a system on which the local ice company officials have been experimenting for two or three years, whereby ripe melons may be placed in the refrigerator cars and delivered in good marketable condition in Chicago and other eastern markets. The melons are held for an hour or two in ice water before being placed in the refrigerator cars.

The distributors have experienced difficulty in shipping ripe melons because they would not carry to market profitably. For this reason the large proportion of cantaloupes leaving the valley are designated "fancy" instead of "choice," but still containing enough sugar to comply easily with the State standardization laws. It is hoped by distributors to have the precooling plan perfected sufficiently to permit the shipment of a larger percentage of ripe melons, as these have the best flavor and bring the best prices.

LARGE VALLEY BEAN CROP IS EXPECTED

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

VAN NUYS, June 22.—There are approximately 13,000 acres planted to baby Lima beans in San Fernando Valley, according to a survey just completed by Secretary A. J. Walters of the Van Nuys and Owensmouth Lima Bean Growers' Association. The acreage is practically the same as last year, and based on an average production of twelve sacks to the acre the valley is relied upon to produce 156,000 sacks or 15,600,000 pounds this season. Provided the price continues at the present figure this would mean the pouring of $1,248,000 into the purses of the ranchers. The vines are reported as being in prime condition, with predictions for a bumper crop of high quality. About 83 per cent of the crop is in the association pool, as compared with only about 40 per cent of the 1923 harvest handled by the association.

GOVERNMENT MAKES BONUS PERMANENT

CALEXICO, June 22. — Instead of suffering a decrease in their monthly pay checks, members of the United States custom service here have received word that they are to receive a monthly bonus of $20 permanently. This bonus was added several months ago during the Congressional recess because of extra heavy work required of the customs inspectors. Recently, when it was seen that Congress had failed to adopt the urgent deficiency appropriations bill, the inspectors were given to understand that the bonus would be discontinued.

Now the word comes that through an order issued by President Coolidge, the bonus will be paid regularly as part of the salary check of the inspectors. Immigration inspectors also received an increase in pay and accordingly the government employees here are joyful.

MULHOLLAND ROAD PROVES FIRE GUARD

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

CALABASAS, June 22.—The menace of forest fires is already greatly reduced by reason of the construction of Mulholland Drive, as was demonstrated during the week when a brush fire in the hills got away from its starters. The drive will give the fire fighters a chance to get quickly on the scene of a conflagration, as there will be feeders from the scenic route into many of the canyons. This protective measure will be effective from here through Universal City and Griffith Park.

MURDER MYSTERY SOLVED

Two Arrested and Said to Have Confessed to Slaying Wealthy Hindu Near Oxnard

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OXNARD, June 23.—Several months ago the body of S. T. Kahly, a wealthy Hindu sent here by the Indian government to study agriculture, was found in an alfalfa field alongside the State Highway near El Rio, four miles northeast of Oxnard. The murder was one of the most brutal and mysterious in the history of Oxnard.

Today Jesse Mendoza and his pal, whose name has so far been withheld by Sheriff Clark, are behind the bars in the County Jail. Mendoza has confessed to the crime to the Sheriff. Kahly, the Hindu, was well known here. He was well educated and had extensive property in the Imperial and San Joaquin valleys. He was conducting ranch work here. When last seen he was in company with two Mexicans in his employ. Next morning his body was found. His head had been smashed against a tree and then crushed with a huge rock.

The disturbed appearance of the alfalfa field and the blood indicated a terrible struggle. The red Oldsmobile of Kahly was missing. It was learned that two Mexicans had stopped at a service station at Moorpark on the night of the murder. They were in a hurry and said hey were on their way south. Deputies from here were sent to Mexico and the border was combed.

Through the agency of Hindus friends of Kahly, it was found that Mendoza, the man suspected, was in Mexico. On three occasions Sheriff Clark and officers from this county nearly captured him, but each time he slipped out of their hands by about fifteen minutes and was back in Mexico.

A few days ago Mendoza was seen in Brawley. Word was sent to Chief Murray of this city and to Sheriff Clark and a short time later Mendoza was arrested. Later his pal was nabbed near Brawley. For certain reasons which he is keeping to himself, Sheriff Clark will not divulge the name of the other man.

Mendoza made a complete confession to the Sheriff, it is said. He said he and his friend wanted to use Kahly's car, but the Hindu would not loan it. A fight ensued, resulting in the killing of Kahly. The Hindu battled hard to save his life.

ACTIVITIES TO RECALL WAR TIME

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, June 22. — Activities recalling war times are scheduled for the next two months at Rockwell Field when a large number of reserve and cadet aviation students will undergo intensive training.

Aerial gunnery and airplane assembly and operations will start tomorrow for the Ninety-first Aero Squadron 15 Photo Section and cadet flyers from the University of California and Washington.

Maj. H. C. Nuhlenberg, a recent graduate from the line school at Fort Leavenworth reported at North Island for duty as senior instructor at the summer encampment. Maj. George H. Peabody, instructor in military aeronautics at the University of California will be in charge of the R.O.T.C. school.

A number of the most prominent figures in American military aviation will be seen in action here this summer. These men include Brig.-Gen. William Mitchell, assistant chief of the air service; Col. Frank Lahm, pioneer aviator, who is coming to the Coast in July to assume the duties of air officer of the Ninth Corps Area; Lieut. Oakley Kelly, famous transcontinental pilot; Capt. William C. Ocker, who made aviation history at North Island in the days of the bamboo plane; Maj. Theodore MacAuley, Maj. Henry H. Arnold, Lieut. C. Paul Richter and a score of others whose achievements in the air have won national and international recognition.

In August the greatest mobilization of military flyers since the war will take place at Rockwell Field with more than ninety pilots from all sections of the Pacific Coast in attendance. From Oregon and Washington will come a squadron of reserve flyers under the command of Lieut. Kelly. Clover Field, Santa Monica, will send its newly organized National Guard Aero Squadron, commanded by Lieut. C. C. Moseley, while at least two other units will come from San Francisco and the bay cities and Santa Barbara.

PACK TRAIN OWNER BAGS LARGE LION

Large Cat Encountered on Giant Forest Trail Measures Over Six Feet

GIANT FOREST (Sequoia National Park) June 22.—When O. W. Loverin of Three Rivers, owner of the saddle and pack trains operating in Giant Forest, stopped at the water tank at Watson Spring, near the park line, recently on a night trip under special permit, he hardly expected to be greeted by a lioness.

The full-grown animal came from behind the tank into the full glare of the headlights and then ensued a merry chase. Failing to run the lioness down with his car, Loverin proceeded to Cedar Creek and secured permission to send for his lion hounds at Three Rivers, which were brought up by Ernest Britton of Three Rivers, accompanied by Lee Slinkard, assistant supervisor of Sequoia Forest, and Dr. Barnhard of the Federal quarantine service. Meanwhile, Loverin returning from Cedar Creek, again encountered the big cat on the road above the spring and proceeded to shoot the lower section of his windshied away in an unsuccessful attempt to bag the lioness. Prompt arrival of the pack resulted in its capture after a short run.

The lioness measured six feet, five inches from tip to tip and was an object of much interest to visitors at Giant Forest the following day. Its persistance in returning to the vicinity of the water tank at Watson Springs is believed due to drought conditions in usual hunting grounds of the lion, streams in Ha Ha Gulch now being entirely dry.

GENTLE JUDGMENT

When he was questioned about his religious opinions—about all sorts of things on which it seems to us a gross impertinence to question a stranger—every letter was answered, and with such courtesy, such gentleness, such willingness to assume the best of those who criticised him, as to compel the admission that there was something of saintliness in the life of Darwin. To one who had attacked him rather vehemently and then apologized, Darwin wrote: "Do not think I was annoyed at your letter. I saw that you had been thinking with animation, and therefore expressed yourself strongly, and so I understood."—[A. Maude Royden in "The Friendship of God."

DELEGATES CHOSEN

LINDSAY, June 22.—Local delegates to the annual State convention of the American Legion, to be held in Santa Cruz on August 4, 5, and 6, were chosen at the regular meeting of Lindsay Post No. 128. Ford A. Chatters, first vice-commander, will represent Commander Webb as chairman of the delegation. Roy Crouch was also elected delegate, while E. T. Gable was chosen first alternate and H. C. Russell, second alternate.

TO START SURVEY CHATSWORTH DRIVE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SAN FERNANDO, June 22.—It is promised that within ten days the city engineering department will start the surveys that are expected to lead up to the early widening and permanent paving of Chatsworth Drive from this city to Chatsworth Park. Being the connecting link with the Coast Highway via Santa Susanna Pass, this road is traveled by all upper valley residents who are accustomed to spending their summer vacation days on the Ventura beaches, at Hueneme and on as far as Rincon.

INGLEWOOD NOW HAS WATER FOR RESERVOIR

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENT]

INGLEWOOD, June 22.—Inglewood now has a water supply in excess of 2,500,000 gallons a day, according to Water Superintendent O. O. Farmer. The addition of another well has greatly increased the department's available supply, but this as yet is held in reserve, notwithstanding the dry year. Farmer stated. The new ... well on the city's own large acreage of water-bearing land has a flow of from 100 to 125 miner's inches, according to tests made on its completion this week.

AUTOS INCREASE ON HIGHWAYS OF TULARE

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged with letter accompanying, stating what tests are desired. Write plainly on small size. There is no necessity for analysis with card, or scrap of letter, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples. Only bonafide inquiries receive no attention. Analyses are made free of charge.

Quartzite

BIG PINE, June 7.—Question: I am sending you two samples of ore. Please advise as to commercial values of same. These samples were taken from the old Alabama range of mountains in Inyo county, California. H. M. S.

Answer: It is a pleasure to receive letters like yours. It covers all of the requirements called for at the head of this column, and shall receive more attention than the three-word request, "for complete analysis." Quantitative analyses are seldom made by this department of The Times, and be it noted that good service for the patrons of this column can only be given to those who write letters giving approximate localities of samples.

The sulphides present are too low in percentage for profitable treatment, but the "sand" shows fair indications for silves prospects.

Tin Absent

WILLCOX (Ariz.) June 7.—Q.: I am sending by this mail a sample of rock which you will please analyze and classify, with especial attention as to whether it contains any tin or zinc. This rock occurs as a dyke about fifty feet wide, and the sample is from the surface.

A.: Another good letter of inquiry. The sample does not react for tin or zinc. It is our old, deceptive acquaintance known as typical hornblende.

Chalcedony

LAS VEGAS (Nev.) June 8.—Q.: I am sending you a sample of rock found on the desert about fifty miles from Las Vegas, Nev. It is called "calcite" here. Is it of any value? Please look it over and I shall watch for your report in The Times. G.

A.: Calcite (lime carbonate) effervesces in weak acids. Your samples are not affected by acids, and they are a variety of quartz known as chalcedony.

The mineral is in mammillated and botryoidal (grape-like) forms and it is probable that geodes (hollow nodules) containing crystals of quartz, or crystals of calcite, occur at the locality. The specimens represent mineral of some value to dealers in minerals, and for cabinet collections. Chalcedony is very often made use of as a so-called gemstone, and by engravers for brooches, etc.

Ball-clay Present

Three Samples

LOS ANGELES, June 9.—Q.: I found the three samples of rocks in the Santa Monica Mountains, and I would like to know all the constituents of them in order to have quantitative analyses made in case the specimens should contain some mineral of commercial value. L.

A.: Four samples could be classified as iron ores and the classification would be correct, in a way. Sample No. 1 carries a good percentage of hematite known as micaceous iron ore; lead and zinc both found in traces only. No. 2 is quartzitic rock and it contains a much lower percentage of iron ore of the variety stated as of No. 1; traces of zinc, lead and arsenic are present, however. No. 3 is a very good grade of micaceous iron ore and more or less magnetite is present.

Twelve Rocks

A SUBSCRIBER.

A.: Be it stated in all politeness that there are rocks which call for a great amount of geological and chemical work to fully determine and classify. Such rock mine and classify. Such rock classification hardly comes within the purview of this department of The Times, and at no time should more than three specimens be submitted for qualitative tests—never a full dozen.

The rocks appear to be as follows: No. 1 is Augene Gneiss. No. 2 is granitic hornblende with pyroxene. No. 3 is altered feldspathic rock. No. 4 is Apiyte (micaless granite.) No. 5, altered granitic rock with more or less pyroxene and hornblende. No. 6 is a mixture of granitic and rhyolitic rock. No. 7 is not fully classified; it appears to be a coarse gneiss, and a slide would have to be made to fully determine it. No. 8 is the so-called (altered) "Bird's-eye porphyry." No. 9 and 10 are Rhyolite. No. 11 is altered rhyolitic rock, and No. 12 is muscovite gneiss. It would appear that the locality is one of considerable Pegmatyte, and the hope is now expressed that the samples as numbered agree with your duplicates.

Sulphur

LANKERSHIM, June 4. — Q.: Please analyze for purity of sulphur. D.

Serpentine Variety

Sulphates

COVINA, June 10.—Q.: The small piece of ore is all I have left from my mine. I had similar ore assayed for gold and silver and the returns were "no gold or silver." Yesterday I received a telegram from the assayers asking what I would take for the claims and how much of such ore was on the property. I have come to the conclusion that there is "a nigger in the woodpile." I might be wrong, but it looks to me that the rock carries platinum. It is hardly true that I shall have the luck to find platinum, but if it is present, in the sample, I have a fortune in sight. C.

A.: It is regretted that the specimen is too small to fully determine all that it contains. We could get no platinum reaction, however. The sample carries a little flake titaniferous iron and iron oxides. It reacts for iron sulphate (copperas) and traces of plain Jarosite. Lead sulphate a trace only.

Yellow Mica

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—Q.: Let me know what the small gold-colored flakes are. I want a general analysis of the inclosed. M. W. F.

Azurmalchite

ST. THOMAS (Utah) June 13.—Q.: The sample herein is from a claim about fifteen miles east of here. PITT.

Altered Minerals

TEHACHAPI, June 14.—Q.: I send under separate cover a sample of what (?) I do not know. Will you please tell me through The Times what it is? It is found sixteen miles east and north of Randsburg. No one seemed to have been there, as no holes were to be seen, and having no shovel I got a surface sample only. I have taken The Times for thirty years. Thanking you for past favors. C.

A.: Think of it, you being a subscriber of The Times for three generations! Good luck to you!

Gypsum should be found at the locality. The sample is a silicious mixture of gypsum with more or less aluminum silicate and sulphur, in low percentages.

TORRANCE FLOW STILL CLIMBING

Ten New Wells Are Brought in During Week

Superior Obtains Its Third Largest Producer

Standard Has Six of Latest Holes in District

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TORRANCE, June 22.—New production in the Torrance field last week aggregated 3800 barrels from ten wells. For the third consecutive week the Superior Oil Company brought in the largest producer. Last week it was the Keck organization's Torrance No. 26 on the Joughin lease in the eastern part of the field that headed the list with a yield of 900 barrels a day.

Of the week's ten new wells, six belong to the Standard Oil Company. Five of the six are located on the Marble ranch in the southwestern extension. The Standard's new production totaled 1700 barrels. Dominguez No. 4, another Standard completion, is located in the northeastern area where 250-barrel production is considered unusually good.

The Superior Oil Company put Torrance No. 4 on production Saturday morning. This well is said to have caused more trouble than any other hole in the eastern part of the field.

While the crew was bailing for a water test last fall the rig caught fire and burned to the ground.

When a new rig was erected it was found that water was entering the hole at several levels. A redrilling job was necessary. The hole was drilled to 3850 feet. The well's production is estimated at 500 barrels a day.

LARGE OPERATORS BUSY

With each succeeding week the departure of the small operators and steady development by the larger companies in the Torrance field becomes more noticeable. Last week only one small well was completed in the Lomita area.

Hope of a deep sand test in this closely drilled district continues to run high, but no operator seems willing to spend the money necessary for the exploration of deeper levels.

With two or three exceptions the owners of wells in the Lomita district have lost money. In scores of cases it is costing operators more to keep their wells cleaned out than they receive from production during periods when the wells are pumping.

The larger companies operating in the field are not faced with such financial loss as would lead them to drill deep test wells on their large leases—at least not until the upper sand has been exhausted.

The Shell Company started a deep test on the Kettler lease with Kettler No. 2, drilled to 3995 feet, bridged back to 3939 feet and landed water string. Four cement jobs at 3936 feet were unsuccessful, however, and the well now is standing idle.

WILDCAT WELL DRILLED

North of Torrance on Western avenue, the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company has drilled its wildcat on the Francis lease to 4000 feet. Several oil-bearing strata have been encountered, but none of sufficient promise to warrant a production test.

The Shell Company's East Side wildcat, Dolores No. 1, is still being cored ahead.

One of the surprises of the week was the increase in the production from Torrance No. 6, the most southerly of E. J. Miley's wells on the Joughin lease. For several weeks this producer yielded between 900 and 950 barrels a day. On Wednesday, without a change of beam, the production increased to 1034 barrels and still is running well over 1000 barrels, according to field reports.

McGregor Well in Beach Field Produces Again

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, June 22.—The MacGregor Syndicate No. 1 well was returned to production Thursday night after weeks of effort. Gauge of the flow Friday showed the well to be pumping at the rate of 125 barrels daily. The oil tests 22 degrees gravity with a water content of less than 1 per cent.

Redrilled to the 4986-foot level, the Belridge British No. 1, near the San Martinez Oil Company's Frye lease, has settled to an average daily production of 406 barrels, following its completion last week. The output tests 23.6 degrees gravity. When brought in only a few days ago the production rate was estimated at 600 barrels, but the well slowed down soon afterward.

The decline of producers in the Signal Hill field, together with the number of wells now off production, is more than offsetting the new production reported from week to week, figures showing a steady drop in the total output of the field. Approximately wells at Signal Hill are cleaning out, or redrilling in an effort to regain production.

New wells for the week included the W. R. Ramsey Morrison No. 1, in the Reservoir Hill section, at State street near Loma avenue, producing approximately 1800 barrels from the 4540-foot level, and the Shell Company's Alamitos No. 14, with 1100 barrels from the 5001-foot level.

COMPANY BUYS LEASE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, June 22.—The Marland Oil Company has acquired from L. S. Robinson of this place a choice lease in the west front extension of the Kern River field, where the Standard has begun a heavy development program.

The tract comprises eighty acres and lies northwest of the Standard wells on Section 27. The bonus for the lease was $100 an acre, with a one-sixth oil royalty.

The legal description of the lease acquired is the west half of the southwest quarter of Section 22, 28-27. Marland has holdings in Section 16 on the west front, and is planning an active development program.

ASSOCIATED OBTAINS MIDWAY FIELD TRACT

The Traders Oil Company has sold to the Associated Oil Company 100 acres in Section 23, 32-23 of the Midway field. The purchase price was $100,000 and the sale is subject to existing contracts with the Independent Oil Producers' agency, which expire next December.

NEW LEASE IS TAKEN ON OLD APACHE MINE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SALOME (Ariz.), June. 22.—Ernest and Dick Hall have taken a new lease on the Old Apache Mine, between Vicksburg and Quartzsite, and will soon resume shipment of ore. The property is one believed to have been worked many years ago by French trappers, who used a rude adobe smelter and who finally were killed by Indians.

BIG GAS FLOW INDICATED

Union Well in Rosecrans Field Blows Out Hurling Water, Mud, Rocks High in Air

That the Rosecrans district will be a place of many gas wells and tremendous gas pressure when oil development there has made greater progress was indicated early yesterday morning when the Chandler No. 1 well of the Union Oil Company blew out from a depth of 2190 feet, hurling water, mud and rocks 150 feet into the air.

Throughout the day and last night the giant gasser flung a column of water skyward, operators estimating that the flow of gas would measure fully 25,000,000 cubic feet a day. At a late hour last night the field department of the Union expressed the opinion that the gasser might subside today.

Chandler No. 1, equipped with an all-steel derrick, stands a trifle north and across Harbor Boulevard to the east of the Union's Rosecrans No. 1 at Athens-on-the Hill. The crew was removing drill pipe from the hole yesterday morning and had only six or eight more stands to take out when the gasser broke loose.

According to reports the drillers in several wells at Athens-on-the-Hill have found thin streaks of sand at a depth shallower than 3930 feet, which was the level at which the Union's Rosecrans No. 1 picked up a rich sand. It is believed that the Chandler No. 1 blew out when the drill went into one of these shallower sands. The 3930-foot sand in this district is expected by the big companies to yield enormous quantities of wet gas.

Rosecrans No. 1 has been cemented for the fourteenth time. It will be drilled out again today. This well is the actual discovery project of the district, although water trouble has prevented its being placed on production.

Activity in the new field is divided between the district around the only producing well—Union's Athens No. 1, at One Hundred and Thirtieth and Figueroa streets, and Rosecrans No. 1—a mile southeast. The terrific gas pressure in Chandler No. 1, located near the Rosecrans rig strengthens the prospects of this end of the field and points also to the field being one of considerable area, operators assert. The Union has over 1000 acres, covering both sections of the district. Ten wells of this company are in process of drilling there.

WELLS NEAR GUSHER LINE AT RIDEOUT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIDEOUT HEIGHTS, June 22. Seven wells in the Rideout Heights district are nearing the depth line at which gusher production was found a few months ago.

The Associated Oil Company is making progress in constructing its rig on the Gregg property and expects to spud in the well within the next few days. The Montjo-Johnson interests have not succeeded as yet in freeing the Clarke No. 1 well from litigation, it is asserted, but expect to start drilling again within a few days. That hole is down 2420 feet.

The McKeon Drilling Company has reached 2440 feet in this well, and the Mohawk Oil Company, drilling the Denny lease, is down 2500 feet and in hard sand. The Pan-American Petroleum Company, which is drilling the Jearum lease, has reached 2900 feet and, also is in hard sand.

The Petroleum Midway wells, drilling on property held under lease by James O'Donnell, has reached 3400 feet on the Pellisier lease and has drilled the Rideout-Hamburg well to the same depth. The Seward-Rideout well is down 300 feet and the Witte-Vining No. 1 well is drilling at 3450 feet.

The Standard Oil Company has cemented Patten No. 1, which has been drilled to 3050 feet, while the Home No. 21 well, drilled by the Standard Oil Company, has reached 700 feet.

The deepest new hole of the field is that drilled by the Taylor interests on property held by the California Royalties Company. This well is down 3700 feet and still is drilling. The well was orginally drilled to 3300 feet by the Argonaut Oil Company in the days before production at 4200 feet was believed possible. When the 4200-foot sand was located the well was taken over and the hole cleared. The O'Donnell interests are drilling their Whitley No. 3 and have reached 2200 feet.

Most of the available land, with the exception of small tracts, has practically all be taken over by the larger companies and the smaller operators and investors are waiting until the deepest wells are placed on production before taking advantage of the small tracts offered for sale.

ASSOCIATED OIL BUYS TRACT FROM TRADERS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, June 22.—The Traders' Oil Company has sold to the Associated Oil Company 100 acres in the Midway district. A $100 revenue stamp was affixed to the instrument, showing that $100,000 was paid for the property.

The land is described as the north half of the southwest quarter and the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of Section 23, 32-23.

MINING AREA INVADED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, June 22.—That oil development has invaded the mining district of Kern county is indicated by the fact that nine leases covering acreage in desert territory were filed Saturday in this city at the request of C. W. Harlow of Los Angeles.

The leases embrace 1138 acres and are made for twenty years. It is stipulated that one-eighth royalty will be paid for oil produced in commercial quantities. The wells are to be drilled to a depth of 3700 feet.

Description of the property shows it to be located in various sections of township 30, range 33 and township 30, range 37.

SHIP SINKS, CREW MISSING

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—The British steamer Clan MacMillan has been sunk in the Bay of Bengal and the crew of the vessel is missing, according to advices received by the marine department of the Chamber of Commerce here. No particulars were given.

SAN JUAN BASIN ACTIVITIES

Interest is Centered Around Various Pipeline Surveys Now in Progress in This Section

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FARMINGTON (N. M.) June 22.—Interest in oil activities in San Juan Basin now is centered around the oil pipe line surveys which have taken definite form and location. The survey for the pipe line from Hogback Dome to the Denver & Rio Grande Western railroad tracks in this city has been completed and the right of way secured. The work of construction will start just as soon as the shipment of pipe is received. It is now in transit. The line will consist of a three-inch pipe from Hogback Dome to Farmington.

The Santa Fe Company, which is operating on the Rattlesnake structure some fifteen miles west of the Hogback Dome's producing wells, has made application to tie in with the Midwest Refining Company pipe line at Hogback Dome, and the request has been granted. By means of its own line to Hogback Dome and then through the Midwest Refining Company line the Santa Fe Company will be able to deliver its products to the railroad in Farmington.

No other application for pipeline right of way over Indian lands has been made, according to a statement made by Herbert J. Hagerman, commissioner to the Navajo tribe.

There is much talk about refinery construction, but no official statement is ready, and probably will not be until the producing wells have been fully tested out, and wells on other structures have been brought in, or a successful test of production from the deeper sands have been made.

For the present, loading racks will be installed, and the oil, which is the highest grade ever produced in this country, will be taken to Salt Lake City, and Florence, Colo., where it will be mixed with heavier oil for refining.

FISHING JOBS

Work on all the H. L. Williams wells is going ahead, but fishing jobs on the three deepest holes have prevented much progress being made in recent days. Well No. 1 on the La Plata, is reported to be down 1100 feet, but has a fishing job on. Well No. 2 is reported at 1000 feet and is also fishing. No. 3, known as the Twin Buttes well, has not completed its fishing job that was started last week. No. 4 is drilling at 300 feet. No. 5 has recovered a bit that was lost in the hole and has resumed drilling at 525 feet.

Mr. Williams is putting a standard rig on the W. P. Church ranch, north of Bayfield, Colo., which is the farthest north that drilling has been attempted in the San Juan Basin field.

The Santa Fe Company, which is operating on the Rattlesnake structure, is drilling on well No. 4 at a depth of 500 feet, and expects to reach production the first of next week.

The Southwest Oil Company, which is drilling on Boundary Butte, has tested well No. 2 and has reported it to be a pumping proposition that will produce perhaps thirty barrels of oil and 100 barrels of water daily. The government is demanding that the water be shut off.

WELL COMPLETED

Its well No. 2, which was a validating hole, has been completed at a depth of a little over 500 feet and the crew is rigging up at the site of well No. 3. Considerable interest is manifested here as to what will be the government's attitude in regard to the wells on this structure, as they are on executive order territory.

The Carlton Bailey interests, drilling on the Table Mesa structure, have closed down at a depth of 2105 feet.

The Gypsy Oil Company is arranging to move its rig from the Tocito structure to the lease it purchased at the Ute Mountain auction, June 20.

Chromo well No. 1 is down 500 feet and its drillers closed a deal recently with California parties to put down another well on the same structure. The Bloomfield well, twelve miles east of Farmington, has been successful in mudding-off the water. A test of production will be made at an early date. The Farmington Petroleum Company is drilling at a depth of 800 feet. All drilling on the Hogback Dome has been suspended and will not be resumed until the pipe line is nearing completion, according to reports.

FOREIGN BONDS HIT HIGH MARK

Search for Higher Yields Given as Cause

Domestic Issues Suffer Slight Setback

Government Certificates in Similar Decline

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 22.—Sporadic outbursts of profit-taking interrupted, but did not halt the upward movement of bond prices last week. Although trading relaxed after the previous week's record-breaking business, the strong underlying demand for investment securities continued to exert a tonic effect on the market.

At the close of the week, the average price of leading foreign obligations was in a new high ground for the year, but that of domestic issues, after attaining a record level, fell back slightly.

Establishment of many new 1924 high records in the foreign list was said to reflect the search for higher yields, which were cut down by the rapid rise in corporation liens and to foreshadow a larger volume of foreign financing.

NATION'S BONDS DECLINE

At the same time a decline in United States government bonds indicated a transfer of surplus funds into lower-priced investments, notably Federal Land Bank obligations, of which a $35,000,000 issue was placed on the market.

International bankers refused to admit that any important foreign loans were being prepared for early flotation. However, they asserted that new financing could easily be absorbed despite the normal summer lapse in activity. Meanwhile the intimation from Federal Reserve sources that the recent cut in the rediscount rate should prove a boon to foreign financing and sharp rallies in Austrian, French, Belgian, Serbian and South American bonds were considered significant.

Although new offerings of the week approximated $100,000,000, this total failed to measure the volume of bonds actually distributed. Private sales of several large railroad issues, including $18,000,000 Chesapeake and Ohio equipments and $10,000,000 Rock Island notes, reflected the keen demand for high-grade securities.

STATE LOANS FAVORED

The continued ease of money rates resulted in unusually favorable terms for new State and municipal loans. North Carolina borrowed $2,000,000 for a short term at 2½ per cent and sold a $10,000,000 bond issue at a premium. New Jersey bonds also commanded a substantial premium.

Trading in domestic bonds during the week was marked by frequent unloading of liens acquired on the current upswing. Where profits were realized, however, funds usually were turned back into other sections of the market.

Shifting operations reduced the gains of Liberty bonds as buyers sought higher yielding railroad, public utility and industrial issues.

Denver and Rio Grande issues advanced smartly as the reorganization plan was put into operation. International and Great Northern bonds were affected adversely by court action to block the merger of the road with the Gulf Coast lines, but rallied sharply as the sale was completed despite this move.

MIDWAY-SUNSET INCREASE

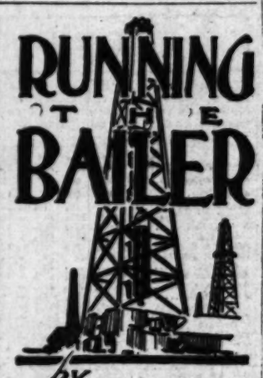
RUNNING THE BAILER



by An Old Scout

R. A. Broomfield, vice-president and manager of the Barnsdall Oil Company of California, has just returned from Montana, where the company has a 25 per cent interest with the Midwest Refining Company in 25,000 acres in the Lake Basin district, thirty-five miles northwest of Billings, Mont., where a 2000-barrel well on a 3500-acre structure has just been partially completed at a depth of 3324 feet, with 15,000,000 feet of gas at 2000 feet. The production comes from the Dakota sand, drilled into thirty-seven feet.

The crude is 47.3 degrees gravity carrying 46 per cent gasoline and 43 per cent wax distillate. A five-mile pipe line is being laid to Coutts, nearest railroad station, to load the crude into tank cars for shipment to the Midwest refineries at Graybull and Casper, Wyo. Later, if production warrants, a 230-mile pipe line will be laid to Casper, the plan being to divert the Cat Creek crude in Central Montana into the same line for blending with the Lake Basin crude, the Cat Creek crude, being higher gravity, lacking body. Nearest production to the Lake Basin well is Elk Basin, on the north line of Wyoming, eighty miles to the south.

H. G. James of Kansas City, Mo., and Wichita, Kan., is a Los Angeles visitor for several weeks, his itinerary including ten days of fishing at Catalina Island. For a brief period in 1902 Mr. James was lessee of a Los Angeles newspaper, but he gave up the lease and went to Independence, Kan., where he conducted a local daily and oil paper some years, he having been an oil reporter for some years previously at Bradford, Pa., a noted petroleum center. Mr. James was secretary of the Western Petroleum Refiners' Association at Kansas City, Mo., for three years and president for two years. He is now in the sales department of the Derby Oil & Refining Company at Wichita, Kan. Mr. James is well known to many petroleum-industry people in California.

Selecting the longest day in the year—June 21—George N. McGarvey and Miss Lucylle Pearle Huene were married here Saturday. They hurried away to Yosemite. When they return "Mac" will start hustling the sale of the oil-field specialties made by James P. Ratigan, Los Angeles, who resigned from the sales department of the Associated Supply Company after being associated with it three years.

The quarterly payment of annuities to Osage Indians at Pawhuska, Okla., was made during the week just ended. Each tribal member received $4300, the largest quarterly per capita disbursement ever made, the grand total reaching $9,584,700, there being 2221 annuitants on the list. By the death of relatives some of the tribal-roll members have fallen heirs to as much as from one and a fraction up to seven headrights, each one of which draws the full $4300. The per capita wealth of each Osage—adult and minor— is now $150,000 on the basis of the June payment. The bulk of this enormous individual income comes from cash bonuses for oil and gas leases and the one-sixth and better oil royalties and 3 cents per 1000 cubic feet royalty on all natural gas produced in the reservation and sold by the lessees. Some of the income comes from pasture and grazing rentals and odd resources, but oil is the principal item. In the fortune each Osage Indian owns inalienably. At this rate each Osage will receive $13,000 cash in 1924. At the last oil-lease sale in February three leases sold for nearly $2,000,000 each cash bonus, exclusive of the royalty, which is one-fifth when the average daily production per well of all wells on each 160-acre lease exceeds 100 barrels and one-sixth royalty from wells under 100 barrels average.

Another auction sale of Osage oil leases will be held June 30, when 130 tracts totaling 15,000 acres will be auctioned.

Last Minute News From Petroleum Fields and Marts of Trade

SAND REPORTED IN DOWNEY AREA

Many Holes Plugged Back to be Placed on Pump

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA FE SPRINGS, June 23. The steady encroachment of water which has lately resulted in four abandonments on the edge of the producing area in this field is counter-balanced by the latest report that an oil sand has been found in the test well being drilled by the C. C. Oil Association, near the center of Downey.

This well is down 4200 feet and the sand taken before the 4000-foot level was passed are said to indicate the presence of oil. The hole is standing at this time.

Oil men who have not looked upon the Downey district with a great amount of interest are at a loss to account for any connection between this test well and the Santa Fe Springs area, although the distance between them is comparatively slight.

Four wells to be abandoned in the fold include Union Oil Company Meyer No. 8; Associated Oil Company's Clarke No. 6 and Standard Oil Company's Watson No. 2.

The L. W. Houghton No. 1 well which was drilled by the Standard Oil Company and which is the property of the Associated holdings has been marked for abandonment, it is asserted. The Houghton well was drilled as a test of the northwest extension.

PLUG BACK

An epidemic of plugging back is about the Santa Fe Springs field. Nearly 10 per cent of the wells at this time last year are making phenomenal daily outputs from the Meyer sand and are being plugged back to the fold sand, where they will be placed on the pump.

Among the wells which are undergoing this treatment are the following: The Associated Oil Company's Green No. 1, which is a producer from 4740 feet; Union No. 1-A, drilled to 4700 feet and plugged back to 3760 feet; Jennings P. Getty's No. 2-A, Company's Leonard No. 1; Petroleum Midway's Beaver No. 3; Consolidated No. 1-A; Universal-Consolidated No. 3; York-Smullin No. 1; General Petroleum Corporation's Hill No. 37-A, and No. 1 Hill No. 2-A.L.K. No. 3. Many of these wells are now idle, will be plugged back and pumped on the shallower depth, in spite of the fact that the Schindler Oil Company has temporarily halted operations in drilling a test well near the La Marada tract, another test of the district is to be made. The Associated Company has announced that it will drill a deep well on the tract at a point not more than a mile from the location of the Petroleum Products Co. The workmen at the Shell Oil Company location have had a water shut-off has proved to be impossible so far, a cave-in and a fishing job have made matters worse.

Efforts of the Petroleum Midway Company to secure production in the district near Norwalk so far been in vain. The well is being drilled on the Neal tract and the well is now down 2000 feet and for the past 2000 feet a showing of interest has been encountered.

WORK HALTED

The Artesia Oil Company has been at work for a time on the Artesia tract. This hole has been down 2000 feet deep and reports have been that the well have been both encouraging and encouraging as to the depth went deeper. No oil or gas has been touched which was the object which was to be interested, but the well passed 2200 feet and is deserted by workmen at present.

At a depth of 1250 feet, the Shell Company's G.M.N. No. 2, made a showing of oil the first day. A production of fifty barrels of oil was drilled by the General Petroleum Corporation and placed at a depth of 4540 feet. The new well tested thirty-four degrees gravity. The Santa Fe No. 94-A, drilled by the Santa Fe Petroleum Corporation to a depth of 130 barrels from a depth of 4545 feet. The oil in this well is of high gravity, being less than thirty degrees.

The Shell Company has drilled to a depth of the deep zone in its property to 5300 feet and there have been no indications of deeper sand underlying the Rideout zone. No oil has been encountered since the level was passed.

Reports by ranchers living in the vicinity that the well which is now in that section by the Shell Company has touched a sand indicative of production at the outlook for the area is exceedingly bright, company officials deny that they have found anything

SEVENTEEN NEW WELLS IN BASIN

Los Angeles Region Reports Many Completions

Two Other Important Holes Finished in State

Work Ends on Three Dominguez Bores

Seventeen new oil wells were completed in the Los Angeles Basin during the week which ended Saturday. Two other completions were reported in the State, one in the Buena Vista Hills, making 700 barrels a day, and one near Fellows, flowing 2000 barrels a day, according to reports. The two latter were both important completions.

It is expected that two or three new wells will be finished in the Dominguez field this week. Within a fortnight, reports say, completions may be expected in the Rideout Heights district, where a gusher was struck on Christmas. Commercial production at Newport Beach, during the week just closed made that district take on real significance for operators.

MILLION-DOLLAR OIL CAMP ERECTED AT TORRANCE

ATTRACTIVE living conditions for employees are combined with the most modern facilities for tool making and the repair of oil well equipment at the $1,000,000 camp just completed at Torrance by the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company, oil producing organization for the Santa Fe Railway.

Located just west of the Torrance city limits on the Del Amo lease, the camp includes sixteen modern dwellings, two large dormitories, an office building, and machine shops and warehouses in which the company is now making all of its own special tools, dressing bits and all repairs for drilling and pumping equipment.

The camp is a miniature city, built upon modern ideas of city planning, combining the utilitarian with the artistic. It is modern in every aspect, from facilities for overhead conveyancing of heavy materials in the shops to landscape gardening. It marks somewhat of a departure in oil field operations in that it not only provides the means for complete independence of the company in the matter of oil tool machinig, but provides living conditions for employees amid surroundings made attractive by the landscape gardener, sanitary engineer and community planner.

The camp is served by a new spur track from the harbor line of the Santa Fe and by four roads built into the camp from Sonoma avenue in Torrance.

On the southwest corner are the shops, comprising ten buildings. Machinery in the shops is operated by electricity generated in the company's own power plant. All heavy material is conveyed by overhead electric cranes. Each building is given over to special work.

There is the big main machine shop, equipped with lathes, drill presses, steam hammers, and two large furnaces. Special shops handle blacksmithing, welding, carpentry and electrical work. There is a gas laboratory and gauger's laboratory and warehouse. One hundred and fifty men are employed in the shops.

The dwellings for foremen of the shops, drilling crews and members of the office staff are situated on both sides of a wide street built by the company. At the head of the street on a rise of ground is the office. In front of the office building a mass of flowers are blooming. In the center is a pool and fountain. The street on which the houses are located is decorated with trees recently set out.

The lawns and flowers are irrigated by a sprinkling system, the company having drilled its own water wells to supply the entire camp.

The dormitory for unmarried men is especially attractive. Sleeping quarters are large and well ventilated. A library and club-room is equipped with a large phonograph and supplied with magazines and newspapers.

In the office building one large room is given over to a peg map of the Torrance field. This map, according to operators, is one of the most interesting and complete in California. Strings of different colors, running from peg to peg represent the various strata in the Torrance formation.

Around each peg is pasted an accurate blue-print log of the well which the peg represents. The peg map room is a mecca for geologists of all the companies operating in the field and the company welcomes them all.

The story of Chanslor-Canfield operations in the Torrance field makes the longest and most interesting chapter in the history of the district.

On February 26, 1921, the company spudded in its Del Amo No. 1 well. A year and four months later this discovery well was brought in. It flowed at the rate of 790 barrels a day. It declined in a month to 300 barrels, around which point it hovered for a year. It is now yielding 200 barrels a day on the pump.

Having discovered the field, the Santa Fe began development of its Del Amo and Torrance leases by gradual stages. By August of last year the company had no more than ten producers in the field. The successful completion of the Midway Northern Oil Company's No. 1 in the Redondo Road district, ten months ago, however, ushered in an era of intensive development on small leases south of Redondo Road and forced the Santa Fe into an intensive offset program on both the north and south borders of the Torrance lease.

Last winter the company was forced to go in on the Kettler lease, south and east of the intersection of Arlington avenue and Redondo Road. This lease, comprising 200 acres, is now practically drilled up and has seventeen wells on production.

It was only recently that the company had anything other than offset wells on the Torrance lease, but several inside wells are now producing and the company is drilling up the property rapidly.

Despite its intensive drilling program of the past ten months, the Santa Fe is reported to have under lease enough proven acreage for 200 more wells, widely spaced.

The Santa Fe has 3324 acres under lease in the Torrance field. More than 2000 acres lies north of that city. There the company has but one producer—Dominguez No. 1, which is making about forty barrels per day. Another test is being drilled on this northern acreage near Western avenue, where promising showings of oil formation have been picked up at various levels.

Most of the future development by this company will take place on the Del Amo lease. Practically all of this property lies within proven territory, although there are only thirteen producers on the lease. The Del Amo tract has not been characterized by large production, except in the extreme southeastern corner. Most of the Del Amo wells are pumpers, ranging from 150 to 400 barrels a day. Drilling depths on this lease vary from 3200 to 3700 feet.

When the Torrance lease is drilled up, which will be in a few months, the company will center its activities on the Del Amo property and probably will experiment considerably on its acreage north of Torrance, it is asserted.

While most of the excitement in the Torrance field took place in the Lomita area, where wells went in "hub to hub," the activities of the Chanslor-Canfield Company and a few other of the larger operators have been less spectacular but probably more profitable. The larger operators have found profit in the Torrance field.

Although it is two years old, this field is just coming into its own. It is agreed that the daily production is close to the peak, yet the large amount of drilling yet to be done convinces observers that the decline will be gradual, and that the wells on the big leases should be pumping oil for fifteen or twenty years.

From seventy-four producers Chanslor-Canfield is getting more than 13,000 barrels of oil per day in the Torrance field. Its development program there is not half completed.

At present there are 900 employees on the Chanslor-Canfield pay roll in Torrance. Of these, 500 are in the drilling department, 250 in the office and production departments and 150 in the shops.

Arizona Town Is Deserted as Mining Shifts

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLIFTON (Ariz.) June 22.—Since consolidation of most of the mining operations of this locality at Morenci, the mining camp of Metcalf, near the head of Chase Creek, has been a deserted village.

Only a few years ago it was a thriving hamlet, with a bank and several large stores maintained by operations on Shannon Hill and in the Coronado section by the Shannon Copper Company and Arizona Copper Company.

It still has great beds of low-grade copper ore, well situated with regard to transportation by a narrow-gauge railway to Clifton, or through great tunnels into Morenci, but, for the present, mining is suspended for reasons of economy.

Attention to the camp has been called by the fact that the County Assessor has posted notice of the fifty houses in Metcalf, buildings on which taxes have not been paid and which had been abandoned by their owners. A number of light structures later are to be sold in Morenci and Clifton for the same reason.

RIGHTS OF McADOO, JR., SUSTAINED

He and Partner Granted Permit to Continue Work in Kern County

William G. McAdoo, Jr., and Robert I. Gilbert of this city may continue oil-well drilling operations without interruption on an eighty-acre parcel of land in the Wheeler Ridge district of Kern county, according to a ruling of the Secretary of the Interior, whereby a protest filed with the local land office by Robert I. Branch, of Kern county has been dismissed. Branch, who holds a patent to the land, under the Stock Raising Homestead Act, sought to have drilling operations stopped on the grounds that the United States has not the right to sever the surface estate from the mineral estate in granting a patent to government land.

The decision of the Secretary of the Interior upheld rulings of Register Valentine and Receiver Smith of the local land office, and of the Commissioner of the General Land Office on the question raised by Branch. Evidence introduced in the case shows that McAdoo and Gilbert now are drilling a well which is down 3500 feet.

After Branch had received a patent on 160 acres of land, which reserved the mineral rights to the government, Edward F. Brittan was granted a permit to prospect for oil and gas. Subsequently Brittan assigned eighty acres to McAdoo and Gilbert on which the latter began their drilling operations.

In his protest Branch contested also the right of Brittan to assign a part of his patent. He likewise sought to have McAdoo and Gilbert held liable under their assignment bond for damages said to have been sustained by him as a result of the drilling operations.

STRIKE CLOSES PLANT

INDIANAPOLIS, June 22.—The Moses Rosenthal Company, manufacturers of underwear, closed down its Booneville plant indefinitely, following a strike of 160 women employees. Trouble which has been brewing for some weeks, culminated when more than 100 women and girls left the plant on account of dissatisfaction over the scale of wages.

WONDER WELL SETS RECORD

Signal Hill Hole Has Produced Nearly Million and a Half Barrels of Oil

[By a "Times" Staff Correspondent.]

LONG BEACH, June 22. Classed as one of the three best holes in the Signal Hill field, the Marine No. 7 of the Marine Oil Company, first of the great wells in the Lovelady Pool, is believed by oil men to have established a new record for acreage recovery of oil.

The hole has produced more than 300,000 barrels of oil per acre and today continues as one of the best wells in the field. Its production yesterday was 3256 barrels of 27.5 gravity oil. The well's total output today is in excess of 1,490,000 barrels of high-gravity crude.

It was completed early last year. It is roughly estimated, operators say, that from 125,000 to 200,000 barrels of oil should be recovered from each well in such a field as Signal Hill, the estimate being based on figures which show the average production of wells per acre throughout the United States.

MARKETS SHOW IMPROVED TONE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 22.—Plentiful supplies of money seeking employment, and a firm undertone in most securities and commodity markets were the main characteristics of the past week in finance and business. When the week opened the markets had sustained a nine-day advance and the majority of observers predicted at least a temporary halt, partly on expected profit-taking and partly on the belief that the extent of the rise indicated that much of the buying needs for investment purposes had been satisfied.

While the security markets were resting, the bulk of the industrial news received during the week indicated that readjustment of manufacturing operations to conform to stocks of commodities on hand and current consumptive demand was still going on. Sharp curtailment in the production and sale of motor vehicles adversely affected manufacturing lines dependent on the automobile industry. Despite efforts made earlier in the year to reduce stocks and to cut down output of tires, the leading tire companies decided last week to lower prices in the hope of stimulating sales. Reductions averaging 10 per cent were announced by important factors in the trade.

SITUATION UNSETTLED

Meanwhile the situation in the oil industry remained in delicate balance. Consumption of gasoline increased with the warmer weather, but was insufficient to remove the menace of record surplus stocks, in view of the continued high output of crude oil. Leading producers in the Midcontinent field, in an effort to maintain present price levels, sought further curtailment of production. Proration by the proper lines was resorted to in an effort to remedy the situation.

Further reduction in steel output accompanied a decline in consumption. While the tangible evidence was mostly unfavorable there were scattered indications of improvement. Steel ingot production which is now at a rate of about 45 per cent of capacity, decreased but slightly and competent observers predicted that the low point in mill production would hardly come later than the middle of July with a rate of perhaps 40 per cent. Liquidation in the steel market it was felt, was almost completed, and the number and character of orders received by mills gave evidence that the turn might be near. Activity was expected to increase in the automobile industry with the introduction of new models next month.

WHEAT ADVANCE FELT

Financial and business quarters last week gave an increasing share of their attention to the sharp recovery in the wheat market. Wheat had a sharp and consistent rise following publication of the government's lower crop estimate. The advance carried prices of futures up nearly fifteen cents a bushel and the trade confidently predicted that the market's strength would be sustained by an estimated shortage in the world's supply. With wheat selling on a basis to yield the farmers a profit, business felt that much progress would be made in healing over a sore foot of long standing and that increased purchasing power in farming communities might go far to offset a decline in buying from industrial centers.

SHAFT BEING SUNK TO NEW KAY ORE LEVELS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, June 22.—Jack Harrington of Miami has finished sinking a three-compartment shaft on the Kay property, in the Canyon district, north of Phoenix, from the 770 level to the 1220, and will drift for the company under a known ore body, to the westward. New ore of large value was cut below 1030 feet of depth.

ORE SHIPMENTS FROM EL TIRO STILL HEAVY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TUCSON (Ariz.) June 22.—Percy Williams is continuing large shipments of 9 per cent copper ore from the El Tiro property to the Hayden smelter. This property last year was bonded to the Calumet & Arizona Company, which relinquished its option.

LAYS CLAIM TO PART OF LONDON

[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger]

LONDON, June 22.—Down in Clapham there is an old-age pensioner, well past fourscore, who lays claim to enormous estates covering half of South London. Such claims pop up from time to time and then no more is heard of them, but there is sufficient basis in this one to warrant a hearing which will be held shortly in the law courts. Property worth $300,000,000 is at stake.

The claimant is William Adrian Allery, and the grounds for his claim are explained by a cousin, J. Whiteway Allery, a Welsh missionary. The estate, according to the claimant's kinsman, embraces the whole of Brixton, Stockwell and Streatham and part of Lambeth, Walworth, Balham, Thornton, Heath, Purley and Riddlestown, its value carrying an annual income of approximately $5,000,000—not a bad windfall for an old-age pensioner.

"William Adrian Allery is the lineal descendant of the first John Angell, from whom the property descended," explained the cousin. "The daughter of John Angell had three children by her husband, a Mr. Benedict. The second of the children, a daughter, married a Mr. Claxton in a church in St. John's, Newfoundland. When the island was captured by the French the church was burned down.

"Mr. and Mrs. Claxton, a fortnight later, sailed for England in the Royal George. The ship went down when only four days out and all aboard were lost. Elizabeth Claxton, the third child, married Samuel Allery at Townsall, Dartmouth.

CERTIFICATE FOUND

"The certificate of this marriage came to be known as the missing link, inasmuch as my cousin has spent much of his lifetime in searching for it. He felt that together with the other documents he had gathered, this certificate would place his claim beyond dispute. Then, while searching recently in the records of St. Saviour's Church, Dartmouth, he came across a number of loose leaves that had been torn out of Townsall Church register, which is in the neighborhood.

"These leaves proved to have written on them the marriage lines that had been lost for 200 years. The clergyman verified the documents and gave the searchers a certificate of marriage. This certificate made my cousin's evidence complete."

The claimant of this stretch of improved London property, five miles square, has a peculiar enlargement of the second joint of the right-hand little finger. Inquiry elicited the fact that this peculiarity is evident in all male members of the Allery line and has come down from the crooked finger on the sword hand of William the Conqueror, from whom they are descended.

When asked what his feelings were in prospect of such fabulous wealth in his family, the cousin of the claimant said: "I hardly know what to think about it all, but it certainly seems a pity that my cousin had to pass his eightieth year before being able to lay claim to what was rightfully his birthright. I say claim, because he is very confident of bringing the affair to a successful issue in the courts."

The Affair at Othman's

BY WILL PAYNE

Synopsis: Frederick Othman, half Turk and wholly mysterious, immensely wealthy, lives alone save for a retinue of servants in a mansion whose greatest glory is Daphne, a $700,000 Titian nude, completely filling one wall of a great room set aside for the painting. Nelson Barlow, a bachelor-about-town and ex-well man assistant secretary of a company controlled by Othman, has stolen $147,000 of company funds and, knowing Othman has documentary proof of his guilt, comes to beg for mercy. Othman reminds him that he, Barlow, is supposed to have something on" Stanford Marsden, father of Flora Marsden, a pottery girl whom the Turk secretly plans to marry. He demands the details. Barlow's story is to the effect that years ago Marsden had a clandestine affair with one Marie Latour and that Marie Marsden, subnormal mulatress in an obscure Maine hotel, is his daughter and Marie Latour's. The hotel is run by Kate Chadwick. Othman tells Barlow of his ambition to wed Flora Marsden—"Tops" Marsden, she is called —and indicates that Barlow shall arrange it as the price of continued liberty. Barlow suggests that Othman shall remove the tattering Marsden shipping firm and become a hero in the girl's eyes. He mentions her cousin, a reporter, as a possible obstacle. This cousin is Phillip Kendall, now a reporter on the Evening Forum. He is in love with pretty "Tops" Marsden already.

After leaving the house at the end of his first call Kendall wondered how he had looked to her, and that made him laugh. His hair was a sort of dusty brown, thick and stubborn; his eyes gray and round, probably much like an owl's; there was a cleft in his chin. No doubt his clothes looked seedy enough to her. Of course he could have found out the proper clothes to wear for an afternoon call; any Fifth-avenue shop would have told him and he could have bought them. But not for a whole regiment of charming cousins would he have done anything as silly as that. He was, for the present, a newspaper reporter, earning fifty dollars a week. To no charming cousin would he have presented himself in clothes which suggested that he was anything else than an obscure young man from Indiana earning fifty dollars a week. Cousins, and all others, must take him exactly for what he was or not take him at all.

This cousin did at once take him—under her self-confident wing, as Barlow said. Within six weeks she was surveying him critically and pronouncing judgment. "No, Phil, those studs aren't right. I'll show you where to get some. I saw 'em in a shop window the other day. They're imitation—only four dollars—but they're just as good. We'll go get 'em tomorrow afternoon—no, Thursday." Or, "Wait, let me fix it," and she reknotted his tie. With a laugh he let himself sink to the state of a sort of grown-up infant in her hands, while she sagely showed him his way about town. He was presently invited to spend half of his two weeks' vacation at the Marsdens's old place on Cape Cod. By that time he understood that the Marsdens places were no longer fashionable. Flora herself candidly told him about that.

"Find me a nice young man, sound, well broken, and gentle, not over 30, with $3,000,000; or, if 40, with $4,000,000. I might consider a man above 60 if the doctors will warrant him not to hang on too long and he has $10,000,000."

She was gayly cynical about it. One must have plenty of money, because it was stupid always to be keeping an eye on the small change; that ruined the fun. As for love, that was so easy; no trouble at all about falling in love; one might just as well fall in love with a well lined man as with a man who had no lining. She took it all so blithely that he would have been shocked at overhearing Mrs. Vandermass's opinion that Flora Marsden was a type of the new generation of girls who came out of the shell hard boiled.

He was an empty-handed beggar with a reporter's lodgings to offer her. At moments when he had poignantly realized what was in his heart regarding her he trampled himself under foot for an ingrate and ass. He carried a good deal of ballast—rock ballast, perhaps. Often that sort has a high pride also. He would as soon have jumped off the Woolworth tower as invite her to share his lodgings. Not, in fact, that he had any idea she would accept the invitation.

He thought he understood her attitude perfectly. To her he was the distant, unfriended, rather disadvantaged relation, trying to gain a foothold. When he finally told her the secret, she was all eagerness about the novel whose ground plan he was trying to get settled in his mind—taking him under her shining wing, as though her fuller worldly experience of New York made her the elder of the two. He thought he understood that, when she told him about the family's state and her matrimonial ambitions, she meant him to take the jests in earnest and be warned not to commit the dismal folly of imagining a romance between them. How forever kind and dear she had been to him, he would by no means repay that with the imbecility of making hopeless love to her.

Just now, while she stooped to the flowers, he stared over at her with a melting sense of her exquisiteness. With a wrench of the heart he shut his jaw, pushed the iron home, and got up with a smile, crossing over to her. They were laughing when Nelson Barlow came in to claim Flora.

A half minute of three-cornered conversation before Kendall took leave would have been fairy obligatory. It strung out to two minutes, and Nelson Barlow, blandly observant, had a misgiving. There was something in the air; their eyes seemed to cling. H'm—possibly this young reporter was to be taken more seriously than he had thought. That might need looking to.

Barlow took Flora into tea and skillfully led the conversation around to the precise point he'd had in mind when he asked her to meet him, although the pretended reason was something altogether different. The idea seemed to strike him off guard; his brow furrowed; he looked embarrassed—fumbled at it a little and finally brought it out, appealing to her with a worried air:

"Tell me, Tops—your father, now; have you noticed anything of late—well, that gave you anxiety?"

Her heart caught the note of alarm and she answered, wondering: "Why, I know he's disturbed about business. Shipping's in a bad way, it seems. I know he's worried. He's spoken two or three times as though it might go to smash. But, why do you ask, Nelly? Is it going to smash?"

"I'm afraid it's close to the rocks," he answered soberly. "But it isn't that. Businesses do go to smash, you know. Often nobody can help it. Take this shipping business, for example. It's really a result of the war—beyond anybody's reach. It isn't that." He tapped the ash off his cigarette, and frowned down at the table, deliberating. "A business going to smash is one thing. A man going to smash is another. Do you think your father is quite well?"

"Why, I think so," she said, alarms gathering in her breast. "He's never been as rugged since that operation three years ago."

Barlow seemed to catch at that as a sort of solution. "No!" he said. "I thought so, too. Of course, he's been under a big strain. He worked like a tiger all during the war, never sparing himself. At 50 a man can't stand twelve hours a day as he can at 25. And that operation; a physical let down; that would have its effect on a man's mind. Of course, it's nothing to talk about. But it's sort of sticking in my mind. The other day he said something I wouldn't have paid any attention to ordinarily. He might, you know, be getting an idea of taking the bit in his teeth." He immediately added, "Don't say anything, Tops. Don't even think anything. But I know you've got sand. Keep steady and keep watch, will you?"

In spite of alarm her heart paid tribute to Barlow as a stanch friend of the family. "Yes, I will, Nelly! Indeed, I will! You must keep watch, too; but I know you'll do that!"

"I'll do what I can, Tops," he replied soberly, and looked at his watch. Are you going home? "I believe I'll trot down with you. I hadn't meant to speak of this to you. But now that I have"—he smiled—"we can do some teamwork." He beckoned the waiter, and asked for the check.

Meantime tea was served elsewhere. For instance, in this house which looks across Washington Square at Greenwich Village and Little Italy with the proud detachment of a colonial dame looking at a rabble—a dame who has seen better days. It is four stories high, of mellow old red brick, the exposed west wall covered with ivy. The simple lines give the balance and harmony which make good architecture; and the grace of the doorway, with its fanlight, is all the more charming because the house as a whole is so reserved. It was built by the Elbridge Marsden, whose name figures honorably in New York annals of 1840 and '50, the builder having been a grandfather of the present owner. That Elbridge Marsden had a grandfather honorably known to colonial annals. For six generations the family has held a position of respect; they'd had speaking parts, distinguishable from the mere chorus.

All of which made a sort of background to the thoughts of the present Stamford Marsden as he sat in that pleasant room on the second floor, where the family usually foregathered, with its simple white wood mantel and the long gilt mirror above it that dated from Grandfather Elbridge Marsden. The present Marsden was 51, a tall, generously framed man with the look of one who had worked hard and perhaps had lived hard—a slight stoop in the big shoulders, deep lines at each side of the mouth which was thatched by a heavy yellow mustache. Ample nose and chin thrust out vigorously, and the blue eyes were slightly filmy, as a seaman's eyes sometimes are. He would have made up very well for a somewhat aged Viking chief, but his large hand held nothing more formidable than a tea cup.

"Looks as though the flag would come down," he commented, staring at a window. "I thought Lehman would renew the loan—for old lang syne, maybe." A faint smile appeared under the heavy mustache as he confessed to that sentimental hope. "Ships! You couldn't borrow cab fare on ships now, with the business knocked into a cocked hat all over the world and the government's 12,000,000 tons likely to come on the market for a song. And ships are all I've got." A dolorous little laugh escaped him. "Reminds me of a story they told me in Texas years ago. Sheep were so cheap that a carload wouldn't fetch enough in Chicago to pay the freight. An old sheep grower shipped three carloads to Chicago, and got a wire from his commission house: 'Sheep brought so much, freight so much, deficit so much, send money at once.' He wired back, 'There is no more money, will ship more sheep.' Well, that's the condition of the shipping business." He told the story sportsmanly, but ended with a little sigh, and raised the tea cup to hide it.

His wife asked low, with an anxious woman's sympathy, "They'll not renew the loan?" Her personal pronoun referred to the eminent banking house of Lehman & Co.

Marsden put the cup down and answered without looking at her, as though it were a sort of death sentence, "They haven't got it. They've sold the loan to Othman. He took over the Star and Triangle Line last week."

Mrs. Marsden's soft, dark hair was peppered with gray, which made it all the softer. Her brown eyes were soft, also. She was still slender and graceful, dancing as well as her daughter when she was able to dance at all, for her health was precarious.

She bent her head, yet with pride, and observed, "I had no great opinion of Lehman & Co., but I shouldn't have thought they would have done that. I remember your father's telling me how Lehman came to him, hat in hand, to get the name of Marsden on his books. Of course, he's dead now—and in heaven, I suppose, with the original peddler's pack on his back."

Marsden grinned a little, and answered, "All that isn't the story now. Nothing's in the story except that Othman holds m. paper and I can't pay. Of course, he and Lehman work together. They'd toss me over to him if he asked it. Had to, maybe; he may own 'em for all I know. He bobs up owning all kinds of things." He brushed his big mustache with a bent knuckle and glanced up at Grandfather Marsden's portrait. "Well, the flag's been nothing to be ashamed of. Naturally, I hate to be the one to pull it down, but crying will not help."

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S.S.S. builds blood-power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-blood. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

Is Wanted in New Jersey Killing

Listed in Round-up of Auto Thief Suspects

Arrives to Expose Police Bootlegging in East

Facing a charge of being a member of a gang of local automobile thieves, A. J. Durkin, 30 years of age, yesterday confessed, according to police, that he is wanted in Newark, N. J., on a charge of murdering a policeman there.

Durkin's confession was said to have been made after the police identification bureau identified him as the New Jersey murder fugitive. Circulars broadcast over the nation in an effort to bring the arrest describe him as a man with whom policemen have had dealings.

Besides the asserted confession of Lieutenant Steffen of the police homicide squad of Newark authorities to learn details of the murder charge. Chief of Police of Newark said Durkin should be held, regardless of the indictment was to be returned, and steps would be taken immediately to extradite him.

Durkin's confession which Durkin said cleared the existence of a criminal conspiracy in the Newark police department to violate the Volstead Act.

HIS HEADS WILL FALL

"I'll not take a fall out of me, but I'm a lot of others fall at their heads," Durkin told Detective Lieutenant Stevens, while he was making the statement. "You'll probably find that everything is all right because I was a 'lookout' when the shooting occurred and it was accidental. There was a lot of excitement there, though, and plenty of cops should get theirs in a big way."

Durkin, according to his own story, was wanted for suspected participation in the killing of Policeman Pete Bardoski of Newark during a raid on a warehouse in March, 1923.

The version of the affair is that the police were staging a series of raids, seizing several truck loads of whisky, hooking a few for evidence and taking the booze for their own use. On the second of that character in which Durkin was a part, Durkin says, he and Samuel Shafer and another named Greenberg, were left to watch the warehouse. A few minutes later, Shafer came running to where I was and said there was shooting going on inside. I ran off.

"I heard the next morning that Shafer had been shot but he got out because he was a pal of the gang. He died two years and I left for California. I've been over since."

Durkin was living with his wife on Forest Boulevard at the time of his arrest. He was taken into custody by Officers Freeman and Wood of the police reserves after a round-up of a gang of six accused of making a business of stealing automobiles and selling them for the accessories. Durkin told the officers he was a lineman for an ex-policeman from Buffalo, N. Y.

ODD HOME CHOSEN BY ENGLISHMEN

In a lonely Martella tower on the Essex coast of England there has just died the last of four brothers, who, refusing to allow women to their household, lived by themselves for nearly sixty years.

All were talented men. William Cole was a naturalist, who founded the Essex Museum at Stratford and the Essex Field Club. Benjamin Cole was an entomologist and Henry Cole, the last to die, was an artist, etcher and sculptor.

The tower was a curious, though somber, residence. It is difficult of access, for it is surrounded by a moat over twenty feet deep and thirty feet wide. This is crossed by a narrow gangway, which can be drawn in.

A heavy oaken door leads into the tower, the walls of which are eight feet thick. Below are dungeons, while the roof is reached by a narrow, dark stairway built in the thickness of the wall. From the top the brothers could obtain magnificent views seaward over the North Sea, over the estuary of the Colne and Blackwater, and across to Colchester and Ipswich.—[Exchange.

CAT EATS PET ALLIGATOR

A friend sent George H. Shaw, a merchant of Chazy, an alligator direct from the swamps of Florida. It was placed in the window of the shop and fed on meat.

The 'gator was a great attraction to all except a large tom-cat. Until the arrival of the warrior from the Sunny South, the Thomas cat had been the apple of the owner's eye. Now it appeared the intruder from the Southland was putting the pride under him.

The cat fixed many mean looks on the 'gator, which returned them by snapping his long jaws. Then one night it happened. The cat disappeared. The light of dawn disclosed the 'gator torn to shreds with all the choice parts eaten. Pussy is now the household pet.—[Exchange.

Strange Horse

The two laborers stood idly resting together on matters of importance.

"Say, Jim," asked the first man, "what horse is going to win the three-thirty today?"

"What about Saucy Sally?" suggested the other.

"What about work?" chimed in the voice of the foreman, who happened to come along at that minute.

"Work?" queried the first speaker. "Never heard of it. Who trains it?"—[Exchange.

Forebodings

"Really, my dear, I wish you would not name the baby Albert."

"Oh, the boys can call him Bert."

"How do you know they will choose that syllable?"—[Boston

SHE HAS CAUSE TO VOTE FOR 'CHARLEY'

Upper, Mrs. Abigail Bentz; Lower, Charles G. Dawes

Mrs. Abigail Bentz wants to vote for Charles G. Dawes for Vice-President of the United States. She has a good reason for wishing to help Mr. Dawes with her vote.

Years ago, he recognized the ability of her daughter, Edna, as a pianist and composer, when the girl was but 15 years of age, and he financed the publishing of her first composition. Not only that, but he had her come to his home on all occasions to meet musicians of note, and it was there that she first came in contact with Joseph Hofmann who now plays her compositions on the concert stage. Mr. Dawes himself is an accomplished musician, and at that time he made a yearly practice of playing first flute with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra on New Year's Eve. On these occasions he asked little Edna Bentz to accompany the orchestra on the piano.

Outside of his love for music, Mrs. Bentz stated yesterday that Mr. Dawes always has been noted for his frankness. He also is particularly fond of teasing his wife by playing little amusing tricks on her. On the most formal of occasions, when dignity falls heavily upon the party, Mr. Dawes particularly delights in doing something outrageously funny and undignified to break up the chill formality about him. If the people he is with are of proud Puritan ancestry, and are conscious of the fact, then Mr. Dawes can be relied upon, according to Mrs. Bentz to come forth with a story of some particularly weak spot in his own line of descent.

"He's a wonderful man," Mrs. Bentz stated yesterday. "He always is planning to help someone to realize a dream, and he has the kindest heart in the world. No one knows all the good he has done to young struggling musicians of Chicago. There will be a lot of people in the country who when they go to the polls to vote for him will be remembering something kind he has done for them. I'm glad he is going to run for Vice-President. He's a fine man."

KNIGHTS AID "Y" CAMPAIGN

Action Order Puts Team in Field for Harbor Building; Workers Report Today

The Angels' Gate Assembly No. 1740 of the Knights of Columbus of Los Angeles Harbor has passed a resolution indorsing the building of the Y.M.C.A. social service building at Los Angeles Harbor for the use of the 12,000 sailors of the Pacific Fleet, as well as recommending to the individual members of the order give financial support to the campaign.

The Knights of Columbus recommend that the welfare conditions in the community of San Pedro and the recommendation of the Secretary of the Army and Navy that there are lacking and that classes or creed of every citizen of Los Angeles be put out of the campaign. It is hoped that $100,000 to match the $100,000 offered from New York for the erection of a building in Los Angeles in the near future. San Diego, San Francisco and other navy-

Over 400 Los Angeles business men are today actively engaged in soliciting funds in this campaign which will continue for one week. The workers will meet at the Biltmore every day this week except Saturday to hand in their reports. Today noon the first announcements of contributions will be made and R. H. Ballard, chairman of the general committee, urges all generals, admirals, captains and privates in the army of workers to be on hand to give and get the first news.

DYNAMITE CAP BLAST HURTS BOYS

One May Die; Hand Mangled by Percussion Bomb

Three boys were injured, one possibly fatally, as the result of the delayed explosion of a dynamite cap which they are said to have stolen early yesterday from the Simons Brick Company plant on Mission Road.

Juan Moreno, 10 years of age, of 116 Llewellyn street, lay in the surgical ward of the General Hospital last night with all but two fingers blown from his hands. His condition was reported as serious, with the possibility of infection that may cause his death. Antonio Gandora, 13, of 1217 1-2 North Main street, was confined in the General Hospital with severe burns and lacerations. Pico Miranda, 14, 116 Llewellyn street, was removed to his home after treatment at the Receiving Hospital.

The three boys, according to Detective Romero, who investigated, broke into the powder-house of the plant and carried off five of the caps.

One of the caps was wrapped in a newspaper and then set afire. The paper burned and when the cap failed to explode, the Moreno boy walked up to it to investigate. He took it up in his hands just as it exploded. The other two boys were standing beside him.

TWO KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

A man and a girl were killed in traffic accidents here yesterday.

The girl, Anna Sallard, 6 years of age, was struck at the intersection of Twenty-seventh street and Santa Fe avenue by an automobile with such force she was thrown twenty feet to a vacant lot. Her head was almost severed from her body and she died instantly, according to the report to Deputy Sheriffs Phillips and Chappell.

Following the accident the deputies arrested J. Peres, 802 Mateo street, and lodged him in the County Jail on suspicion of manslaughter. Peres had been drinking, the officers reported. The body of the girl, who lived at 3544 Hunter street, is being held at the Central Avenue Undertaking Company.

The other victim is Frank Henderson, 63, 2656 Magnolia street. He was run down at Berkeley avenue and Alvarado street by a Pacific Electric car, suffering injuries from which he died a short time later. According to Motorman Hinkens, the victim walked across the street into the path of the car.

Mrs. Edith Warne, 40 years of age, of 144 North Hobart Boulevard suffered injuries which may prove fatal in a collision between the car in which she was riding and another automobile driven by Hal S. Easton of 655 West Thirtieth street. Police, after an investigation, placed Easton under arrest on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The accident occurred at the intersection of West Sixth street and Wilton Place. Mrs. Warne and her small daughter Patricia were riding in an automobile driven by Mr. Warne. The car piloted by Easton struck the Warne machine with such force as to overturn it. Mrs. Warne was pinned beneath the machine. Her husband and daughter, however, escaped with minor injuries. She was removed to the Receiving Hospital, where physicians stated she is in a critical condition, with internal and other injuries.

Miss Bowler New Secretary for Red Cross

Appointments of Miss Alida C. Bowler as executive secretary of the Los Angeles Chapter of the Red Cross was announced yesterday by D. C. MacWatters, chairman of the chapter. The appointment of Miss Bowler is the first step in a reorganization plan recently drafted and recommended by a special committee of the board appointed for that purpose.

Miss Bowler for the past year has been director of the Red Cross service in the Veterans' Bureau Hospital at Palo Alto. She served overseas during the war and has had wide experience in social and welfare work. At one time she was stationed in Los Angeles as field representative for the United States Inter-departmental Social Hygiene Board.

POLA AGAIN IN TRYSTING NOOK

Charlie Chaplin's Old Ghost Appears Forgotten

She Swims, Golfs, Rides and Denies Engagement

History repeats itself, Pola Negri, tragic queen of filmdom, is again reported to be displaying a fiance at Del Monte Lodge.

Pola Negri

But this time it is not Charles Spencer Chaplin.

No! On the very grounds where, two summers ago, she played golf, rode horseback, swam and sought secluded nooks with the famous comedian, the actress is said to be duplicating the act—only with another—Rod La Rocque.

Rod la Rocque

Pola won't admit she and La Rocque are engaged. The only thing she say is she finds the climate and settings at Del Monte Lodge "very romantic." But, according to reports, the actress calls La Rocque "Rudy" and he calls her "Dear," and friends of the couple declare they are very much in love.

Sunday night Pola gave a dinner party at the Del Monte Grill and La Rocque sat on her right hand, undisturbed by the ghost of Chaplin, who once occupied the same position at a similar dinner.

La Rocque and Miss Negri are constantly seen together on the golf links and bridle paths. Miss Negri will remain at the lodge for about a month, it is said.

Drive Against Opium Smokers Is Agents' Plan

With the coming of several new Federal narcotic agents to the Los Angeles office July 1, when the annual appropriations take effect, a campaign will be conducted against opium dens in the city, it was learned yesterday.

In preparation for the raids Agent Jack Denison has been conducting a secret investigation. He is convinced that opium smoking is a vice among many wealthy and prominent persons.

Within the last few years narcotic addicts have deserted opium, preferring to use heroin and morphine, which can be "sniffed" and "shot." Opium smoking was confined to Chinatown. However, Denison's investigation indicates that narcotic addicts, eager for fresh sensations, have returned to "hitting the opium pipe."

FRAT ANNIVERSARY FETE

The eightieth anniversary of the founding of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity will be celebrated today with an all-day barbecue and reunion at the Sentous ranch, Walnut. Preparations have been made for the entertainment of 150 members of the society. Alvin Sentous is chairman of the day's festivities.

DR. KURTZ, PHYSICIAN, SUCCUMBS

Dr. Joseph Kurtz, 82 years of age, one of the founders of the Los Angeles County Medical Society and one of the city's first physicians, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 1501 South Toberman street. Death was due to apoplexy.

Dr. Kurtz came to Los Angeles fifty-six years ago and has resided here continuously since that time. He retired from active practice ten years ago, but before that he had established a reputation throughout the Southland. He was actively identified with the early development of the city.

He leaves a son, Dr. Carl Kurtz, one brother, William Kurtz, and three sisters, Mrs. R. L. Horton and Mrs. John A. McGarry of Los Angeles and Mrs. Raymond Wheeler. Mrs. Wheeler resides at Stockton.

Arrangements for the funeral are being held in abeyance pending the return here of Mrs. McGarry, who has been on a vacation in Alaska.

Hotels and Cafes Organize to Aid in Enforcement

Los Angeles hotels and cafes, eager to co-operate with prohibition officers in stamping out violation of the liquor laws, have formed a unique organization for their protection, it was announced yesterday by A. Frank, head of the Ambassador Hotel.

Charles F. Gailing, former ranking Federal prohibition agent in Los Angeles, has been chosen to head this organization, and has taken downtown offices from which he will direct the campaign.

Mr. Gailing's duties will be to see that waiters and servants do not take to surreptitious bootlegging to hotel and cafe patrons, that the guests themselves do not violate the law by bringing in their own booze, and to operate as a liaison agent between the authorities and the members of his organization.

On numerous occasions hotel dining-rooms and boulevard cafes have been thrown into a furor of excitement by raids staged by Federal, city and county officers, who arrested patrons in possession of illegal strong waters.

Besides the Ambassador, the Alexandria and Biltmore hotels have engaged Gailing, as well as the following restaurants: Plantation, Green Mill, Crillon, Rendezvous, Montmartre, Herberts and Marcell.

Last Rites for Mrs. Grunn Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah C. Grunn, 71 years of age, mother of J. Homer Grunn, prominent Los Angeles musician, will be conducted tomorrow at 10 a.m. from the Breese Brothers' undertaking parlors, 855 South Figueroa street. The body will be cremated at the Hollywood Crematory.

Mrs. Grunn died early yesterday morning of heart disease at a local sanatorium. She had been in failing health since last October.

Born in Wisconsin, Mrs. Grunn spent the most of her life in the East. She came to Arizona fourteen years ago and shortly afterward moved to California.

No, Indeed, Bobbed Hair Not Going Out, Assert Beauty Experts; They're All Doing it

Is it going out—bobbed hair? The old question after a much earned rest, again is circulating through the city since the recent statement by Samuel Goldwyn, motion-picture producer, favoring long tresses. Following in his wake a local restaurant manager adopted the plan of unshorn heads for his waitresses, and the fact that two men of such different ideas and in widely separated lines of work should be united in their objection, started a questioning of many beauty specialists of the city.

It was learned that bobbed hair is absolutely not going out! Not only are those who bobbed some time ago remaining in their shorn condition, but the age limit has been raised. Not merely girls and young matrons are having their hair cut, but middle-aged women and little old ladies with white hair are falling beneath the shears.

Not long ago a tiny old lady in gray silk, in age somewhere between 70 and 80 years of age was observed standing before a downtown mirror whimpering softly because she was afraid to go home and show her newly bobbed hair to her daughter. It was evident that she had escaped from her family and had yielded to temptation.

One beauty specialist contended that the social status of the bob has gone up decidedly. He stated that there are fewer flapper hair cuts of the Main street model and the bob is now being worn by women of intelligence and poise, who are conservative in every respect. He said that the bob as merely a bob has ceased to be. It is now cut to suit the personality and features of the woman concerned.

According to a bobbing expert in the city the cutting of the hair is the greatest rejuvenating process in existence for women. That is one reason why it is holding its popularity to such a degree.

He stated that women past 35 years of age, who are a little worn and have accumulated lines and complexes are coming by the hundreds to have their hair bobbed. They go into the "bobber" chair just tired women slightly old looking, but according to reports they step out fluffy and young, flushed and full of pep. No, say the beauty specialists,—again, No! Bobbed hair is not going out!

HARBOR MEETINGS QUIET

Aside from a seemingly endless torrent of words and some subdued handclapping interspersed with cheers, the Wobbly and anti-Wobbly mass meetings conducted within two blocks of each other at Los Angeles Harbor last night passed off without excitement.

The presence of a special squad of thirty-five uniformed officers from Central Station, augmented by an armed patrol of fifty sailors from the fleet, apparently had a dampening effect on the speakers and the audiences at both meetings.

SERVICES NOT NEEDED

The officers and their husky aides from the fleet, all of them swinging their riot sticks as a forcible reminder of what might be expected, however, had absolutely nothing to do except listen. A squad of plain clothes men were also present to serve in case of emergency but their services, it proved, also were not needed.

About as many officers and members of the fleet patrol were present at the meetings as were sympathizers. In some quarters it was remarked that there seemed to be more officers and sailors than audience.

The anti-Wobbly meeting was conducted at Seventh and Palos Verdes streets while the Wobbly meeting was at Fourth and Beacon streets.

CRITICISES VOLLMER

Sergt. William Webber, veteran campaigner against the I.W.W. was the principal speaker at the anti-Wobbly meeting. He criticised Chief of Police Vollmer for his handling of the situation in the harbor district and declared that the residents of San Pedro were entitled to drive objectionable elements from the community. He asserted further that Chief Vollmer's action represented an invitation to the Wobblies to flock to Los Angeles Harbor and then launched into a lengthy harangue in regards to the rights of the citizens in expelling Wobblies from the district.

The Wobbly meeting was even less sparsely attended than the one conducted by their rivals. Here the principal speaker was George Speed, I.W.W. organizer from Chicago, especially imported to this city to speak for the Wobbly clan. The meetings over, those at the two meetings quietly departed.

ATTORNEY PROTESTS FOR MABEL

Film Star in "Ten Point" Statement of Position in Greer-Dines Case

Mabel Normand

(1.) She has not, nor does she intend to re-employ Greer as her chauffeur.

(3.) She had no further interest in the proceedings other than to see the facts brought out in a court of justice.

(4.) The asserted "chivalry" of Greer, in refusing to take the stand in his defense, so far as she is concerned, means nothing.

(5.) Greer had nothing to conceal, and it was her desire he should tell everything he knew.

(6.) She at no time suggested to Greer that leniency be granted her in cross-examination or otherwise.

(7.) She had nothing whatever to be ashamed of.

(8.) The story was exactly as she told it on the stand.

The communication from Miss Normand was received through her attorney, Milton M. Cohen.

Mabel Normand and Edna Purviance were present at Dines's apartment on New Year's Day when Greer is said to have shot the Denver man with a revolver belonging to Miss Normand.

Greer was acquitted of the charge.

ELECTRIC SERVICE CUT PROTESTED IN MEET

A mass meeting to protest against curtailment of electrical service in the southern part of the city between 6 and 11 p.m. today was conducted by the South Los Angeles Improvement Association last night at the Tempest Theater, One Hundred and Eleventh and South Main streets. Following talks that attacked the curtailment during that period as unjust, a petition signed by 4500 persons was presented. It was decided that 400 persons would accompany the petition when it is presented to the State Railroad Commission today. The cut this week, it was said, will apply only to today. Next week no service will be available during that period on alternate days.

PLANES CRASH; ONE FLYER DIES

Victim Drowns in Big Bear; Others Are Rescued

Two spectacular airplane accidents yesterday, one in which the plane plunged into Big Bear Lake, the other marring an air circus at Las Turas Lake Field, claimed the life of one man, probably fatally injured another and resulted in minor injuries for a third, according to reports received here.

The dead man is Sam Miller, merchant of San Bernardino. He was drowned before he could be pulled from the wreckage of the plane that fell into the lake from a height of 300 feet. Another passenger in the plane, which had just taken off from Big Bear for Ontario, who was injured, is Willard B. Ball of Ontario. He received several broken ribs and other hurts.

PULLED FROM LAKE

The pilot, W. D. Waterman of Ontario and Hugh Montgomery and V. C. Beck, both of Ontario, and Ball, passengers, were saved from the waters of the lake by persons who witnessed the fall. The plane was to have been placed in regular service today between Big Bear and Ontario. Miller's body had not been recovered last night.

In the crash at Las Turas Lake Field, Raymond D. Dutton of Chicago, a passenger in a privately owned plane piloted by R. G. Malone of Burbank was probably fatally hurt. The accident occurred when the plane went into a nose dive from 150 feet up and struck the ground. Several persons under the falling plane, including Peggy Shaw, film actress, Noel Davenport, president of the Las Turas Lake Company, and Commodore Ovington of the Santa Barbara Aero Club, were able to flee barely in time to avoid injury.

THOUSANDS LOOK ON

The accident was witnessed by several thousand spectators at the air circus marking the dedication of the field as the headquarters of the Las Turas Aviation Club. The crash came after the meet was over and while the fifty-three privately owned and government craft were taking off.

The air meet was under the auspices of the Santa Barbara Aero Club. The field, which is thirty-five miles north of Los Angeles on the Coast Highway, will become the headquarters of the Las Turas Lake Club. Officers for the club were elected yesterday as follows: Noel Davenport, commodore; L. Ovington, vice-commodore; Earl Daugherty, rear-commodore, and Dr. Byrke Saxby, secretary-treasurer.

Wounded Man Is Thankful Police Did Not Kill Him

The officer said he came upon Conrad attempting to drive away in an automobile at Jefferson and Figueroa streets. Conrad resisted the officer's efforts to handcuff him and struck at him. The officer drew his pistol and shot Conrad.

After Conrad had been treated at the Receiving Hospital he noticed the officer walk in the operating room.

"Here," he said to the officer, "I want to shake your hand for not killing me."

TYLER GIVES PRIZE SPEECH

Franklin High School Student Delivers Address Here Which Won National Award

Don Tyler of Franklin High School, who won the recent national oratorical championship, last night delivered verbatim his winning address on the "Constitution of the United States" at the First Baptist Church, 1728 West Sixth street.

Tyler, a modest-appearing young man possessing a clear, convincing voice and manner, occupied the pulpit at the evening service of the church, the minister, Rev. James Allan Francis eliminating his regular sermon so that the congregation might hear the address of Tyler in its entirety.

The occasion marked the first deliverance of the winning address since young Tyler's return to his home from Washington, where he covered himself with glory and gained a national reputation. Step by step he traced the Constitution and with convincing logic pointed out its strength and ideals.

Tyler was introduced to the large congregation by Charles B. Moore, principal of Franklin High School. Prof. Moore lauded the youth as an example of public-school training in which home influence has been a leading factor. He praised the boy's parents as taking an active interest in the school life of their gifted son and urged all parents not to turn their children over to the public schools entirely, but to take an active interest in their school work, encourage their children to higher ideals in school and to prove to them that school work will be of vital importance to them in later life.

The service opened with prayer and was followed by a quartet singing "When We Stand Before the King." The quartet was composed of J. Howard Johnson, first tenor; J. Malcomson, second tenor; Edwin Luth, baritone, and Forrest Bell, bass. The hymn "America" was sung by the congregation. Benediction was by Mr. Francis.

THIEVES ROB PICKFORD OF HIS JEWELRY

Jewelry valued at between $37,000 and $40,000 was stolen from the home of Jack Pickford, film actor, at 1001 South Elden avenue, last night, according to reports to the police. No one was at home at the time, Pickford having gone to the beach for the day.

The burglars entered the house through a rear window. The house was thoroughly ransacked. A maid in the home, a Miss Cramer, discovered the burglary upon her return last night. The estimate of the value of the plunder was made by a business associate of Pickford, who said he was familiar with the jewels kept in the house.

Detectives were investigating the burglary last night. No clews had been uncovered at a late hour, it was stated.

CANYON BLAZE UNDER CONTROL

Damage Not as Extensive as First Estimated

Cause of Conflagration Not as Yet Determined

Fire, which burned over more than 500 acres in the Santa Barbara National Forest and threatened La Joya Lodge Saturday night, yesterday was reported under control by government rangers at Newhall. Fifty men were guarding the embers to prevent a recurrence of the conflagration.

Reports yesterday indicated that the damage was not as severe as at first believed. La Joya Lodge is situated in upper San Francisquito Canyon, on the ranch of Capt. Edward Salisbury, and is in the midst of a heavy growth of oak timber. The ranch has been recently subdivided into cabin sites.

BURNS OVER 500 ACRES

The fire burned over about 500 acres of brush and timber, destroying five homesteaders' cabins. The Salisbury Syndicate has invested about $2,000,000 in the project. Only about fifty acres in La Joya Lodge were burned over, Capt. Salisbury reported.

The loss suffered by the La Joya Lodge is negligible, Capt. Salisbury said. The burned area is chiefly underbrush. The giant oak trees, he said, were not touched by the flames.

The cause of the fire has not been ascertained though it is being investigated.

The fire broke out about 10 a.m. Saturday and continued furiously until early yesterday morning.

REINFORCEMENTS SENT

Five hundred men were dispatched to the scene by the Santa Barbara National Forest authorities and County Forester Flintham, who was directing the fight against a brush fire in Pico Canyon, near Newhall.

Early last week a fire raged in San Francisquito Canyon, near the scene of construction on the new St. Francis reservoir, threatening disaster to the countryside.

Dangerous fires in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties during the past week have indicated, according to Mr. Flintham, the necessity for rigid enforcement of the fire laws to guard against a castatrophe.

Forestry officials have called upon the public to unite in preserving the forests from conflagrations.

PROBLEMS TO GREET CRYER'S RETURN HERE

VACANCIES ON BOARDS TO CONFRONT HIM ON HIS ARRIVAL

With the return this week of Mayor Cryer it is believed that three vacancies in as many commissions will be given early attention.

Probably the first of these vacancies to engage the Mayor will be that on the Police Commission, the City Council having failed to confirm C. J. Elsasser, the Mayor's appointee. Elsasser refused to withdraw his name after the Council deadlocked in debate over his case.

The other two commission appointments to confront the Mayor are those in the public service and harbor boards. The resignation of John A. Burton of the Public Service Commission is already on file, while the term of O. B. Kibele as Harbor Commissioner expires July 7.

PRESENTS PLAY IN CHINESE

Mirror Flower Society Performance Proves Old Adage "Laughter Makes Whole World Kin"

That laughter makes the whole world kin, even when it springs from the sing-song cadences of the Chinese tongue, and threads from eye to lip of those native Californians and their blood-brothers from the Flowery Kingdom, was put to proof at the Native Sons' Hall at 415½ Los Angeles street Saturday night when the Chinese Mirror Flower Dramatic Society gave its first performance of "The Man from the British Straits Settlements."

And what an audience! The young men as faultless as those snappy boys who lean nonchalantly on a cane in the clothing ads that adorn our billboards.

ALL TYPES OF GIRLS

Girls who believe that pumpkin is "a shade for any complexion" and act accordingly; girls with bobbed black hair marcelled to perfection; girls with ivory-tinted skins so clear and delicate as to suggest a light shining through a bit of exquisite porcelain; girls demure and sedate in coiffeur and dress as any Mid-Victorian debutante, and girls as flirtatious as any lip-sticked flapper clicking Spanish heels on Broadway. But the majority of them individually and collectively charming.

Mammas were there, too, keeping a watchful eye on "the third and fourth generation," who seemed to need it quite as much as their occidental brothers and sisters at any social gathering. A dance followed the two-act play, and it would never do for daughter to be quite unchaperoned!.

INTERPRETER NOT NEEDED

The little comedy needed no interpreter. It told the story of the rich bachelor who returns to his native land in search of a bride. His first encounter is with the fortune-teller who sees in him a highly desirable husband for his god-daughter. That he may be inspired with a proper respect for the seer's prophetic powers, he is skillfully fleeced by a detective, a policeman and even the police judge.

"Craft knows no nationality nor language," was obvious from the delight of the audience—expressed by laughter, not by applause. The part of the gullible bachelor from Ceylon as played by S. T. Tom was what our own dramatic critics would have called "a finished performance." In fact the entire cast appeared more at ease on the stage than is usual in an amateur performance given by Americans.

GESTURES A REVELATION

The easy gestures of the speakers who explained the objects of the "Mirror Flower" was a revelation, as was the smooth, natural action of the performers in developing the story of the play.

As the curtain fell, and chairs were pushed aside, the orchestra "tuned up," and presently the dancing floor was filled with young people tripping lightly to the music. Escorts whispered tender nothings, color mounted olive cheeks of girls who danced with lowered lids lifted now and then for a swift exchange of glances—observing mammas smiled with satisfaction—

Paving Action on Mesa Drive Likely Today

Official action on the proposed paving of Angeles Mesa Drive from Adams street a distance of approximately a mile in a southerly direction will be taken today when City Engineer Griffin presents for the consideration of the City Council the map covering the assessment district involved. It is expected approval of the assessment district as outlined by the engineering department will be given by the Council and that the necessary ordinance of intention will be passed within a fortnight. Present plans call for concrete paving.

The paving of Angeles Mesa Drive is a part of a comprehensive plan for the creation of another north-and-south artery beginning at Wilshire Boulevard and extending to the paved county highway a mile south of Adams street. First steps for the widening of Crenshaw Boulevard, of which the Angeles Mesa Drive is a southerly continuance, have already been taken, the plans calling for a fifty-six-foot roadway from Wilshire to Adams. The roadway between Adams and Exposition Boulevard will be seventy feet, and from Adams to the paved county highway will be twenty-four feet.

The total cost of the Angeles Mesa Drive paving will be approximately $100,000.

WIFE WANTED TO BE FLAPPER, SAYS MATE

Howard Richey was a bookish man, as he pictured himself to Judge Thompson during the hearing of his suit for divorce from Ella F. Richey. But his wife's pursuit of literature took her only as far as "Flaming Youth" and stopped there, because she quit reading about flappers and went out seeking to emulate them, he declared. The clash of ideas and ideals made home life impossible, according to Richey, and Judge Thompson gave him a decree.

Her Vanity Case Used as Weapon, Avers Husband

James Edward Wilson greeted the New Year with a black eye and the general appearance of a motion-picture comedian at that point when pies and other objects are flying the thickest, according to his complaint for divorce from Erma Lillian Wilson.

It was at a local hotel, New Year's Eve. Wilson was entertaining a little party of friends. Amiability and joviality marked the occasion, as far as could be determined from surface indications. Just a pleasant little gathering to bid farewell to the old year and welcome in the new.

But there must have been concealed, somewhere in the rose of good fellowship, a gnawing cutworm, for suddenly, according to Wilson's description of the affair, his wife rose up, swung at him with her metal vanity case and showered him from head to foot with its various contents. This attack, he declared, was followed by a punch in the right eye, as a result of which that optic swelled up.

BANDITS CLUB WOMAN VICTIM

Three Others' Handbags Are Taken by Robbers

Fictitious Address Asked as Hold-up Ruse

A pair of bandits who, during the past week have been terrorizing women in the Wilshire district by robbing them as they returned to their homes unescorted late at night, were active again Saturday night and early yesterday morning, according to reports made to the Wilshire police.

Three women lost their purses to the bandits whose ruse is to ask for the address of a fictitious person. A fourth woman was robbed of her purse after being clubbed into insensibility by a bandit who trailed his victim to her home after she alighted from a street car late Saturday night.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Mrs. Ethel Heatherly, a seamstress, was found in an unconscious condition early yesterday morning on the front steps of her home at 437 East sixteenth street by three passersby who took her to the Receiving Hospital for treatment. She is said to be suffering from brain concussion, a probable fracture of the lower jaw and is being observed for a possible skull fracture.

After regaining consciousness, Mrs. Heatherly told Detective Lieutenants Culp and Partin of having been followed by a man of heavy build as she alighted from a street car at Fifteenth and Maple streets. She noticed that he carried a long stick. The weapon believed by police to have been used in the attack on the woman was found, broken in two, in the front yard of her residence. A purse, containing $5 in money, was missing when Mrs. Heatherly regained her senses.

Mae B. Gephart, a school-teacher, was returning to her home at 4061 West Eighth street, when she noticed a small touring car turn around in the middle of the block and pull up by the curb. A young man hurried up to her and referring to a piece of paper which he held in his hand, asked: "Where does Mrs. Maynard live?" Before Miss Gephart could answer she was ordered to "stick 'em up." Her questioner snatched a vanity case, containing $1.15 in money, and jumped into the machine. A companion, who remained seated at the wheel, drove the car away.

Mrs. E. Johnson of 1251 Fifth avenue, returning to her home late Saturday night, found two men seated in a car parked in front of her residence. One of the men got out of the machine and asked about the address of a "Miss Smith," shoving a piece of note paper into her hand.

SEIZES HANDBAG

As she attempted to read the address, the bandit seized her handbag which contained $7 in money and a gold pencil.

Miss Mary Mulligan was returning to her home at 138 South Beachwood Drive after having attended a church service Saturday night. She was accosted by one of two automobile bandits who wanted to know the residence of "Mrs. Allan." He snatched a purse out of Miss Mulligan's hands and then, drawing a gun, threatened to shoot her if she screamed. The purse contained $3 in money, a turquoise ring set with diamonds and a rosary.

CONTEMPT CASE BOND ADMITTED

W. S. Mason Freed Pending Habeas Corpus Hearing in Appellate Court

Pending the hearing of habeas corpus proceedings tomorrow for the release of William S. Mason, who is being held in the County Jail for being in contempt of Superior Judge Wood's court, the Second District Court of Appeal, Division Two, admitted Mason to $25,000 bail Saturday.

Mason was placed in jail for violating the court's order which required him to return $25,000 to the estate of Mrs. Emma M. Bond, his mother.

He is asserted unlawfully to have removed the money during the time he was administrator of the estate.

For these operations Mason was relieved from the administratorship and the authority placed in control of the Citizens' Trust and Savings Bank. Mason was ordered to return the $25,000 to the estate at that time.

On the 12th inst. it was the opinion of Judge Wood that Mason had not complied with the order and he was held in contempt of court until he should fulfill the requirements.

Attorneys for Mason then petitioned the Appellate Court for a writ of habeas corpus to obtain his liberty, on the grounds that Judge Wood had deprived him of his freedom without cause. The Court of Appeals made the writ returnable tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

FOOTWEAR EXHIBIT TO OPEN TODAY

California Shoe Dealers' Convention at Biltmore Has Unusual Features

Women of Los Angeles will be able to get an advance hint on forthcoming fashions in footwear during the annual convention of the California Shoe Dealers' Association, which opens at the Biltmore today.

A footgear style show in which the particular star will be Kathleen Mulliane, a former Ziegfeld Follies girl, is to be one of the outstanding features of the convention. Twenty-five other Southern California beauties, all with perfect 4-B feet, will also demonstrate the latest in footwear.

It is estimated that more than 300 delegates from every section of California and many from Washington, Oregon, Arizona, Nevada and New Mexico will attend the sessions.

Committee meetings will be conducted each morning during the three days the convention will remain in session. The afternoons will be devoted to executive sessions of the general association and the evening to entertainment. Tonight the traveling men will entertain the delegates at a ball. The style review is scheduled for tomorrow evening and Wednesday night the annual banquet and dance of the association will be given.

Problems of the retail merchants are to be subjected to thorough discussion and analysis during the convention. Round-table discussions of technical matters will be conducted during each of the three days of the convention and a number of speakers who are nationally known in the shoe business will also address the delegates.

One of the purposes of the convention will be to bring shoe factories to Los Angeles as this city has become recognized in the past few years as the international footwear style center, it was stated.

MINISTER WOULD AID ARBUCKLE

Dr. Brougher in Sermon Expresses Belief Cinema ex-Star Has Reformed

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, last night "let a little sunshine in" the life of Roscoe Arbuckle when he declared his belief that the comedian has "reformed." He based his belief on what transpired in two interviews with the comedian and a letter from Arbuckle, which he read.

The reference to the comedian was made during the advertised discussion of motion-picture personalities, and the so-called "wild life" of the young people of today, which preceded the pastor's sermon.

An excerpt from Arbuckle's letter read: "I regret very much my mistakes in the past, and am very sorry for them. I have had plenty of time to think over everything and I want you to know I have cut out booze and never intend to touch it again."

In view of this statement, Dr. Brougher said he was willing to give Arbuckle every encouragement toward the accomplishment of his resolution.

He also discussed the recent trial of Horace A. Greer, chauffeur of Mabel Normand, on a charge of shooting Courtland S. Dines and Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, confessed youthful slayers, Chicago's most recent murder sensation.

Chamber Acts to Aid Water Conservation

Coincident with the inauguration by the Southern California Edison Company of a program of conservation of electrical energy necessitated by drouth conditions the Chamber of Commerce yesterday apealed to its membership to aid in meeting the situation. The action was taken by the Edison Company at the instance of the Railroad Commission on account of a decrease in the ow of mountain streams and depletion of storage water in Huntington Lake, from which the bulk of the company's hydro-electric power is obtained.

The appeal of the Chamber of Commerce said in part that the power shortage of the Edison system, due to the lack of rainfall and snow on the mountains, cannot be remedied until the fall rains, despite the tremendous program which the Edison Company has put on in the building of steam plants, and despite the surplus power which is being supplied into the Edison system from the systems of other power companies, particularly the San Joaquin Light and Power Company, the Southern Sierras Power Company, and the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, and that the effects of the shortage can be alleviated only by every one accepting his proportionate share of the power reduction.

CULT MEMBERS DROWN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

INDIANAPOLIS, June 22.—Three feminine members of the House of David cult at Benton Harbor, Mich., were drowned in the St. Joseph River yesterday afternoon at the sect's farm near Berrien Springs, Mich., about fifteen miles from the colony. They are Mrs. Florence Hanson, about 35 years of age; her niece, Constance McCaslin, 10, and Phyllis Johnson, 11. The party, vacationing, were wading in the shallow water at the edge of the river. It is believed they stepped into a deep hole.

Australia has thousands of tennis players, but because of scarcity of skilled labor, it has had no racket manufactory until this year, when racket makers were imported from England.

NAVY GUNS DUE TO BOOM TODAY

Four Dreadnaughts to Fire Experimental Round

Targets to be Behind Smoke Screen of Destroyers

Practice Last Before Fleet Departs for North

Four dreadnaughts, the Maryland, California, Tennessee and Idaho, will today carry out the last battle maneuvers before the battle fleet departs for northern waters on the 25th inst. Fifty five-inch guns of the four battleships will be engaged in the execution of advanced practice "C," a spectacular experimental exercise.

Fifteen triangular black targets, representing the enemy destroyer force, will be set adrift behind a smoke screen laid down by slowly moving destroyers. The battleships will then come upon the range and attempt to locate the enemy targets by gunfire without knowing their exact location behind the smoke screen. Two runs will be made on the targets, giving the ships an opportunity to bring both broadsides to bear.

The mine sweepers Tern, Brant and Partridge are here from San Diego to also tow targets for the practice. They will return to their summer base tomorrow. Also going to San Diego today will be the fleet repair ship Prometheus, where she will transfer part of her machinery at the destroyer base before proceeding to the Puget Sound navy yard for de-commissioning.

Capt. Robert T. Menner and his crew will then take over the new repair ship Medusa, now being completed at Puget Sound, said to be the finest vessel of her type afloat.

Tactical exercises off the California coast will be held by the combined battleship and destroyer forces after they depart for the various holiday ports on the 25th inst. From Los Angeles Harbor will go the dreadnaughts California, Idaho, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania. The destroyer divisions, led by Rear-Admiral Frank H. Schofield aboard the cruiser Omaha, will sail from San Diego the same morning.

The U.S.S. Procyon, flagship of Rear-Admiral George R. Marvell, commanding the base force, will remain at Los Angeles Harbor until July 8 before she saids north to join the fleet on Puget Sound.

Fair Weather at Sea Averts Two Tragedies

Fine weather off the California Coast averted two marine tragedies, according to officers of the lumber steamer Samoa and the Red Stack tug Fearless, both of which arrived at the port yesterday.

The Fearless, returning from San Francisco after towing the disabled Matson liner Mauna Ala to that port, picked up two drowning Italian fishermen outside the Golden Gate after their craft had floundered. They were transferred to an inbound schooner and the tug proceeded to Los Angeles Harbor, according to Capt. G. Gustavson.

The Samoa, with 2,000,000 feet of timber aboard from Columbia River, completely disabled her steam steering gear and developed a severe list to port three days ago off Point Arenas. She carries no radio equipment and was unable to call for assistance but finally made Point Fermin yesterday where her signals for assistance were sighted by the lighthouse crew. A tug was dispatched to the scene and assisted the Samoa into port. The vessel was kept on her course after the accident by means of a hand steering gear rigged aft.

SESSION AT BORDER TO CUT CRIME

Officials from Southland, Mexico Plan to Reduce Auto Thefts, Smuggling

Federal, city and county officials will visit the Mexican border this week for the purpose of promoting plans devised for the organization of a co-operative association, through which Federal and local officers can work more effectively in the apprehension of automobile thieves and smugglers, L. H. Schwaebe, collector of customs, announced.

Means by which the officers best can concentrate their efforts along the border will be discussed, and definite arrangements will be made for more expeditious action on information relative to stolen cars in conferences the officers will have with customs and immigration agents and local officers.

It is expected, according to Collector Schwaebe, that mutual aid on the part of Federal and local officers not only will reduce the number of automobile thefts at least 50 per cent, but will aid as much in the reduction of smuggling and bootlegging.

LET IT GO AT THAT

Economic experts are complaining that the American people are buying from hand to mouth. This, however, is not worrying the butcher or the grocer.

THE ACID TEST

It is a fine thing to have both a good name and great riches, but the title may be uncertain in either case. Some reputations will not bear up under soap and water.

SKIN DEEP BEAUTY

According to one of the addresses at the recent convention of the American Medical Association the women are using a dreadful lot of perilous cosmetics. They are using preparations containing lead, wood alcohol and other dangerous ingredients. Last year American manufacturers put out over $300,000,000 worth of cosmetics and beauty preparations. The cost by the time they got into the boudoir runs to far bigger figures. According to the doctor, most of the beauty dopes are harmful. Even the most innocent are injurious in that they tend to close the pores of the skin. But the doctor insists that many preparations contain lead, bismuth, nitric acid, calcium, mercury, arsenic and kindred commodities. However, if the ladies are assured that these devices actually add to the beauty of their faces the warnings of the doctor are almost certain to go for naught.

MANY DEMOCRATS

There are nearly forty prominent Democrats who are likely to receive votes for the Presidential nomination in the approaching national convention. If the two-thirds rule is abolished some of them may pass with a bare mention, but should the convention be extended over a week the possibilities are almost inexhaustible.

The list includes six former members of the Wilson Cabinets, led by William Gibbs McAdoo. There are eight Governors—as favorite sons—of whom Albert Emmanuel Smith of New York is the most conspicuous. There are ten United States Senators, with Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama in the van. Likewise there are several former Governors and Senators and sundry diplomats—such as John W. Davis and Brand Whitlock. In addition there are always big and little Bill—William Jennings Bryan and William Randolph Hearst.

Thomas Riley Marshall, former Vice-President, says he would not accept the Presidency if it were handed to him with a blue ribbon, but there are delegates who will vote for him. Prof. A. A. Murphree of Gainesville, Fla., was put forth as William J. Bryan's ideal. James Middleton Cox must also be considered. The fact that he was buried under 7,000,000 adverse ballots four years ago does not obliterate him from the reckoning. Henry Ford is sure to receive some votes, in spite of his announcement that he would vote for Coolidge. He was given the Michigan delegates in the Presidential preference primary in that State.

Homer S. Cummings, who was temporary chairman of the Democratic convention four years ago, is always a possibility—and so is Cordell Hull, the national chairman. The Democrats have the greatest field they ever had to pick from, but how do they measure up against the giants of the past?

WOMEN POLICE

According to a speaker at the recent women's convention, the movement for women police is growing rapidly and to such an extent that university training for women in this department has been instituted in many colleges throughout the country.

Rather a significant sign of the times. Many countries tried women police during the war, chiefly in connection with delinquent girls. But where there are delinquent girls there are delinquent boys and men, too, and it was soon found necessary for the women to work with the men on many occasions.

After the war England, for instance, tried to abandon her women police on the score of economy, but such a public howl was raised that they have now been restored to service. It was found that much of the work done by women could not be performed anywhere near so satisfactorily by men.

But there is a distinction between male and female police in that the latter are often highly cultured, educated women and are specifically trained for this service. This is true of the male police in Great Britain, where they are recruited from the country districts, of essentially respectable parentage, and go into severe training for their work before they are given responsible duty.

In this country we are not so exacting about the standards of our male police. But with highly trained and superior police women in competition we may easily see a general improvement in our police forces, since the men will either have to raise their standards or concede inferiority.

Hence, with the universities contemplating the institution of police training for women, it seems an excellent opportunity to open the course to men as well.

Women police may be good, but a strong and high-principled male police force is even more important.

MAKING A VIRTUE OF NECESSITY

Hate one another as they may, a number of European nations are beginning to find that they are indispensable to each other. The little nations that were busy a couple of years ago building tariff walls are beginning to tear them down. France has found that it cannot be prosperous while Middle Europe is too poor to buy French products. The Italians and the Jugo-Slavs have found that they are so closely united by economical liens that they cannot maintain a boycott on each other's goods.

There are natural laws that refuse to yield to hatred and envy. No government can succeed while its people are starving. Economic necessity is more powerful than governmental forms. A law that deprives people of their livelihood must either be repealed or broken.

During recent months a number of commercial treaties have been negotiated in Europe between peoples that cordially hate each other en masse, but who find trade relations absolutely essential to their mutual well-being.

Italy and Jugo-Slavia are traditional enemies. Each would like to see the other wiped out nationally; but the Italians must have the raw products of Jugo-Slavia, and the Jugo-Slavs must have the manufactured articles of Italy. It was the economic urge that brought them to compose their differences over Fiume.

Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary are political enemies; but they have not been able to escape the necessity of a commercial treaty. The two peoples hate each other nationally, but find mutual profit in dealing with each other individually.

The United States has maintained a protective tariff for more than a century. It serves to preserve American markets for the products of American labor. Its necessity lies in the difference in standards of living of American workers and of a number of other peoples. If wages everywhere in the world were the same the necessity for a protective tariff would not be so exacting. We must lower our standards or maintain a tariff which will equalize the cost of production.

Nearly all the new States created under the Versailles Treaty followed the American principle of protective tariffs. But the necessity for such protection did not exist; for the standards of living and average wage were about the same. Under these conditions a tariff became a hindrance to industry. One people found it impossible to export its excess in raw products and another could not export the products of its manufactories.

A tariff enacted in a spirit of hatred and revenge can serve no good commercial or industrial purpose. This lesson has been taught to a number of European states by bitter experience. They have also learned that the world has become so small, through the annihilation of time and distance, that no people can prosper permanently without foreign markets.

The necessity of continuing to live is bringing order out of confusion in Europe. Food, clothing and shelter are essential to all peoples; and the laws of supply and demand are more powerful than any decrees enacted by parliaments. Starving oneself in order to starve one's neighbor is not a profitable expedient.

Hate one another as they may, nations must trade with their neighbors in order to exist. The new generation that is assuming the management of government and industry in all the European states is more concerned about its own material well-being than about the feuds of the generation that is passing. This is as it should be. As peoples become better educated and more enlightened they discover that peace is a condition essential to actual existence. The desire for universal peace steadily grows because it has been apparent that it is the only condition under which civilization can survive. Scientific warfare is neither noble nor profitable and can be justified only when a people is actually attacked by a powerful neighbor.

The world is sufficiently educated that no people can live by plunder; and the battle for existence has become so strenuous in Europe that none of its peoples can afford to waste its substance in destructive warfare.

THAT DARK CONSPIRACY

William Gibbs McAdoo has found the nigger in the woodpile. He has made the same alarming discovery that every Democratic candidate, whether he be running for city constable or seat in Congress, has made since the days of Andrew Jackson. The wicked "money power" is out with its stuffed club to crush him in the green and tender bud. The cruel wolf is on the prowl to eat up our little Red Riding Hood.

Hear the latest wail of the last hope of the unterrified: "Democratic reactionaries are conspiring with Republican capitalists to prevent me from receiving the Presidential nomination." Such is the sad position forced on this modern Brutus—a man, as everybody knows, who has spent his life working among the poor and needy.

Everybody will sympathize with the native son of three different States in his anguished struggle to extricate himself from the coils of the serpent. But it is just possible he is but an imaginary Laocoon and these financial snakes are mere figments of the brain.

Or it may be that Candidate McAdoo is preparing an alibi against a sad and solemn event that his subconscious mind informs him is all too likely to come to pass, if not in the New York convention hall, most assuredly in the early days of next November. Other men have prematurely written their epitaphs. McAdoo is writing on his political tombstone to forestall action by less sympathetic engravers the words, "Crushed by the money power."

As far as we can see, this is the only explanation of his weird complaint that he is the victim of a dark conspiracy between Democratic reactionaries and Republican capitalists. Because he really couldn't suppose himself of sufficient importance to call into being so strange a combination. Republicans, capitalists or otherwise, would be delighted to see William his party's standard-bearer.

But wasn't it a little ungracious to publish to the world that reactionaries will have captured the Democratic convention if it fails to nominate his modest self? Was it good sportsmanship to hamstring a possible successful contender for his own party honors?

MADE IN GERMANY

Wages in Germany now run from 75 cents to $1 a day in the average trades. If there was plenty of work and the men were paid in gold this would be all right, but the workers are sure of nothing. There still seems to be a wide field for the stabilizer.

June Days

THE QUALITY OF MERCY

A public official, in good standing for thirty years, misappropriates the funds intrusted to him. He is found to have stolen nearly $3000 of the city's money, extending over several months of petty pilfering, entailing false entries in his books and much clever scheming.

He is found out. But, on the score of his long service and age, he is not to be prosecuted. The bond company will pay the loss and the traitor to his trust is to be given time in which to repay the bond company.

There seems to have been no hesitation in the minds of the authorities. This was promptly regarded as a case for mercy.

Perhaps it was. Perhaps their instinctive action was right. And yet. . . .

Is it not more heinous for a trusted public official, sworn to solemnly serve the public, paid a good and sufficient salary, enjoying a good home and a faithful wife, intelligent enough to hold a responsible position, to step aside than for others less fortunately placed?

On the same day we read that two old women were sentenced to jail for stealing food—poor old women from poor homes, too old to secure further honest work. The latter sentence was regarded as just and warranted under the law. Yet, if there is a quality of mercy abroad in the land, these old women could reasonably have expected to share in its graces. If they read about the failure of the trusted official their lips must have curled a trifle.

Our quality of justice—and of mercy—seems to be a little inconsistent. But, then, consistency is the bugbear of small minds—yes?

DOUBTFUL AMERICANS

California may well see cause to take more than casual interest in a brief dispatch to The Times this week, under a Honolulu date, setting forth that the "Hawaii Territorial authorities are protesting against the United States Immigration Commissioner's order not to recognize birth certificates issued by the Territory."

It may be questioned whether any such order is of recent issue, but the point is of minor consequence for it is an established and open fact that the Federal authorities refuse to accept at face value certificates of birth issued by the office of the Secretary of Hawaii, although that individual is appointed to office by the President of the United States, the Senate concurring, and may and probably now will contend with a strong show of reason that he is as much a Federal official as any immigration inspector. The dispatch goes on to say that "Secretary Raymond C. Brown has announced that he will appeal to President Coolidge if necessary."

Hawaii has a large and growing population of American-born orientals, sons and daughters of those held by the Supreme Court to be ineligible for citizenship by naturalization and excluded by Congress from the confines of the United States, but, armed with birth certificates, entitled among other privileges of citizenship to vote, to come and go as they will, to acquire government land under the homestead laws and to teach in the public schools.

Possession of Territorial birth certificates is prima facie evidence of citizenship, actual or potential. The Territory of Hawaii, perforce, recognizes its own certificates, but the Federal authorities for many years have required that they be validated by independent investigation, completed to the satisfaction of the Federal authorities themselves. The Territorial complaint is that such investigations are an expensive duplication and that often they work an injustice when delayed to a time at which material witnesses no longer can be found or critical facts established.

Unless the Territory or some citizen of the Territory who considers himself aggrieved carries a complaint to the Federal courts, the immigration authorities probably will continue to have the last word and their own way. Congress makes the laws, but it is the departments that administer them.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Are They Just Bluffing?

Rumanian army divisions are moving closer to the Russian border in Bessarabia and with remarkable singleness of purpose the Poles are marching and counter-marching close to the Galician border. Just across that frontier forty-seven divisions of the Red army are taking up positions. Russia not only wants back Bessarabia, but there is something the Reds of Muscovy can never forgive the Rumanians and that is their assistance to the white forces which overthrew Bela Kun and the soviet dictatorship in Hungary. Perhaps the whole maneuver on those borders does not amount to a great deal. There is hardly enough money these days in Europe to start a war. And when the bankers don't advance the money there never will be any war, neither in Rumania, Poland nor in any other part of the world.

The End of Tsukor

Robespierre, instigator of the terror during the French Revolution, ended his life under the guillotine and it begins to look as if Tsukor, chief of the Moscow Cheka or soviet secret police, will also end his bloody career at the hands of his own partisans. Tsukor, an ignorant demagogue, with a villainous hatred for all the intelligentsia and people of learning, has gone too far even for Russia. The bodies of 1100 murdered girls were found in his cellar. One of them was not older than 11 years. Tsukor could not make his colleagues believe that those girls were counter-revolutionary spies and he is in prison awaiting execution. The revolution has brought strange creatures to the surface. Napoleon once said: "Revolutions bring the scum to the surface of the water." When he looked upon the unkempt mob storming the Tuileries Palace he asked Bourienne: "Why do they allow these people in there?" Bourienne answered that it could not be prevented, but the Corsican said: "Bah, one whiff of grapeshot and they are gone." That whiff of grapeshot was never fired in Russia and the lowest strata made their way to the top along with the practical Marxists.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE OLD MASTER

Hung up against the snowy plaster a painting was on show, the product of a grand old master who died long, long ago. The village plute had gone and bought it in Naples or in Rome and then triumphantly he brought it to show the folks at home. And art fans came in hosts to view it, a rapt, ecstatic mob; and I alone remarked, "Beahrew it, it seems to me a daub. My soul, I fear, is much benighted, I am not wise or smart; I simply cannot get excited about a work of art. Those art fans see a thousand beauties, to me the thing looks flat; I would not give two bob-tailed cooties for such a smear as that." The art fans heard me sadly mutter and cried, "Most blind of wights, your soul's a native of the gutter, while ours ascend the heights. You stand before that noble painting and say it is a smear; your sordid, boorish words are tainting the art world's atmosphere. Go to and cease your idle spieling, the Goths and Vandals meet; to men of culture, sense and feeling this picture is a treat." Then came a sharp who judges pictures, his verdict is the law; he gave that work his fiercest strictures and called it coarse and raw. "Some kalsominer did this painting," he said, "when he was stewed;" and all the art fans, nearly fainting, a heartsick multitude, came from the hall, and when I met them I might have scoffed and jeered; but not a word to peeve or fret them was muttered through my beard. I framed a josh, but never said it, they looked so sad and sick; I think it greatly to my credit I threw no verbal brick. WALT MASON.

THE FIRE SEASON

BY FRANK P. CUNNINGHAM, Supervisor Sequoia National Forest

California is facing the worst potential fire season in its history. One who studies our past fire records will find that, as the dry season advances, grain, grass and forest fires increase in number, size and intensity and our disastrous fires usually occur in August and September. The drouth has caused conditions comparable to August and September to exist in June and, instead of having two months of what might be termed the "serious fire season," we are facing four to five months this year.

This situation is being faced by a decreased State fire organization, due to the failure of Congress to provide adequate funds with which to carry on the work. The situation might discourage a less determined organization, but we intend to fight it through with the available resources. We are admittedly handicapped, but not conquered, and to overcome to as great an extent as possible the odds against us we are going to appeal to the public to not only help control fires when they start, but to use every precaution to keep them from starting. We ask every man, woman and child to be constantly on guard to not be the cause of starting a fire, but to prevent, if possible, others from doing so.

Our mountains are valuable. This has been brought out very forcibly by the quarantine and the drouth. People even refused to comply with regulations in their desire to get into the mountains. Fishermen were badly disappointed when the season was postponed. Stockmen were facing the ruination of their business and the starvation of their stock if the quarantine kept them out of the national forests. Every one of these things is dependent on the protection of the mountains from fire. We need the nice, cool camping places among the pines and big trees; we need the grazing for stock; we need the water for irrigation, power and domestic use; we need the clear streams with the beautiful trout for recreation and food and we need the timber. Fire will destroy them all. Every fire, no matter how small, causes an injury to some one of these uses. Every fire does harm, but does no one any good.

A regulation authorizes the Forest Service to prohibit smoking in areas where it is considered dangerous. It also authorizes actual closing of dangerous fire areas to the public. It also authorizes the closing of roads when necessary for the protection of national forest areas.

Even though we are facing a serious emergency, if we get the full co-operation of the public no one of these measures will be necessary. If we do not get this co-operation we must protect our national forest and national park areas and all of these measures may be necessary.

WAR RELICS

By The Foothill Philosopher

"That ought to be against the law," said a man as he stood in front of a museum of horrors, from the half-opened door of which proceeded monotonous, depressing notes of a worn-out piano, while the "barker" pointed to photographs of war relics and of mutilated human beings, the originals of which, he said, could be seen inside " for the small price of a dime, 10 cents."

The writer agrees with the man who said "It ought to be against the law." We are not opposed to legitimate entertainment merely because it has in it a touch of the terrible. As a matter of fact, some of our loftiest sentiments and finest endeavors are inspired by great tragedies and even by tragic events of life. But to grovel in the mud, to feed our minds on that which is morbid and depressing merely for the sake of sensation, with which no nobler purpose is associated, is not the way to freedom and to light.

It is a significant fact that the persons who least need entertainment of this character are the very ones who patronize such places. Is this the way to lead such men and women to a higher plane of thought and feeling? Is this the way they are to be redeemed to higher consciousness and finer sensibilities?

Should we not be done with this exhibition of war relics? Are we not yet weary of all things that induce even a thought of hatred and conflict among individuals and nations? Did we pay so poor a price to help end the last awful war that we can afford to allow individuals to add an extra charge to those who are still so insensible as to revel in the memories of the terrors of the past? It ought to be against the law.

I have received a card bearing the modest title, "Evolution of the Universe," with request that I should review it. I find this an ungracious task. The book, fairly written though extremely verbose, adduces evidence of a kindly and considered it, in to me wholly unconvincing.

It purports to be the work of great English physicist, Michael Faraday (1791-1867), presented him as "a contributor to knowledge from the spheres of the spirit world," conveyed through a "psychic," assisted by a "Spirit Guide," both now resident in Los Angeles, and both, for the present at least, preferring to remain unseen although represented by excellent photographs, the earlier of which devoted fourteen years to the collection of the volume."

A message from Faraday, dependent electrician, writing asserts "Through my published instrument I will now my work, bringing to humanity greatest and most helpful knowledge gleaned from my long experience in the realm of truth." In the memoir attributed to him he called "Relation of the Spiritual the Material Universe," he recognizes certain defects which he in 1881 to say (on a date) conceited enough of me to imagine I was familiar with laws of nature, but since my position I must confess my ignorance."

Faraday observes: "The only type of mentality in spiritual spheres who know the laws are the scientific minds who deal with creative functions, as yet have few exponents on earth plane." "Holding their existence beyond the plane of material consciousness, they must dwell in a world unknown to material science and one that has been pronounced as unknowable by some of the most advanced scientific minds developed on the ritual plane."

COMMUNITY DANCES

Laurel Canyon Folk Affair Near Mountain Top

The first community dance of the Laurel Canyon Improvement Association, given Saturday night near the top of Lookout Mountain, was attended by 300 persons. Julius W. Paeske, president, acted as general chairman; Howard Davies, vice-president, was master of ceremonies, and Ernest Butterworth, in charge of entertainment, provided a program in which Fred De Silva and other professionals, who are members of the association, took part. The women's committee included Mrs. Howard Davis, Mrs. Milton Young, Mrs. K. G. McLain and Mrs. R. L. Chatain.

The organization, recently formed for the civic betterment of the section, will give the mountain top community dances monthly on its open-air platform.

New York far surpasses any other State in manufactured goods, including practically everything made in modern industry. Its yearly output at the last census, 1919, was $8,867,007,906.

NEW INCOME TAX EXPLAINED

Revenue Collector Shows Change in Provisions; Instructions to be Ready Soon

Instructions relative to new regulations established by the 1924 Revenue Act are being prepared for early issuance to taxpayers, according to announcement of the Collector of Internal Revenue. Some of the rules governing collection of taxes under the new law were explained by the collector as follows:

Formerly a taxpayer's status on the last day of the taxable year determined the amount of his exemptions. If he was married on December 31, he was allowed the exemption granted a married person for the full year. A person who became a widow or a widower during the year and was not remarried on December 31 was allowed only the exemption granted a single person. If during the year the head of a family ceased to support a home he was entitled only to the exemption allowed a single person.

Under the 1924 Revenue Act, the status of the taxpayer is determined by apportionment in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer was single, married or the head of a family. For example, a taxpayer who marries on July 1, 1924, will be entitled to an exemption of $1750. For the first six months of the taxable year he is classed as single, entitling him to an exemption of $500, and for the last six months he is classed as married, entitling him to an exemption of $1250.

The new Revenue Act contains a special provision for reduced taxes on "earned income," which did not appear in previous laws. All net income up to $5000 is deemed to be earned income. On this account the taxpayer is entitled to a credit of 25 per cent of the amount of the tax. In no case is the earned net income considered to be in excess of $10,000.

Chamber Plans October Hawaii Trade Excursion

The success of the third annual trade extension tour of the members of the Chamber of Commerce to the Hawaiian Islands, occasioned the announcement yesterday that another excursion will be conducted this year when the chamber will charter all available space on the City of Los Angeles; the steamer to sail from the harbor on October 11, returning November 1.

It is estimated that between 8000 and 9000 persons passed over the gang plank last Friday night at the reception on board the City of Los Angeles, and according to Frank Wiggins, secretary of the chamber, several hundred persons who desired to make the trip to Hawaii, were left behind through a lack of accommodations on the ship.

In making the announcement yesterday of the coming excursion in October, Mr. Wiggins said that Charles P. Bayer, in charge of the chamber's organization bureau and who managed the trip to the Islands, will arrange for the same itinerary followed by the present excursion and reservations will be opened on August 1.

ROBBED BY MEXICANS

Belvedere Man Asked for Match, And Then Held Up

George Kuhn, of 129½ South Hicks street, Belvedere, was held up near his home early yesterday morning by two Mexicans who first asked him for a match and then robbed him of $18 at the point of an automatic pistol. The robbers then drove off in a small touring car.

Deputy Constables Mendoza and Brown searched the neighborhood but failed to overtake the pair.

ROYSTERING RILED COURT, AVERS WIFE

Burbank City Engineer and Girl Named in Action to Obtain Divorce

So loudly did Frank Curt Miller and a girl employed by him in the City Engineer's office in Burbank royster together that the judge of the recorder's court once had to send a court attache up to demand more quiet, so that judicial proceedings might be conducted in peace and quiet, according to the divorce complaint of Mrs. Clara Paxton Miller.

"I am making money and I want a live bird to help me spend it," Miller is declared by his wife to have told her once when chiding her for failure to keep up with his pace. His conduct, she said, resulted in her losing her former beauty.

When the Trustees of Burbank inquired into his morals as a result of her filing of a former divorce action, he persuaded her to drop the proceedings and declare her charges false, she said.

Community property worth $30,000 was listed in Mrs. Miller's complaint, in which she stated his income was $800 per month. In his answer Miller denied her charges and said his income had not been more than $200 monthly since she filed her first action.

SAFE OF COMPANY RIFLED

Burglars blew open a safe at the Dearborn Chemical Company, 909 Santa Fe street, Saturday night and escaped with $50 according to a report to the police yesterday. Entrance was gained through a skylight. Detectives Dryden and Willis investigated.

JUMP OR FALL FROM TROLLEY CAR FATAL

An unidentified Mexican about 25 years of age was fatally injured Saturday when he jumped or fell from a Los Angeles Railway street car at Whittier avenue and Downey street. He died in an ambulance on the way to the Receiving Hospital. The body was taken to the J. D. Button undertaking establishment to be held while deputy sheriffs seek to locate relatives or friends.

Love

"I MAKE no apologies for what follows," Gene Stratton-Porter begins her startling chronicle in The American Magazine for July.

"If people talk where they know I cannot avoid hearing every word they say, they must not expect me to have regard for their secrets."

What were the secrets overheard by America's most famous woman novelist? What could the popular author of "Freckles" and "A Girl of the Limberlost" learn about love from two strangers on the deck of a steamer?

CLEARLY, the two strangers were neither common nor ill-bred. Yet in the broad light they clung to each other unabashed. From their talk, which came clearly to Mrs. Porter's ears, it was plain that they had not met for a long time.

"You look so cross," the woman said, "I'm half afraid of you."

"But that's only my face," the man protested. "I didn't make my face. Won't you try to forget my face, and look at my heart?"

Bit by bit their story laid itself bare. Suddenly he said the one unforgivable thing—the thing that, coming from the lips of a man, has never yet failed to strike terror to a woman's heart.

"My own heart made a pole-vault," writes Mrs. Porter, "and lay shivering so long that I almost lost my breath. Why did he say that? What would she answer?"

This is no mere story, though from the pen of a great story-teller. It is a look straight into the human heart, a throb from the very pulse of life. That's what makes it an American Magazine article.

Open these pages and voices speak. Human beings move and laugh, struggle, and suffer, and fall, and get up again, winning the fights we all must win. That is why this is more than a magazine—more even than "literature." It is Life!

The Woman and Her Job

By Katherine Hutchinson

[Questions concerning the problems of women will be answered in this column if addressed to Mrs. Watrous at the Times. Requests for personal replies must be accompanied by a stamped envelope.]

WHAT THE LETTER BOX HOLDS

One of the most interesting phases of this column are the letters tucked away in the mail box. I never know when I take them out whether the day is fair or fine. I have to open them first. Dynamite days there are, and woeful wails, and then the kindly, pleasant people whose letters are like violets sparkling with the morning dew.

Every once in a while there are letters from some one whom I have come to know, and after a while we meet and I am richer for the experience. Such a one came to me this morning. She is one whose problem seems to grow more confusing as the months have slipped by. She wants to do a certain thing—has a very clear objective—but she must earn and save the money to do it.

This is a big, busy world, as we all know, and one of the first things it demands is specific service. If you haven't had the training of a specialist in some particular line it is very difficult to gain a foothold.

This girl has finally come to a decision and determined to follow in the footsteps of my nurse about whom I wrote several months ago and seek employment as a maid. She, too, has had experience in nursing, but is of the practical sort. Her training has been that of the well-to-do girl in a home, and she really enjoys cooking and sewing, though she has had an excellent musical education. In our talk this morning we considered the possibilities of trying to start a class for children—but, she hasn't the money to wait.

My nurse has found a very happy home where she is much more the companion and "big sister" than she is the maid. Now this young woman argues that "if there was such a place for her, there must be one for me."

There was a letter that reached me several weeks ago telling of the writer's desperation. We had a conference, and talked it all over. There were tears, too, but out of those tears came a frank understanding. Sometimes it seems as though the very threshing out of all the details of such a case destroys the inhibitions and the barriers that block the way.

In the course of a week came word that the desperate one had found employment. It was just for a day or two, but it was something. Then another note that she had been retained for a few weeks. And yesterday a joyous little note that she would likely be continued permanently.

That note made me happier than I had been for weeks. I could have thrown up my hat and cheered.

Then there are the letters—quite obviously from men—trying to get me to write on political subjects, or from women asking me to write a scathing article on cigarette smoking. There are letters of misunderstanding written by women who think they have been injured and who pour out the vials of their wrath, not knowing these stories are published weeks after they are written.

And every so often some one who knows or has met me registers a protest against the picture that heads the column, and begs that I get another. Right here I want to serve notice on everybody, friend or foe, that the photographer and engraver have done nobly. I'll be in my dotage tottering on a cane before I'll sit for another picture. If my friends don't like that one—well, they should have seen the others! In the language of the studios I'm not one of those who "screen like a million dollars."

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Will the lady who wanted to exchange services for dancing lessons for her little daughter please write me again? I have lost her address, and another reader has made a suggestion that will interest her, I believe.

Dear Alice: You did not address your envelope, nor put your street number at the head of your letter. If you will supply it, I will be glad to give you the address of a vocational adviser, who may help you find the work for which you are fitted. I believe the surest test is that our work should seem like play. If you are watching the clock and praying for Saturday at the beginning of each week, as you say you are, then there is something wrong.

Dear Mrs. W.: I will comply with your request for a story on advertising at an early date, and will also write you personally as soon as I can secure the information for which you ask.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

One of the delightful affairs of recent date was the party with which Lucy Estelle Doheny entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Laurence Doheny, Jr., in Chester Place, on Saturday afternoon, the occasion celebrating her ninth birthday anniversary. One hundred little friends of the little hostess and her brothers, Edward Laurence III, William Henry and Patrick Doheny, were invited to "come and bring their mothers." The special feature of the afternoon was the housewarming of "Sunshine Cottage" which Mr. and Mrs. Doheny have erected in the grounds and which is furnished with bedroom, living-room, kitchen, bath and with work room for the boys. It is also equipped with work bench and four bunks. In the spacious gardens balloons were hung from the trees and released at intervals blowing down on the heads of the children, who with much delight captured them and sent them away again into the air. The tea tables were also set in the gardens and the piece de resistance, the huge birthday cake, held nine tall candles with one small taper "to grow on." Mr. and Mrs. Edward Laurence Doheny, grandparents of little Lucy Estelle, arrived home on Saturday morning after several months in the East, and were honor guests at the birthday celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Doheny will spend the summer in Los Angeles, taking week-end trips on their yacht, the Casiana.

Home From Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. John Carroll Baldwin, (the latter formerly Miss Merle Ethelyn Kennedy,) whose wedding was one of the brilliant events of last month, have returned from their honeymoon and are domiciled in the York Apartments. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin motored after the ceremony to San Francisco and afterward down through the Yosemite Valley. They were gone about a month.

Tour Abroad

Mrs. Ethel W. Bailey, head of the French department of the Glendale Union High, is departing for the East, where she will visit in Washington with her sister, Mrs. Nellie Mae Bailey Young. SLEEP—No. 1

"To sleep is to strain and purify our emotions, to deposit the mud of life, to calm the fever of the soul, to return to the bosom of maternal nature, thence to reissue hale and streng."—Amiel.

WHY DO WE SLEEP?

Sleep is essential. Without sleep we cannot live. The life forces that are going out during the day are restored during sleep; or as some one has put it, during the day life flows out and during sleep life flows in. There are several theories for the cause and nature of sleep. According to Collins, they are as follows:

(1.) There is a lessening of the volume and velocity of the blood in the brain. Therefore, there is unconsciousness the same as during fainting.

(3.) Sleep is of a chemical nature; that is, the accumulation of the products of fatigue causes a more or less poisonous effect which produces drowsiness, and during sleep the poisons are thrown off.

(4.) The biological theory; sleep is instinctive. We do not sleep because we are exhausted, but because we cannot help it. It is a manifestation of evolutionary development.

HOW MUCH SLEEP DO WE NEED

There is an old English saying that natures requires five hours, custom gives seven, laziness takes nine and wickedness eleven.

It is generally believed that eight hours of complete rest in bed are required for the average person. That doesn't mean that you have to sleep all that period. If you are resting quietly part of the time and not worrying because you don't happen to be sleeping, nature will be storing up energy during the rest hours as well as during the sleep, although not quite so effectively.

Those who are extremely nervous and underweight should rest in bed more than eight hours. There are many famous men whom history records as getting along with a very small amount of sleep, among them Virgil, Horace, Franklin, Napoleon and others. But the belief is that while they might not have slept much at night, they did take naps during the day. It is said that the Duke of Wellington slept only four hours at night, but he often fell asleep at the dinner table and also while riding. Edison is reported as sleeping only four hours a night, bt he has a couch in his laboratory—so I have read—and he takes many short rests during the day.

HOW MUCH SHOULD CHILDREN SLEEP

As growth and repair are most active during the hours of sleep and rest, it is extremely important that children get many undisturbed hours of sleep. A newborn baby sleeps most of the time. The hours gradually decrease until by 2 years of age, fourteen or fifteen hours, including the morning and afternoon naps, are enough. Later, the afternoon nap has perhaps been given up, so they will be sleepy and can be put to bed by 6 o'clock.

For children up to 7 years—twelve hours; 7 to 10 years—eleven hours; 10 to 18—nine hours. While it is extremely important for all children to have the full amount of rest and sleep, it is doubly important for the nervous and undernourished child.

IS THERE ANY DANGER FROM SLEEPING TOO MUCH?

Yes, a person can sleep too much, and lassitude and stupidity will result—just the same effects as from eating too much. Be sure there is not some disorder causing the desire to sleep over long.

"Love not sleep, lest thou come to poverty; open thine eyes and thou shalt be satisfied." Prov. XX. 13.

"Slothfulness casteth into a deep sleep; and an idle soul shall suffer hunger." Prov. XIX. 15.

"GLORY OF THE SEA"

One of the rarest sea shells in the world is called the "Glory of the Sea." In shape and appearance it suggests an unfolding rosebud. Only twelve to fourteen are represented in collections today. Three specimens of this beautiful mollusk were found in 1838 by a British scientist on a Philippine coral reef. A few weeks later the reef was destroyed by an earthquake.—[Indianapolis News.

It is reported by statistic hunters that Hawaii has more than twice as many motor cars and trucks as there are in all of China.

CHERRY PRESERVES

Place in a preserving kettle four pounds of sugar, two cupfuls of water, bring to a boil and boil three minutes, add four pounds of pitted cherries and half a cupful of the cherry seed kernels; simmer slowly until the cherries are tender, but not broken, and a little of the juice will jell quickly when dropped on a cold plate. Pour into hot jars, seal and store in a cool, dry place.

VEAL-HAM SALAD

Rub a cold bowl with a clove of crushed garlic and mix in it one cupful of cooked diced veal, one cupful of cooked diced ham, one chopped pimiento, one chopped green pepper, one chopped hard boiled egg, half a cupful of chopped spiced pickles, half a cupful of thinly sliced celery, one teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of paprika mixed with two-thirds of a cupful of French dressing and two tablespoonfuls of chopped capers. Serve on cold lettuce-covered plates.

CORN MUFFINS

Sift one and a half cupfuls of sifted flour with one and a half cupfuls of corn meal, one teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and five teaspoonfuls of baking powder; beat into these one and a half cupfuls of milk, two well-beaten eggs, and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter; beat well, fill muffin pans two-thirds full with the mixture, brush with melted butter and bake in a hot oven twenty-five minutes.

APRICOT RICE PUDDING

Rub one and a half cupfuls of cooked apricots through a sieve and mix with one-third of a teaspoonful of salt, half a cupful of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of vanilla, one teaspoonful of lemon extract, three well-beaten eggs, three cupfuls milk and two cupfuls of cooked rice; mix well, pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven twenty-five minutes. Serve cold.

DUMPLINGS

Sift two cupfuls of sifted flour with half a teaspoonful of salt and two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder; rub into these one and a half level tablespoonfuls of butter and when like coarse meal work to a smooth dough with three-quarters of a cupful of milk; roll out half an inch thick, cut with a small round cutter, drop half an inch apart onto the top of the cooked stew, cover tight and cook fifteen minutes.

FRESH PEACH TART

Line a deep pie tin with a short pie pastry, fill with dry beans and bake in a moderate oven; remove the beans and cool. Peel, remove stones, and slice firm ripe peaches, lay in even rows in the baked pie shell, sprinkl with sugar and just before serving cover with sweetened whipped cream.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Cabbage

If the cabbage is new and young it requires less than a half hour's boiling, and less water is necessary than for old cabbage.

Cause it to Grow

A little castor oil applied to the roots of the household plant that appears to be dying will frequently revive it and cause it to live.

Avoid the Accident

If the burner is turned so high on the oil stove that you cannot turn it down again, throw a handful of salt on the flaming wick. It will put it out immediately.

A Mop Test

When buying a new dry mop, shake it and see if strings show individually and do not mat together. A good quality mop will have strings that practically stand alone.

Removing Paint

Frequently, when the house is being painted, unsightly spots are spattered on the front steps. Make a strong solution of potash and wash the steps, leaving the solution to sink in. When the paint becomes dry, wash it off with soap and water. Rinse finally with cold water.

Clift Rates

From the beauty of the Clift and from the excellence of its accommodations, some may have received the idea that Clift rates are higher than other good hotels. Such is not the case at all.

Is becoming to most women, but it is important to remember that the combing and brushing of long hair actually stimulate the scalp, while with bobbed hair this stimulation is lacking

LOSES 30 POUNDS AND IS THOROUGHLY CURED OF STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLE

Prominent Los Angeles Business Man Says Coso Volcanic Iron Water Has Fully Restored His Health After Years Suffering.

ALFRED THOMPSON

For seven years I suffered daily from Indigestion, Acid Stomach and Liver trouble. I would often lie awake for hours and would arise in the morning with little energy and mentally depressed.

I came to my office in the Grauman Million Dollar Theater Building and learned the Coso Hot Springs water as I had paid out thousands of dollars without benefit and hardly believe that a Mineral Water could accomplish the wonderful results that I had obtained though, as I was, I decided to use one bottle of Coso Volcanic Water and experienced a night's sleep and awoke refreshing sleep. I then ordered a case and within a week almost from the time my indigestion vanished, my Stomach and Liver from which I had suffered for years, became active and although it has now been over eight months since I finished the Coso Treatment, I have not had and have gained in weight.

I have since connected with a number of large business enterprises in Los Angeles and those associated with me realize that I have taken an active interest in making this statement, further than to help my fellow sufferer.

ALFRED THOMPSON.

It is true that Coso Volcanic Water costs more than other Mineral Waters, but it is the only Naturally Sour Water in America, relieves permanently, conditions where Soda only gives a temporary relief and is actually cheap at many times the price.

Order a case of Coso Water today which will prove to be 16 bottles of Health and Happiness. Case of 16 bottles, $16.00. Single bottles, $1.25. If the first trial bottle of Coso Water is not all we represent it to be, simply return the empty bottle and we will refund your money. Call at our Hill Street Office and read the U. S. Wood-Wind Instruments Are Introduced at KHJ

Baxter-Northup Company in Role of Benefactor

Singular Triumph is Won by Artistic Group

BY CLAIRE FORBES CRANE

Mikelangelo's famous words, "Trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle" never held greater truth than in its subtle revelation last night at KHJ. Hidden in the notes which drifted out into the ether spaces, was an untold story of devotion to an ideal, sacrificial co-operation and the realization of vaulting hopes. Picture an establishment engaged in the business of musical instruments, viewing each instrument not as a means of increasing the company's income through its sale but adopting each piece of merchandise as a symbol for greater happiness to humanity. Visualize this organization inculcating in its loyal employees this spirit of the extent of utilizing the rear quarters of the store for long and frequent rehearsals in order that each instrument in the hands of each worker would be elevated from mere merchandise and become an instrument of mercy.

AID COMMUNITY

Imagine a scene where individuals labor without thought of material reward to the end that the community in which they live may be better for their presence. When the picture has been completed in your mind one will realize the underlying current which coursed through the concert given last night at KHJ by the Baxter-Northup Company.

Aside from its veiled beauty the evening was singular in that it represented a space of time never before consumed in a similar manner. It was an evening devoted to the family of wood-wind instruments which are not commonly known and proved a delightful surprise to the listeners. Whatever position of importance the wood-wind instruments occupy in the esteem of the music-loving public in a large sense can be attributed to the efforts of the Baxter-Northup Company.

The program was opened with the trio selection, "L'Encore," by Victor Herbert, sublimely played by Harry Baxter, flute; Ray G. Northup, clarinet, and a piano accompaniment of rare understanding by Mrs. Harry Baxter. Miss May Hogan, harpist of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, joined forces with Carroll Cambern, flute, and colored the "Barcarolle," by Catherine, with tints of exotic delicacy.

EVENING FLITS BY

A duet for clarinet and piano was played by Victor Sandoval and Harold Shellhorn, respectively, and continued the artistic atmosphere which enveloped the studio. And so the evening flitted by with greater rapidity than was desired by the delightful audience. Other members who participated in the making of radio broadcasting history were Philip Memoli, Jr., oboe, of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra; Achille Heynen, bassoon of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra; Dale Hogue, clarinet; Archie Wade, flute; Horst Mennig, flute, and Mrs. Helen M. Little, flute.

It was an episode in the lives of the many hearers that time will find difficulty in erasing.

Another program of interest will be given at KHJ tomorrow night by the Hellman Bank. It will include an address by Irving Hellman on the subject of the Hollywood Bowl concerts.

Elks Install Newest Lodge at Inglewood

An antlered horde, led by Lodge No. 99, the Los Angeles chapter of Elks, swept down upon the city of Inglewood Saturday, paraded, made merry, solemnized the installation of Lodge No. 1492 of Inglewood, the baby lodge of Elkdom, wound up with a dance and departed. The installation gave California a national record with six new lodges since the beginning of the year.

In honor of the event a holiday was declared at Inglewood and the townspeople, regardless of fraternal affiliation, turned out to honor the Order of Elks. Hundreds of visitors were present when the rites which added another chapter to the organization were observed in the Hudson Automobile Building. Installation was followed by a dance in the hall.

Ceremonies were in charge of the Los Angeles chapter, Dr. Howard B. Kirtland of San Luis Obispo, president of the State Elks' Association, aiding.

Several applications for charters in the State are pending.

Four Gunmen Rob Two Card Players of Rolls

A. B. Paulais, proprietor of a rooming-house at 650 South Burlington avenue, and Frank Harlow, a guest, were dealing the last few hands in a card game late yesterday morning when four masked intruders broke into the room. Their faces were covered with red bandana handerkerchiefs and each of the quartet carried a gun. They had gained entrance through the front door with the aid of a passkey.

The card players were made to get up from their table and relieved of $200 in money after which the spokesman for the gunmen warned them against making any move for fifteen minutes. With this admonition, the four holdup men hurried out through a back door. Paulais reported the robbery to the police.

Auto Bandits Rob Two Cafes in Hasty Calls

Two cafes were victimized early yesterday morning by a pair of hold-up men operating in a small touring car, according to reports made to the police.

McKee's Cafe at 151 North Western avenue, was visited by the bandits, one of whom covered Harold Watts, night manager, with a .32-caliber revolver while the other rifled the cash register. Two customers, who were in the restaurant during the hold-up were made to join in the hand-raising.

Desserts Chilled in Stone are Best

Desserts that must be chilled are best when chilled at an even low temperature. To obtain an even low temperature The NOTASEME REFRIGERATOR has been designed. The lining is one-half inch stone composition. It is not only super insulated, but it has dead air spaces between the inner stone and the outer box. This construction protects the stone from outside influences. The stone alone will stay cold indefinitely. The NOTASEME is perfection itself for holding a constant low temperature.

Desserts chilled in a NOTASEME are made solid quickly and maintain this chilled state longer after taken from the refrigerator.

This stone lining is sanitary and odorless. The corners are rounded—no dirt can collect. Desserts chilled in this clean white stone can never have a tinny flavor.

Because ice will last twice as long in a NOTASEME they often pay for themselves in one season and show a profit during the many future seasons.

THRONG HONORS NAVY DEAD

Comrades of Mississippi Blast Victims and Many Citizens Hear Tributes at Theater

Comrades of the forty-eight men and officers who sacrificed their lives in the disaster aboard the dreadnaught Mississippi joined in impressive memorial services with several thousand men and women from private life yesterday at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater.

The memorial speakers were Dr. Rufus Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, and William D. Farrell, representing the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. In a brief but appropriate address, Dr. Von KleinSmid paid glowing tribute to the dead men o' warsmen while Mr. Farrell recited a poem in honor of the dead written by a sailor from the battle fleet.

The memorial services began with the singing of "Stabat Mater" by Alice Gentle, grand opera star. Singing of hymns by the entire assembly from the battle fleet accompanied by the students of the Frederick Burr School followed. An impressive tableau then was presented.

All branches of the military and naval service were represented at the services. Sailors and marines in large numbers were present as were a delegation from the National Guard and aviators from Clover Field.

OFFICERS PRAISED FOR RELIEVING ANXIETY

With the U.S.S. Mississippi's and U.S.S. New Mexico's honored dead now a heritage to the cherished traditions of the Navy, hundreds of expressions of gratitude and appreciation of the thoughtfulness and courtesy of the naval officials at the harbor are being received daily in Los Angeles.

Relatives and friends of the victims of the Mississippi's turret blast, and the others endangered on board the battleship, and representatives of the press whose duties took them to the fleet anchorage as soon as the disaster became known, joined in praise of the officers who, in the hour of grief and danger gave every possible help to the hundreds of relatives and reporters who besieged them.

Not only in the initial stages of the disaster, but in the inquiry that followed, the officers of the Mississippi, the New Mexico, the hospital ship Relief, and members of Vice-Admiral H. A. Wiley's staff, provided every assistance and did everything in their power to lessen the sorrows and anxieties of the relatives and friends throughout the nation.

The scope of the disaster and the rapidity with which it was flashed throughout the country resulted in an overwhelming flood of messages and other communications that poured into San Pedro before the last bodies of the victims were removed from their turret tomb. The fact that the ship was not out of danger for some time after its arrival at the harbor made the work of the officials concerned even more difficult.

Vice-Admiral Wiley, acting commander-in-chief of the Battle Fleet, who took command of the situation as soon as word of the explosion reached him; Rear-Admiral W. V. Pratt, commander of Battleship Division No. 4; Capt. W. D. Brotherton of the Mississippi; Commander Yates of the Mississippi, Lieut. Morgan of the New Mexico, aide to the admiral, and the other officers whose duties placed them in touch with the inquiries immediately after the accident, did everything in their power to expedite the release of the information for which the entire nation was clamoring. The first flash that scores were dead on the Mississippi did not carry any names, with the result that every person who had a relative or friend on board sought information almost immediately after the news was published.

GIGANTIC TASK

While the work of removing the dead and caring for the bodies of the injured survivors on the Mississippi and the Relief prevented the officials on those two ships from devoting much time to anything else in the first few hours following the explosion, arrangements were made by which information was given out on board the New Mexico. Search of the service records in an effort to prevent any mistakes in the dead list occupied considerable time.

As soon as the wants of the injured were supplied, Commander Ralph W. McDowell, chief surgeon of the Relief, made arrangements to give such information as was sought.

In the meantime the court of inquiry, headed by Capt. Yates Sterling, Jr., of the New Mexico, and Capt. W. S. Crosley, Idaho, Lieutenant-Commander E. J. Foy, New Mexico, Lieutenant-Commander T. S. Boyd, Idaho, and Capt. Brotherton of the Mississippi, made arrangements whereby press representatives were enabled to obtain every detail of the testimony.

In addition to supplying the opportunity for the gathering of news, the officials from Admiral Wiley down, provided naval barges not only for members of the press but also for relatives and others who had business on board.

TUNNEL AGAIN ALMOST READY

Public Works Board Says So and Asks Money to Light It Up

Never having been considered a particularly optimistic department of the city government, the Board of Public Works somewhat startled the City Council during the quieter hours of the tag end of last week, by advancing officially the information that the Second-street tunnel will be completed "on or about July 1."

The information was prompted by the fact that it has been called to the attention of the board by City Electrician Manahan that the city as yet has made no provisions for lighting the tunnel. Manahan previously had so informed the City Council but that body in official language advised him to "tell it to the Marines." At the same time several members of the Council recalled having "kicked the slats out of their cradles" when the "completion" joke first was sprung on them.

A sum of $5000 is needed to provide lighting and since the Board of Public Works has been dragged into the affair, it is probable that the budget committee will consider such an appropriation this week.

Auto Driver Is Robbed, Tied Up, Left by Bridge

After robbing W. L. Robinson, 4414 Victoria street, Rosehill, of $28, two armed bandits early yesterday morning bound their victim and left him lying underneath the Montebello bridge. The robbers then drove away in Robinson's machine. Robinson's cries for help attracted Malcolm Wilson, a nearby resident, who released him.

Robinson later reported to Deputy Sheriffs Patton and Walton that he had been engaged to drive three men to Fullerton when he was ordered by his passengers to stop at the bridge. The driver was taken out of the cab and hit over the head, robbed of his money and chauffeur's license and then tied up, he declared.

TEN THOUSAND ACRES IN SALE

Tract in Palo Verde Valley Brings $3,000,000

Vineyards Company Buys Riverside Property

Land Will be Cut Up and Sold in Small Plots

Sale of 10,000 acres in Palo Verde Valley in Eastern Riverside county to the Southern California Vineyards, Inc., for a consideration of $3,000,000 was announced yesterday by Andrew J. Warmington of Los Angeles, who for the last ten years has been a central figure in the development of that section. He will receive $1,500,000 as his share for the acreage. Those interested with him include C. J. Rihn and associates who receive $750,000; and the Ripley Improvement Company and J. M. Neeland, whose share in the purchase price is $450,000, it is announced.

The Southern California Vineyards will subdivide the acreage in five and ten-acre tracts for sale with water rights to small farmers. An improvement program calling for expenditure of $3,000,000 has been outlined. This will include the planting of the acreage to early table grapes and Kadota figs, to which the soil of that district is said to be adapted. The contract for the planting has been given to Kirkman Nurseries, Inc., involving a cost of $2,000,000, it is stated.

The acreage sold previously has been devoted to the production of alfalfa, cotton and fruits and vegetables. The change to grapes and figs, it is announced, will be made in the hope of greater profits.

The sale of the tracts in the acreage will be handled by the J. W. Gillespie agency, which is said to have subdivided 11,000,000 acres of farm lands in the Middle West in recent years.

Last year the Palo Verde Valley produced crops of more than $6,000,000 in value. According to Federal and State agricultural experts the annual crop production will be nearly $15,000,000 when developments under way or planned are completed.

DEATHS OF JAPANESE NOT LINKED

Investigation Discloses No Connection Between Port, Pasadena Victims

While police are still uncertain as to whether Frank C. Murayama, Japanese real estate broker, whose body was found Saturday beneath the Colorado-street bridge, was the victim of accident or foul play or a suicide, investigation of the case has developed the belief that between the death of Marayama and those of Tago Irarashi and Thomas Yoshioka, whose bullet-riddled bodies were found Friday at Point Firmin, there is no connection.

Nothing that has been uncovered by the police in the Murayama investigation corroborates the theory that all the trio of dead Japanese met death through the same agency.

Irarashi and Yoshioka, according to the police, are widely known gamblers in the Japanese colony and probably met death in a gambling feud. Murayama is equally known in the colony as a business man and to date nothing that would indicate he has been involved in gambling has been revealed.

The body of Marayama was hurtled 130 feet from the deck of the Colorado-street bridge to the rocks of the gorge below. The body was badly bruised, not only from the impact with the rocks in the bottom of the gorge, but passage through the branches of trees beneath the bridge. It was found Saturday by laborers in the employ of the city of Pasadena. The severe bruising of the body made it impossible to ascertain definitely whether Murayama was alive at the time he left the deck of the bridge.

The Japanese Consul in Los Angeles has asked for a full report on the deaths of all Japanese on orders from the Japanese Foreign Office.

Investigation of both cases is under the direction of Detective Chief Home. Detective Captain Cline is assigned to the Los Angeles Harbor case.

SEARCH STARTS HERE TO FIND MARY BOYLAN

The Times has been asked to aid in a search now being made by the Sheriff of San Diego county and relatives for Mary Boylan, who wandered away from a sanatorium at Alpine near San Diego last Wednesday and has not been heard of since. Mrs. Boylan was under treatment as the result of a nervous breakdown and it is feared that the illness may have affected her mind. She is described as being about 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds and 46 years of age, but does not look more than 40. Any information should be communicated to her sister-in-law, Mrs. A. C. Boucher, 434 West Twentieth street, Los Angeles.

SAYS WIFE GAVE DETECTIVE KISS

Husband Asserts Man Hired to Watch Won Love

Cross-Complaint Names Other as Petting Partner

Divorce Suit Demands Share in Oil Fortune

Kisses were at least part of the reward of the detective who helped Mrs. Margaret Cates in her search for evidence upon which she based her divorce complaint, according to a cross-complaint which has been filed by Charles Barker Cates, possessor of a substantial fortune made in oil.

Mrs. Cates, in a supplemental complaint filed a week ago, named Mrs. Erdine Kelly as a rival who had infatuated Cates. Mrs. Cates charged that her husband had suggested to her that if she were dissatisfied with conditions she might "go and live with Kelly."

HUGGING CHARGED

Cates, in his cross-complaint, made parallel charges naming one John Doe Boles, whom he described as a detective employed by his wife to watch the apartment of Mrs. Kelly.

At 3243 Ransom street, Long Beach, Mrs. Cates rented a room from which to conduct her espionage of the home of Mrs. Kelly at 1516 Obispo street, according to the cross-complaint. Here she installed John Doe Boles, and here it was that the incidents referred to in the cross-complaint were asserted to have taken place.

For Mrs. Cates, according to her husband, did not entrust her mission to Boles alone. She participated in the watch herself, he said, and while watching and waiting she and Boles whiled away the time with petting and kissing, hugging and fondling, in the words of the cross-complaint.

ANOTHER NAMED

Furthermore, Cates averred, Mrs. Cates regaled Boles and other men at the Ransom-street address with quaint yarns and narratives in questionable taste. Also, he said, she allowed Boles to carry her pocketbook, dip into it at will, and wear her diamond ring.

Another man, a David Hill, also was named by Cates. This man, he declared, she also "petted, kissed, hugged and fondled" during an automobile ride April 5, last, after which she and Hill, he said, repaired to her home at 1664 Girard street, Los Angeles.

Community property worth about $200,000 is listed in Mrs Cates's complaint, in which she asks judgment for half. She recently was awarded $150 per month temporary alimony and $50 per month for the support of their child, pending trial of her suit.

STAR TRIUMPHS

LEATRICE JOY SCORES AT METROPOLITAN

By Grace Kingsley

"Changing Husbands" is in six reels, a hundred laughs, and about nineteen gasps. You may and probably will view it, down at the Metropolitan, drawn there, perhaps, by the title. But they are putting something over on you with that title. There is only one husband changed, to be exact—the other is simply a lover. Anyhow, it is very fresh, very funny, and is superbly acted, if you can speak of comedy acting in that hifalutin fashion.

Though gaspy, and though the husbands are not only changed but exchanged, the stunt doesn't occur until the very last reel, and then is very decently arranged. No husband need worry about the wife's seeing it either.

It is while the husband and lover are in what you might call a state of transition that most of the gasps occur. But providing an author is either sufficiently dramatic or sufficiently farcical, he can get away with almost anything, and it must be confessed that authors Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin do get away with a good deal.

However, situations that used to be considered very spicy indeed now merely make us yawn, so the spiciest of them now have to be pepped up. For instance, the dear old device of having the wrong lady in a husband's house, with people thinking, at bedtime, that the lady is the man's wife, and everybody conspiring to make them retire together doesn't raise a thrill nor a laugh nowadays. This device is used in this picture, but, oh, dearie, you don't know the half of it unless you've seen the film! But it is made very, very funny, and you will laugh so much that you probably forget to be shocked.

An entirely fresh twist is given the time-attitered situation by having both husband and lover of the two girls in the story entirely deceived because the girls look so exactly alike that when the two exchange places, neither man knows the difference. We forgive even the double role theme because of the freshness of this and other situations. The details of action are full of excellent comedy touches, too, though much of the fun is highly macksen'ted.

Leatrice Joy is marvelous in the double role. Perhaps it would take a real analyst of acting to do justice to her work. The characters she plays look alike, but her achievement is that their natures are revealed as so utterly different that it's almost a wonder the men were fooled! One is a frivolous, stage-struck society lady, the other is a girl of the stage who hates her work. Miss Joy is gorgeously beautiful in this picture, as well as gorgeously artistic.

Victor Varconi is wonderfully attractive, and gives a flawless characterization of a kindly, complaisant, but unhappy husband; but doing so well with this part, which obviously is rather beneath his talents, we are most anxious to see him in something where he can expand more.

What a wonder kid that Raymond Griffith is! Of course, he is one of the spiciest bits of spice in the picture. And what a very great comedienne Zasu Pitts has become! She has a boundless sense of drollery, and she has poise now-a-days, too, and a method and personality that make you watch her every moment when she's on the screen. Julia Faye, William Boyd and Helen Dunbar are all delightful, too.

That very fine stage artiste, Irene Franklin, is the star member of the vaudeville troupe. The adoreable red-head brings back with her all her fascination and a few of her vaudeville numbers, and manages to make herself heard to the uttermost parts of the great theater even in her talking stunts. The theater was packed, and doubtless it was largely Mlle. Irene who did it.

"LISTEN, LESTER," IS LURE AT TALLY'S

You simply must come over to Tally's Broadway and look at Lester listen in "Listen Lester!" Even if the stage farce it is taken from is vintage, it is delicious comedy stuff on the screen just as it was on the stage in another day.

You can tell quite easily where the original author left off and the scenarist began, because "Listen Lester" is of the year 3 B.C. (Before Cellars,) whereas right in the middle of the fourth reel the two heroines are kidnaped, and Lester, the detective, tells the bootleggers on the boat, "I've helped you dispose of a lot of cases; now you must help me dispose of this case of mine!"

The story is mostly about the attempted sealing of a lady's letters, with everybody taking a hand, and the button-button-who's got-the-button tactics resulting in a lot of hilarity. What with detectives detecting each other, the fun is fast.

A wonderful cast interprets the dear old tale. It does seem as if, since "The Gold Diggers," Louise Frazenda is destined to chase Alec Francis for the rest of her life! They seemingly have developed great facility at the chase, and both were far better in this than in "The Gold Diggers." Francis deserves all the credit in the world for putting over the chased (but not chaste) old widower in smashingly effective fashion, while all the time giving a perfectly natural and legitimate characterization. Here is one of the very, very fine character artists of the screen. Hoking it, he wouldn't have gained a quarter of the genuine interest he wins by his present method.

Louise Fazenda's work as the pursuing adventuress is beyond praise. What force of personality, what contrast of moods she brings to the role. And how canny of her not to overplay the part, too much and never to leave out that quality which is one belonging to every great comedian,—viz., an undertone of wistfulness and pathos. No matter how hard Louise chases the men in pictures, you always wish her luck. She does a fine little bit in the last reel, where she shows that she loves old Alec for himself alone. Lee Moran as the hotel clerk is right there with the comedy every second, just as he always is, and so is Harry Myers in the role of Lester. Eva Novak is very pretty and clever as the daughter.

I'm glad we are soon to see George O'Hara starring again. His is one of the most likable magnetic and vividly masculine personalities on the screen, he is a natural-born actor, and has more than the usual amount of good looks. As the young lover, who fights for his lady, he is more than adequate.

Louise Lorraine On Way

Louise Lorraine, former F.B.O. star, who was supposed to have gone to South America with Art Acord's company to make a picture, is reported to be on her way home to Hollywood.

Featured in Current Comedy

Louise Fazenda and Alec B. Francis

Two players prominent in the cast of "Listen Lester," now showing on the Tally screen.

Shirley Mason Brings Guard for Her Chair

Shirley Mason, dimunitive Fox star, is not going to stand up on sets between shots, or Bonzo, her prize winning bull-dog, will have to know the reason why.

Miss Mason is starring in "The Phantom Jury" under the direction of Denison Clift. Previous to the advent of Bonzo, anyone and everyone who wanted a few minutes rest, parked in the chair marked "Shirley Mason."

Now things are different, for there Bonzo sits in Miss Mason's chair ready to chew up a couple of children and a few grown-ups before breakfast wtihout turning a hair. When little Shirley is through with a scene, Bonzo jumps down and greets her uproariously. Truth to tell, Bonzo is really as harmless as a kitten and if anyone should pat him gently they could have the chair or anything else that he happened to posses.

"SEA HAWK" TO OPEN AT CRITERION SOON

Announcement has been made that the western premiere showing of Frank Lloyd's "The Sea Hawk" will occur at the Criterion Theater within a fortnight.

The Grand-avenue playhouse will be closed at the conclusion of Harold Lloyd's "Girl Shy," the current showing, to permit alterations which will transform the theater into the proper atmosphere for the presentation of the Sabatini sea drama.

"The Sea Hawk" had its eastern premiere at the Astor Theater, New York, on the 2nd inst., winning exceptional commendation from critics and public, and has met with increasing popularity each week since its opening.

The exact date for the opening here will be announced as soon as it can be accurately estimated as to the time necessary for the transformation of the house and the preparation of the presentation.

"GALLOPING FISH" HEADING FUN BILL

"Galloping Fish," comes into the class of inspirational triumphs and a new record has been established at Grauman's Rialto where this comedy is entering its fifth week.

Freddie, the trained seal, not only plays the title role in the merry mix-up of mirthful situations on the screen but he is appearing in person, at each performance. Meeting his film fans "face to face" has added greatly to the popularity of this new star, for Freddie is never temperamental and always does just the right thing to win friends.

"LISTEN LESTER" IS NEW TALLY FEATURE

John Cort's stage success, "Listen Lester," which played for two years in New York and three years on the road, comes in screen form to Tally's Theater tomorrow. This play is said to be the ideal hot weather entertainment, and has a cast including Harry Myers, Louise Fazenda, Alec Francis, Eva Novak, George O'Hara, Lee Moran, Dot Farley and Eugenia Gilbert, which promises a merry week.

DOUG AND MARY PLAN WORLD THEATER CHAIN

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

COPENHAGEN, June 19.—Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford have arrived from Berlin. Fairbanks said that he is trying to secure international capital for a chain of world theaters for United Artists. If successful United Artists will co-operate with important producers abroad. Fairbanks will next make a film of a westerner, and Mary probably a French story. They will return to Paris for the Olympic games after which they will go deep-sea fishing off California.

"PERFECT FLAPPER" COLLEEN'S LATEST

BY KENNETH TAYLOR

Why is a flapper? If that has been the great, burning question in your life, stop in at Loew's this week and see one of the many possible answers in the sermon entitled "The Perfect Flapper." A sermon, that is, if the shoe fits. Otherwise, and also, an entertaining picture that doesn't accomplish an awful lot, but which provides Colleen Moore with an opportunity to run through every trick in the catalogue.

Colleen is ever the sincere little artist. She puts her heart into everything she does, and she has lifted more than one ordinary picture out of mediocrity. Not that "The Perfect Flapper" falls that low, but the theme is so timeworn and threadbare.

If you have escaped, by any chance, half of the dozens of pictures recently which have dealt with the younger generation and its many problems, you may find this photoplay interesting all the way through. Otherwise, some of the jazz parties and flapper tricks are apt to look pretty much the same. It has the virtue of possessing a plot that is quite out of the ordinary for this sort of picture, however, and although it doesn't get into the real story for quite a while, in looking backward that is about all that stands out.

The comedy element is quite predominant. The success of much of this is due to the good work of Sydney Chaplin who, with Miss Moore, does some of the best work of his exceptional career. Frank Mayo and Phyllis Haver are the other featured players, while Lydia Knott has a prominent role.

An old-fashioned girl who wonders why she isn't popular with the boys becomes the wildest flapper, and the most popular, of them all over night. Thinking that is the way to win a husband, she continues those tactics after she meets the man she loves, not knowing that he is one of those fellows who prefers an old-fashioned girl. But she gets him anyway.

The opening sequence is a small but humorous tragedy. The old-fashioned girl, after a fairly successful first season, gives a party. Out of several hundred invited guests, some thirty couples arrive. And then the old-fashioned girl takes to punch (pepped up without her knowledge) and drowns her sorrows, also getting mixed up in the front pages of the newspapers, and becoming popular. Then she meetz the man.

An interesting short feature on the bill is "The Chase," a picture made in the Alps showing a party racing around on skis. Some of the stunts these fearless mountaineers perform put our best news reel ski jumpers to shame, and the picture is edited breezily enough to keep interest at a high pitch all the way through.

Brahm Van Den Berg, appearing with the orchestra in several piano selections, is also a popular feature of the program.

NEW CAREY PICTURE HAS MYSTERY PLOT

Ever since "The Mark of Zorro" made its mark in cinema history the wild west has been cluttering up with countless masked riders. Most of them have been modern Robin Hoods, protecting an oppressed people from the ruling tyrants. But in "The Lightning Rider," Harry Carey's latest feature, showing this week at the Alhambra, this is only partly so.

"The Black Mask," as the rider is known, is the terror of the countryside. Selfish gain is his only impulse. He'd even ride out of his way to hold up an orphan, or rob a blind man's tin cup. But along comes another black mask and cooks his goose. Give you three guesses which one of the two is Carey. Right! But you won't guess it so soon if you see the picture.

Carey has done a lot of poor pictures in his time, and it is quite a relief to see him in something that can move along by itself, if need be. The story of "The Lightning Rider" is interesting, if at times slow, and the cast is creditable.

Virginia Brown Faire occupies the stellar position adjoining Carey's, and Leon Barry is the intriguing villain. Lloyd Ingraham directed.

For comedy "There He Goes," featuring Lige Connely, provides a lot of new gags strung together with some kind of consistency, but not much. But when you're laughing you are not apt to pay much attention to whether or not the situation is plausible, or bears any relation to the situation preceding it. And this picture keeps you laughing.

Evening Up

It appears as though there should be a law to require fat and slim men to sit together in the street car.—[Buffalo Enquirer.

Wood for pianos used in the tropics must be solid, without veneer, and insect proof, the leather and felts must be impregnated with insect poison and the keys covered with celluloid.

PLAYDOM

SATIRE TO COMEDY

"BABBITT" MAKES A BROAD TRANSITION TO SCREEN

BY Edwin Schallert

Those who anticipate the biting bitter satire of Sinclair Lewis's novel "Babbitt," provided they enjoyed this, may genially pass up the California Theater this week, or else forget about the book and see a picture that will doubtless prove amusing as a sketch of small-town domestic life. There is flavor in the adaptation that is mirth-compelling, but the pressure on the irony is light.

Altogether, "Babbitt" is fairly acceptable as entertainment. Some of the scenes may be overdone to the point of burlesque, but it cannot be denied that they register as popular.

The cast includes a very effective group of players, including Willard Louis, Mary Alden, Carmel Myers, Raymond McKee, Gertrude Olmstead, Cissie Fitzgerald, Lucien Littlefield and others who do some praiseworthy work.

Harry Beaumont, the director of the Barrymore starring film, was in command of the present production too, while Dorothy Farnum wrote the scenario.

I cannot become enthusiastic about the presentation of the idea, for in many respects it slips to a cheaper level, because the sardonic humor of the original has been neglected. The comedy is for the most part very broad, and occasionally during some of the scenes around the morning breakfast table almost drops to slapstick. There is a pathetic impulse that is interesting, however, in the delineation of Babbitt's romance.

Louis's performance suggests a certain grotesque appeal. He was aptly chosen for the title role. Indeed, it is hard to imagine anyone doing it any better, despite that occasionally his acting is not quite as natural as it might be.

Carmel Myers is successful as the vamp Tanis, who is far from being the rougher type of the book. Miss Myers makes her vamp very alluring.

Raymond McKee engages attention as the young Theodore Roosevelt Babbitt, and Gertude Olmstead is very attractively present. Dale Fuller's comedy as the serving maid is commendable, and Miss Fitzgerald was exceedingly good in her few scenes. Littlefield, Maxine Elliott Hicks, Robert Randell, Kathleen Myers, are among the others who add to the production.

Minus much of the strength of the original, "Babbitt" will probably hold certain favor because of touches of human interest.

"HOLD YOUR BREATH" TO SHOW SOON

Christie Comedy Wins Praise in East, Scheduled for Local Showing

Announcement will soon be forthcoming of the local run of the Al Christie feature comedy "Hold Your Breath," which is said to be a hit through the East, where it has just been shown.

When Al Christie filmed this picture it was with the idea of making some hilarious entertainment for the hot weather season, and it is expected that the hot weather of July will see "Hold Your Breath" getting its first local showing.

Los Angeles' first run theaters are now bidding for the premiere showing here of the fun feature in which Dorothy Devore, Walter Hires, Tully Marshall and others vie for honors.

The picture was announced by the better films committee of the National Board of review as being "of superior entertainment value," which is about the highest honor that the board attaches to a picture.

Barker Will Soon be Home From Arizona

After two weeks spent in Arizona, Reginald Barker is to return to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot late this week to begin casting for his first cinema production under the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer banner—William Vaughan Moody's stage play, "The Great Divide."

Barker and his assistant, Harry Schenck, and Percy Hilburn, who handles the camera for all of Barker's productions, have been trekking about Arizona's desert wastes for "atmosphere," which is in keeping with that described by Moody in his play. Their itinerary includes Globe, Phoenix, Prescott, the Grand Canyon and way points along the Apache trail.

Barker has several players under consideration for the role of Stephen Ghent, the part made famous by Henry Miller, in the stage version of the play, and is expected to name his selection shortly after his return. He will begin casting on his arrival at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot and hopes to get into actual production early in July.

VIDOR ENTHUSIASTIC OVER WORK OF CHILD

One of the most enthusiastic compliments a director has ever paid a child actress was that of King Vidor, with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who said of Jane Hughes, 4½-year-old girl player: "She is the most intelligent child I have ever directed."
